William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, opened the Fourth Liberty loan campaign for this, the Second Federal Reserve District, and for the country with an address at Carnegie Hall last evening. The meeting, primarily, was for the Liberty Loan Committee and the army of men and women who will work under its direction during the drive, and they filled the hall from the first row in the orchestra to the topmost gallery. The Secretary in his address gave to the country the first official news of the amount of the loan and the time of its duration. The people are asked to subscribe for $6,000,000,000 of bonds at 4¼ per cent., which will mature on Oct. 15, 1938, unless the Government exercises its right to redeem the issue on Oct. 15, 1933.

On any holding of $50,000 of the bonds, interest is exempt, until two years after the termination of the war, from surtaxes, excess profits taxes and war taxes. The taxpayer who subscribes for $30,000 of these bonds, and still holds them at the time of making his tax return, will also receive an exemption from such taxes for a like period, as to the interest on an aggregate amount of $45,000 of the bonds of previous Liberty loans, and subscribers in lesser amounts will receive a proportionate similar exemption. The bonds are also permanently exempt from all Federal, State and municipal taxation, except estate and inheritance taxes.

When Secretary McAdoo came upon the platform, accompanied by Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of this district, who presided at the meeting, the audience arose and cheered him heartily, while the band of the 15th Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Hamilton, played "Hail to the Chief." When the Secretary had taken his seat a guard of honor, made up of twenty-seven men of the 22nd United States Infantry, stationed at Fort Jay, under command of Lieutenant Woodward, marched down the centre aisle and planted the colors on the platform, while the audience rose and cheered lustily.

Mr. McAdoo coined a new slogan for the war workers who have to stay at home, which is likely to be sounded from one end of the country to the other until the war ends. It was: "Keep the home push up for Pershing."

"There is a new name on that starry banner tonight," he said, "and it is St. Mihiel. There will be two other names there soon, and they will be Metz and Berlin. If we eliminate the Rhine, as we propose to do, and if we enter Berlin and march down Unter den Linden, as we propose to do, then we must keep the home push up for Pershing."

The Secretary spoke warmly of the patriotism of the men and women all over the country who had subscribed for the issues of each loan in small amounts and then seemed to astonish the audience when he said that, out of 18,000,000 subscribers to the third loan, only 22,500 subscribed in amounts of $10,000 or more. "But this time," exclaimed the speaker, "we have got to have more of the $10,000 and $30,000 and $40,000 subscriptions."

Mr. McAdoo's Address.

The full text of Mr. McAdoo's address follows:

"It is a great pleasure to meet the Liberty Loan workers of this important Federal Reserve District, the greatest in population and in resources of any Federal Reserve District in the country, and therefore responsible for the largest part of every Liberty Loan required of the American people.

"The Fourth Liberty Loan is the greatest yet offered—$6,000,000,000, a colossal sum in itself—a sum so great that it is difficult for the human mind to measure it or to conceive of its vast power when transmuted into American

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—The American Red Cross here has received an additional list of the names of 260 American prisoners who are interned among other races in Stuttgart, Karlsruhe, and Metz.

It is pointed out that both Stuttgart and Karlsruhe have been frequently bombed from the air by the Allies.

GOV. EDGE WINS AT JERSEY POLLS

LA MONTE TO OPPOSE HIM

Former Banking Commissioner Defeats Other Democratic Contenders.

Gov. Walter E. Edge of New Jersey was an easy winner in yesterday's primaries in that State in the contest in the Republican Party for the nomination for the long term of United States Senator. Gov. Edge, according to figures available at an early hour this morning, won by from 6 to 10 to 1 over his two opponents, Representative Edward W. Gray and George L. Record.

In the Democratic primary George W. La Monte, of Bound Brook, former State Banking Commissioner, won the nomination for United States Senator, long term, over Charles O'Connor Hennessy, of Hackensack; Frank McDermitt of Newark and Alexander Simpson of Jersey City. There was no contest in either party for the nomination for the short term for United States Senator to fill out the term of the late Senator William Hughes of Paterson. Hennessy, as the Democratic candidate for this nomination, and David Baird, who was chosen to succeed Hughes, as the Republican nominee, will fight it out at the November election.

Governor Edge received a flattering vote in his home county, Atlantic. He ran ahead of his ticket, defeating Record and Gray by a vote of ten to one, the last two getting only a few scattering votes. At his home at Atlantic City Governor Edge gave out this statement:

"While I expected to win I am delighted with the overwhelming testimonial of appreciation given me by the citizens of New Jersey. From all indications I appear to have won by about ten to one. It is a gratifying recognition of my services as Governor."

Voting Generally Was Light.

The vote throughout the State was extremely light, notwithstanding the fact that the candidates for the major offices waged a bitter contest. Registration, which occurs on the same day as the primaries in New Jersey, was consequently far behind normal.

In the Republican Party there were nine contests for the Congressional nomination, and four in the Democratic Party. In practically every case the regular organization candidates won. One exception was the Ninth Congressional District, where in the Democratic primaries Daniel F. Minahan, an independent, beat the organization candidate, William C. McTague of Newark.

Newark also furnished a surprise by giving a plurality to the present Representatives from the Ninth and Tenth Districts in Essex County, Frederick R. Lehlbach and R. Wayne Parker, in the Republican primary. Both candidates were opposed by "drys" and had no difficulty in winning. The "drys" put up a hard fight to elect enough Assemblymen to ratify the amendment in the Legislature should they be elected in November. Whether they succeeded could not be learned at an early hour this morning as the returns for the minor offices had not been counted.

Successful Congressional Candidates.

According to the latest returns, the following candidates won the nominations for Congress in primaries:

District 1—Camden, Gloucester, and Salem Counties, Browning, (R.;) Dickerson, (D.)

SOLDIERS AWAIT CAPTURE

By W. T. MASSEY.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN PALESTINE, Sept. 23.—The Turkish Seventh and Eighth Armies have been practically wiped out. The very small number who succeeded in getting across the Jordan in isolated batches are a mere fragment of the force opposed to us on the morning of the 19th. They are almost entirely without war material. It is extremely doubtful whether one gun, lorry, or anything on wheels got away. A few batches of Turks in the hills are holding out, and it may be a day or two before they are all rounded up, but a victory, final and complete and probably unparalleled, has crowned the efforts of Allenby's army.

Today cavalry captured the important port of Haifa, historical Acre, and Es Salt. The result will have a far-reaching effect. It is known that the prisoners greatly exceed 25,000. In my movements over this wide battlefield since our forward rush started I have always heard larger estimates than the official claims. It is a fact that there are groups of men sitting under white flags awaiting acceptance of their surrender.

Big Capture of Guns.

More than 260 guns have been located in our lines, and possibly more will be found. Artillery ammunition in vast quantities has been found everywhere. Some of the depots are acres in extent. As the Turks only manufacture small arms ammunition, if they try to raise new armies to take the place of these destroyed they must call on Germany for every gun, transport, and instrument of war required.

Today saw one of the most remarkable sights which a soldier ever gazed upon. From Balata, where the road from Nablus falls through craggy hills and narrow passes to Wadi Farah, there is a stretch more than six miles long covered with débris of the retreating army. In no section of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow could there have been a more terrible picture of hopeless, irretrievable defeat.

In this area alone were 87 guns of various calibres, fully 1,000 horse and oxen drawn vehicles, nearly 100 motor lorries, cars filled with kitchens, watercarts, and a mass of other impedimenta. The road was black with the carcasses of thousands of animals and bodies of dead Turks and Germans.

Airmen Joined in the Attack.

This was the work of the Irish, Welsh, and Indian infantry. The artillery pressure behind the indomitable British and Australian airmen in front of the infantry had forced the enemy over the hills into the road, and just as the guns began to shell the retiring transport airmen swooped down to 200 feet and bombed the head of the column. Once that was accomplished, time only was required to finish the job, and this was done with surprising thoroughness. One flight after another took up the work, until the whole column was one vast broken mass.

The enemy troops, seeing escape with the vehicles was impossible, fled to the hills. Some who had endeavored to find an outlet up the Beisan road fell into the hands of cavalry waiting for them. Others, accepting the inevitable, sought refuge in our lines.

British Airplane Takes 65 Germans Without Landing

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Two British aviators, flying low in one machine, recently brought about the surrender of sixty-five Germans, and without leaving their airplane shepherded the party across No Man's Land to the British lines, according to a story from the battlefield made public today.

The pilot and his observer had been attacked from a trench and sunken road. The pilot dived and replied to the enemy fire with his machine guns, killing one and wounding three. The Germans in a panic ceased firing and hoisted a white handkerchief.

As there were no British infantry in that neighborhood, the pilot descended to within fifty feet of the ground and ordered the Germans out of the trenches, circling around them to insure that none escaped. All were safely brought in and handed over to the nearest British troops.

The aviators then resumed their patrol.

HERTLING STRIVES TO ALLAY ALARM

ADMITS GRAVE SITUATION

Chancellor Declares, However, That There Is No Reason to be Faint-Hearted.

LONDON, Sept. 24. (Associated Press.)—Count von Hertling, the German Imperial Chancellor, addressing the Main Committee of the Reichstag today, declared that the public discontent in Germany was not justified by the military situation on the western front, according to a dispatch from Berlin.

The Chancellor opened his speech with a promise to meet the desire of the Reichstag for information, as far as possible. He proceeded to allude to the "deep discontent which has seized wide circles of the population," and said that the principal reason was the pressure of the terrible four years of war, with all the privations and sufferings brought in its wake and the sacrifices imposed on all classes, all families, and, more or less, on every individual.

"I have no intention of trying to diminish this pressure by words," he continued, "but, gentlemen, if this discontent is influenced by our present military situation or the events on the western front, I must, without desiring to anticipate a statement which we may expect from a representative of the War Ministry, declare most emphatically that it far exceeds justifiable limits."

Count von Hertling admitted that the last German offensive was unsuccessful and that it had been necessary to withdraw to the Siegfried line.

"The situation is grave," he added, "but we have no cause to be faint-hearted. We have already had to pass through harder times."

The Chancellor spoke of the failure of the Verdun offensive, the Somme battles, and Brusiloff's mass assaults, bringing in their train the "well-remembered unfavorable reaction" on the Austro-Italian front. Then came Rumania's entry into the war.

"We never lost courage," he said, "but showed our enemies what a resolute will to victory could do.

"How do things stand now? We have peace with Russia and Rumania, and even though conditions in Russia are not yet clear and the future appears uncertain, nevertheless the former menace from two sides has disappeared and a considerable part of our men of the eastern army can be employed in the west.

"The Austro-Hungarian Army holds large tracts of Italian territory and bravely maintains its position. In France our troops repel attacks by the French, English, and Americans, who are supported by every kind of modern instrument of war.

"The events of the last few days have proved the old spirit is alive in our troops. The Fatherland's true sons are intrepidly preventing the enemy's pertinacious attempts to break through.

"Shall we then lose courage and forget what previously happened? Shall we refuse the old absolute confidence in the men who hitherto have led us to victory because of vicissitudes incident to all war? No, gentlemen, that would be unmanly timidity and base ingratitude."

Expressing confidence in Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorf, the Chancellor said they would be equal to the situation and the Allies' "premature cries of victory" would soon died away.

"Certainly the pure enthusiasm which characterized August, 1914, could not

BRITISH OCCUPY DOIRAN

SERB ARMY CROSSES CERNA

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The Allies are advancing on a front of twenty miles in Macedonia, close on the heels of the First and Second Bulgarian Armies, which are retreating in disorder. French cavalry, operating with the Serbians, have captured Prilep, northeast of Monastir, it was announced officially this evening, while the British, after the capture of the town of Doiran, are advancing to the north, passing Kara Oghular, on the east side of the lake.

Strong bodies of Serbians have established themselves on the eastern bank of the Vardar between Demirkapu Pass and Krivolak, and are covering the passage of the main body of the Serbians. Cavalry meanwhile are feeling their way across the plain toward Lipa and Kaliyna.

The Serbians achieved a notable success in the capture of the formidable Drenska Massif, a great natural defense to Prilep. The Italians have captured another important height on the Monastir front, known as Liobishte, giving them observation over Selecha Plain to the Cerna River.

Thus far between 11,000 and 12,000 prisoners and 140 guns have been counted.

The Serbian official statement of yesterday, received here today, says:

On the twenty-second (Sunday) our troops continued to cross the Vardar where they are in contact with the enemy.

Toward Prilep Serbian troops have reached the very steep massif of the Drenska Mountain range, and at several points are on the Gradsko-Prilep Road.

The enemy continues to burn villages and his own stores. Despite this, however, great quantities of war material have fallen into our hands. On the Vardar Railway line (Uskub to Saloniki) we captured several trains.

The Anglo-Greek forces in the Doiran region have effected a juncture with the Franco-Greek forces to the west, according to a British official announcement made this afternoon. It follows:

The pursuit of the retreating Bulgarians on the Monastir and Doiran fronts continues. The Anglo-Greeks have reached the line Bazarli-Furka-Smokvitsa, where they are in touch with the Franco-Greek forces.

Smokvitsa is ten miles up the Vardar from the former British positions. Bazarli is three miles north of Lake Doiran.

A Paris dispatch says that many Bulgarian troops are deserting, according to advices from the front. It is reported that 560 men from one regiment have been executed, at the command of German officers.

Immense Stores Taken in Prilep.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Under date of Sept. 23 the French official statement from the Balkan front says:

Our pursuit of the enemy continues on the whole front from Monastir to Veles. Enemy columns, with our advance guards on their heels, harassed by cavalry and bombarded with machine guns by the allied aviators, have retreated in great disorder in the direction of Veles, Istip, and Strumitsa.

Further north Franco-Serbian forces passed beyond the road between Prilep and Gradsko, menacing the Prilep-Veles road.

In the centre Serbian troops who crossed the Vardar by several undamaged bridges between Demirkapu and Gradsko established a wide bridgehead north of the river. We oc-

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24.—The German people are being prepared for a fresh retreat of the German armies, and are told to expect renewed and heavy attacks on all sections from French, English, and Americans.

I am told that German soldiers who refuse to fight are no longer shot, but that they are interned in a big camp near Hanover. Cases of drafts refusing to return or go to the front are now quite frequent.

The Kölnische Volkszeitung predicts fighting on a large scale on the west front. "There is no longer any doubt," it says, "that our enemies in the west, namely, the French, English, and Americans, are preparing for a new attack, with which they hope to change the luck of the war."

It asserts that a big attempt to break through between Cambrai and St. Quentin has failed but admits that on Sept. 18 the Allies succeeded in driving the Germans back on a front of thirty-five kilometers, but argues that the attacking forces reached the Siegfried positions in only a few places, and that the counterattacks were severe and resulted in tremendous losses to the English. Big new attacks may be expected, it says, especially as the English line has not advanced much.

This paper pays special attention to the fighting between the Allette and the Aisne and says that the fact that the French are putting in fresh reserves indicates further attacks which it thinks will be delivered by French and American forces in co-operation.

"It must be admitted," it proceeds, "that the American troops had a partial success near Thiaucourt, the importance of which we do not wish to underestimate.

"Undoubtedly, however, they have not attained what they strove for. The Americans have not attempted fresh attacks against the new positions which our troops took up, and have only now brought up their artillery. It is therefore to be expected that fresh attacks will follow.

"The losses which we suffered at Thiaucourt were only those which might have been expected during a retirement, and were proportionately small. We cannot, however, tell whether the Americans will undertake their next attack on this sector. With the heavy fighting which is to be expected on three big sections of the front in the near future, a certain nervousness will be felt at home, but the military command looks with confidence to the results of the coming battles."

The Volkszeitung admits the recent breaking through on the Turkish front, and remarks that the British appear to have been well prepared to exploit their successes.

"The Turkish troops," it says, "are at present in a serious situation in Palestine, especially as their rearguards are menaced by the Arab insurgents."

BALKAN ALLIES AT ODDS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Paris is well satisfied with the summing up of the salient features of the allied situation as it stands today. Here are the outstanding factors: Austria pleading for peace and confessing that only enough flour is left to last till January; the Bulgarian armies hopelessly cut in two and in disorderly retreat; Turkey disastrously defeated, with the loss of two of her best armies and two of her richest provinces; Germany suffering the accumulated bitterness of ten consecutive weeks of continuous defeats along the whole extent of what she regarded as the most impregnable part of her front at the hands of armies she believed at her mercy, and looking forward with ever-growing terror to the vengeance for all her crimes that awaits her at the hands of an American army stronger than her own. The French have truly called the present season "The Autumn of Vengeance."

Blow to German Prestige.

In French opinion, the salient feature of the Bulgarian and Turkish defeats is the resounding blow which they have struck to German influence and prestige throughout the whole eastern world. The allied victory in Palestine is a fatal stroke for Liman von Sanders, the military counselor imposed by Berlin upon Constantinople a few years ago. It is he who has dictated the whole Turkish military policy both before and since the war began, and it is he and his willing tools, Enver Pasha and the Young Turk Party, whose fortunes are indissolubly bound up with Germany's, who are responsible for the present staggering defeats of the armies of the Porte.

In the same way the German commander, Von Steuben, at Uskub, must bear the whole burden of the defeat inflicted upon the Bulgarian armies he has led to such crushing disaster. Von Sanders and von Steuben are Ludendorff's representatives in Turkey and Bulgaria. Their unenviable position today is regarded here as a foretaste of the fate in store for their prototype on the western front before next Autumn's leaves fall.

Austria's Turn Next.

Austria alone is for the moment spared, but it is confidently felt here that the heterogeneous empire of the Hapsburgs will lose nothing of the completeness of its defeats by waiting. It is not forgotten that Foch has never over-

Storm Troops Thrown Into Confusion—Skies Brightening and Mud Drying.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 24.—There was an attack of some importance this morning by British and French troops north and south of St. Quentin, and the first news to hand reports that they penetrated to the village of Pontruet and to other ground thereabout and took something like 700 prisoners.

The French apparently gained territory around the old British outpost line near St. Quentin, known as Epine de Dallon, where the British Fifth Army was violently attacked on the morning of March 21. I am unable to give further details today, as I have been in another area along the British front, but tomorrow I hope to send a narrative of this new success.

Elsewhere along the greater part of the British front the fighting has been confined to local actions and artillery work, but during the last twenty-four hours on our front opposite Epehy and below Villers-Guislain the trench and outpost fighting has been continuous and severe. Here the enemy counterattacked several times in some strength, but each time he was bloodily repulsed by the British. It is more than a phrase, and the exact truth of it is proved by what happened in the outposts held by some of the British troops in the position known as the Quadrilateral.

When the German storm troops came over they were received by a machine-gun and rifle barrage which broke them up, and some 200 prisoners were left in the hands of the British, with twenty of their machine guns. A hundred dead Germans were counted inside the British lines after this attempt. Later in the day—that is, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and again at 6 o'clock—the enemy advanced between two outposts held by Eastern County troops, and were driven back, with a loss of twenty prisoners.

HAIG STRIKES ON 4-MILE LINE

FRENCH GAIN TO THE SOUTH

British Still Fighting at Selency —Improve Positions Near Cambrai and Ypres.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—British and French troops today attacked on adjacent fronts totaling about seven miles, northwest, west, and southwest of St. Quentin, and made substantial progress along this whole line.

The principal British operation extended southward from the Omignon River to Selency. "Good progress all along this front" is reported by Field Marshal Haig in his night bulletin, which also announces the capture of 800 Germans.

Vigorous resistance was encountered by the British at several points, notably near Selency, where the fighting continues.

Haig's forces, by their capture of Pontruet, are now only three-quarters of a mile from vital defenses of the Hindenburg line at the bend of the St. Quentin Canal.

The British slightly improved their positions northeast of Epehy, on the front between St. Quentin and Cambrai, which has been the scene of hard fighting for several days.

Linking up with the right wing of the British, the French have captured Francilly-Selency, l'Epine de Dallon, and the village of Dallon. The taking of these villages, announced in the French night report, and the seizing by the British of the high ground west of Fayet, unofficially reported, indicate that the Allies have taken a line of positions lying in a five-mile arc of a circle with a radius of less than three miles from its centre at St. Quentin.

The French made 500 prisoners and took a large number of machine guns.

Official Reports of the Operations.

Field Marshal Haig's night report summarizes the day's fighting thus:

A successful operation was carried out this morning in co-operation with the French in the St. Quentin sector. At dawn English troops attacked over a front of four miles from the neighborhood of the Omignon River southward. Good progress was made all along this front. About 800 prisoners were taken.

Vigorous resistance was encountered at a number of points, especially in the neighborhood of Selency, [three miles west of St. Quentin,] where the fighting is still continuing.

There was local fighting again today northeast of Epehy as a result of which we improved our positions slightly.

On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report.

Fighting is taking place to our advantage in the sector east of Vermand, where we are reported to be making progress.

A local attack made by the enemy yesterday north of the Little Priel Farm (opposite Le Catelet) was successfully repulsed, leaving prisoners in our hands.

During the night the enemy attacked our new positions southeast of Gavrelle, supporting the assault with a heavy artillery barrage. The attack was completely repulsed, our line remaining intact.

We improved our positions slightly north of Moeuvres, and by a successful minor operation carried out during the night regained a portion of the old British front line southeast of Voormezeele.

Hostile raiding parties were driven off last night west of Bellenglise (north of St. Quentin) and east of Neuve Chapelle.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Tonight's official report on the fighting on the west front says:

In the region west of St. Quentin our troops, in co-operation with the British army, carried out this morning a new advance. We occupied Francilly-Selency, L'Epine de Dallon and the village of Dallon.

Further south we carried our lines forward to the western outskirts of Gricourt (Giffecourt?), taking more than 500 prisoners, as well as a great number of machine guns.

On the Vesle front in the course of a violent attack in the neighborhood of Glennes, the enemy succeeded in gaining a foothold in our advance positions.

In a counter-attack our troops reestablished our line in its entirety. We captured about fifty prisoners belonging to three regiments.

The text of the French day bulletin reads:

In the course of the night there was marked activity by the artillery in the region of St. Quentin and between the Ailette and the Aisne.

In Champagne two raids upon the German trenches in the region of Perthes and in the direction of the Butte du Mesnil resulted in the taking of forty prisoners by the French.

BERLIN, Sept. 24, (via London.)—The Headquarters report this evening says:

Severe enemy attacks, which were renewed northwest of St. Quentin between the Omignon Rivulet and the Somme, failed.

Northwest of Dixmude and northeast of Ypres we captured seventy prisoners in successful enterprises.

North of Moeuvres partial attacks of the enemy were repulsed. Artillery activity increased on the canal sector to the south of Arleux-en-Gohelle.

Local counterattacks south of Villers-Guislain and east of Epehy enabled us to recapture trench sectors which remained in the enemy's hands after the recent fighting. We captured prisoners. Counterthrusts by the enemy were repulsed. Between the Omignon Brook and the Somme the artillery fire revived in the evening. Lieutenant Rumney gained his forty-first aerial victory.

With the other army groups there were no events of importance. There was lively reconnoitring activity in Champagne.

CAPTURE OF PONTRUET AN IMPORTANT SUCCESS

It Brings British Within Three-quarters of a Mile of Vital Defenses.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 24, (Associated Press.)—Another Anglo-French assault was delivered against the German defenses before St. Quentin today. Reports received up to 2 o'clock this afternoon indicated that the allied attack was meeting with great success.

On the right the French appeared to have possession of L'Epine de Dallon, [two and five-eighths miles southwest of St. Quentin,] a strong position known as Round Hill, to the west of the threatened city, and the hamlet of Francilly-Selency, while to the north the British had seized the high ground west of Fayet and cleared the woods east of Fresnoy of the enemy and had stormed their way through Pontruet.

Pontruet lies only three-quarters of a mile from the bend in the St. Quentin Canal, which forms a vital part of the Hindenburg bulwarks. It was around Pontruet that the British captured many hundreds of prisoners.

Fighting was proceeding this afternoon along the ridge between Pontruet and Gricourt.

The pressure which the British have established in the Epehy-Ronssoy sector is obvious from a glance at the detailed maps. The St. Quentin Canal forms a strong natural defense for the enemy for a great distance in this section, but just east of Ronssoy it runs underground for about three miles. In other words, there is a gap in the waterway defense here, and it is this which the Germans have been defending so desperately.

In front of the line of the canal tunnel the Hindenburg line has been made especially strong to protect the possible gateway. The British divisions which have been doing such magnificent work here have in front of them as opponents not only the famous German Alpine Corps, but four more fresh divisions which the enemy has thrown in.

With this force of enemy troops especially hard fighting occurred just east of Ronssoy in a quadrilateral system of trenches, which the British captured. The Germans attacked here continuously and heavily, but on each occasion they were repulsed with very severe losses.

GERMANS LOSE EIGHT PLANES.

British Report Four Missing—Enemy Aerodromes Bombed.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The official report, issued by the Air Ministry tonight, says:

On Monday eight hostile machines were destroyed and three driven down. Four of ours are missing. At night we attacked enemy aerodromes, railheads, and hutments with vigor and effect, dropping tons of bombs without losing a machine.

TIED WITH RICKENBACHER.

Major Hartney Holds Third Place with Him as American Ace.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE LORRAINE FRONT, Sept. 24 (Associated Press.)—The latest aviation records show that none of the American flyers has as yet equalled the record of the late Major Raoul Lufbery, with his seventeen aerial victories.

The latest man to be rated as an ace, although as yet unofficially, is Lieutenant Frank Luke, Jr., of Phoenix, Ariz. Although he is as yet officially credited with but three victories, he will soon have at least six more added to his score. In the course of the operations around St. Mihiel alone he has brought down eleven German balloons and three airplanes.

Major Hartney, group commander, and an aviator long before the United States entered the war, shares third place officially with Lieutenant Edward Rickenbacher, of Columbus, Ohio.

Major Hartney, however, has brought down many planes which have not been recorded, while the former automobile racer has another victory to his credit won in the course of the recent offensive, confirmation of which is expected at any time.

COUNTS ON AUSTRIANS TO BEAT AMERICANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24.—The Kaiser, who on Friday was on the Lorraine front talking to his troops, went on Saturday to Briey, where he visited the hospitals and talked personally to patients of all the nationalities represented there, Germans, Austrians, English and French, in their respective languages and shook hands with each.

Speaking to the Austrian officers, the Kaiser said:

"You also know that we have hard battles before us and you know whom you have to fight against. Over there in America it has been said that the Americans wish to restore Alsace-Lorraine, which the French were unable to recapture, as a present to the French Republic. It appears that great efforts will be made to make these words deeds, but you will give the right answer to the enemy with my troops when the right hour comes."

ENEMY MORALE FAILING

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Sept. 23.—Marked divergence in the methods of the allied and enemy high commands is shown by the situation on the battle-front during periods like the present of preparation and intermission between big-scale operations.

In the interval between the March and May battles and before the stroke of July 15 the Germans were comparatively quiescent, especially in sectors where an offensive was actually contemplated. I had a personal experience of this on the Marne in the early days of July, when the calm was so absolute that it was difficult to realize that a state of war existed.

Doubtless Hindenburg hoped to lull the defenders into a feeling of false security, but the fatal flaw in the theory was that until the battle was actually begun he had thus abandoned all the advantages of superior numbers and permitted Foch to perfect his dispositions for defense undisturbed.

The fact is that the German numerical superiority, which certainly existed then, was largely nullified by the division of the army into shock and holding divisions. While the former were exclusively reserved for the blow to be delivered, the latter were incapable seriously of harassing the Allies.

Foch, on the contrary, now has in hand a superiority of troops whose average quality is good enough for either great or small operations. The result is that while the mass of manoeuvre is completing preparations the remaining forces give the enemy no rest, and their ceaseless hammering and gradual but uninterrupted progress have a deadly effect both on German morale and numbers. Nothing is so difficult for the defender to combat as the incessant whittling away of his forces and defensive positions.

Allied Forces at High Key.

Nor is that the sole advantage. General Mangin said to me after his July victory:

"The activities of Degoutte's army and by own during the last three weeks have borne twofold fruit. Not only did we acquire invaluable 'jumping off places' for an offensive, but also our men were keyed up and prepared for the ensuing battle. As a good horseman tests the paces and temper of his mount, so it is all-important for a General to have his army well in hand and know exactly what he can count on it to do."

But if a difference exists in the methods of commanders during lulls in a gigantic struggle, how much greater is the contrast in the general situation of the opponents. It may now be admitted that the first fortnight of July was a time of very great anxiety for the allied leaders. But neither in front nor in rear was there a sign of faltering or a word of weakness. The resolution was absolute that whatever the enemy's success in the culminating drive that all knew was imminent the war should be fought out to victory, be the road never so long or hard.

Above all the allies were upheld and strengthened by the thought of the American millions pouring to the rescue. In the batle, when it came, the aid given by the American divisions (limited though they were in comparison with the French forces) was far greater than could be measured in merely numerical terms.

"The assailant has an exceptional advantage in a battle like this which comes at the end of long, bitter war," said a French officer at that time. "However steadfast be the hearts of the defenders, fatigue of a four years' campaign cannot but render a passive rôle disproportionately harder than an active one. The infusion of fresh American blood and the magnificent American spirit has saved us from that danger, but you will see that when the time comes for the Allies to be attacking the German defense will be unequal to the strain."

Echoes of Disaster in Germany.

These words have already proved prophetic, and now, as they face the supreme struggle, the ears of the German soldiers and the people are filled with echoes of disaster. In Palestine, in Bulgaria, and even in Russia the structure of success built up at the price of such sacrifice is crumbling to dust. Vainly may they hope for "General Winter" as an ally. Remember that the battle of Verdun, the greatest operation of the war until then, was prepared and launched in the worst climatic period of the whole French year. That it did not succeed was due solely to a miracle of heroism on the part of France's soldiers.

To quote once more the words of General Humbert, "It is not numbers or guns or material or favorable conditions that win battles, but moral superiority and the mutual self-confidence of well-trained soldiers and their chiefs."

GOMPERS PARTY IN PARIS.

Labor Leader Is Entertained by the French Federation.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor and his party of American labor leaders arrived in Paris today. They were received cordially by representatives of the Government and the Workers' Federation. The Americans were entertained today by the federation and will have luncheon at the Foreign Office tomorrow.

Mr. Gompers was met on his arrival by Arthur Hugh Frazier, Secretary of the American Embassy, Captain Jackson, the Naval Attaché, and other naval and army representatives. Mr. Gompers's grandson, an aviator in the American Army, who has just reached Paris from active service, awaited his grandfather at the hotel at which the labor leader will stop.

ORDER TO HORVATH'S ARMY.

Must Disband or Join the Forces of General Semenoff.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Sept. 20, (Associated Press.)—The Siberian Government is reported to have served an ultimatum on the troops commanded by General Horvath to disband or join the forces of General Semenoff, the anti-Bolshevik leader in Trans-Baikalia.

The Siberian Government referred to probably is that at Omak, which recently declared war on Germany. It is probable that the ultimatum is an order combining the commands of Horvath and Semenoff, both of whom have been active against the Bolsheviki from bases in Manchuria.

the British seized the opportunity and rushed a trench known as Duncan Avenue, which they captured and consolidated, while another 100 prisoners were gathered in.

The Londoners and other men of the British divisions here had some trouble with the enemy during the night or made trouble on their own account to keep him worried, and pushed out into the sunken roads and established advanced posts and blockades.

Since Saturday morning, in consequence of these minor actions, the British have taken here a toll of 400 prisoners and have secured a considerable number of German machine guns. Some of the troops engaged hereabout have been fighting with great endurance for a long time, and they had to face severe machine-gun fire day and night and all the discomforts of wet weather, which makes the fighting harder and more miserable. But they have stuck it out doggedly and grimly and have beaten down the efforts of the Alpine Corps, which is a strong body of men, and four more fresh German divisions, of whom two have come into the line during the last forty-eight hours. Not only have they mastered the Germans and repulsed their fierce counterattacks, but they gained much ground of value to us and to the enemy. This is proved by German maps showing it to be a part of the main Hindenburg defenses and to be held at all costs.

German Guns Active.

Elsewhere, as I said, the British front has been fairly "quiet" after our recent victories. But, as I always like to point out, it is only comparative quietude, and the fields are not "healthy" places where our soldiers picnic between battles under the blue sky which is over them today. German long-range guns are busy firing in a harassing way over our lines, and when I went up among the Canadians I found some of these shells had fallen unpleasantly near groups of men who were in need of some respite from this continual strain on the nervous system.

At night bombing squadrons come over searching for British camps and billets and horse lines, and dropping packets of high explosives. Of late the enemy's fighting planes and guns have been making a dead set at the British kite balloons, not liking their quiet observation. So some of the balloonatics, as they are called in a friendly way by the infantry, have had to dive overboard and trust to the strength of the parachutes and a kindly breeze. But the German flying men have not enjoyed this sport with impunity, and there have been deadly duels during the last few days which ended in a crash of German airplanes chased by British flying patrols.

The weather today is golden after some days of storm, and the old battlefields are bathed in sunshine which gives a little beauty even to their ugliness because of the wonderful effects of the light playing on the ruins and wreckage. But there is the first touch of Autumn in the air, and where the trees are alive and heavy in leaf they are painted with the first colors of the year's old age.

The ground is not so bad as one might have expected after the heavy rains, and the chalky soil is hardening quickly. Now that the storms have ceased, we may look forward to the luck of a fine dry month, which will make all the difference to the fighting men.

CAPT. J. J. ASTOR WOUNDED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Captain J. J. Astor of the Royal Household Cavalry, the younger son of Viscount Astor, is reported wounded.

Captain J. J. Astor was first wounded in October, 1914, when an officer of the First Life Guards, to which he had been appointed with probationary rank in 1906.

His father was made a peer in 1916, with the title of Baron Astor of Hever Castle. In the following year he was made a Viscount.

Meanwhile, in August, 1916, Captain John Jacob Astor married Lady Charles Mercer Nairne, the widow of Major Lord Charles Mercer Nairne, who had been killed in the same engagement in which Captain Astor was wounded. Mrs. Astor is the daughter of Lord Minto, formerly Viceroy of India.

Captain Astor was born in May, 1886.

10% Cut in Cuban Sugar Crop.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 24.—The Government announced today that the sugar crop for 1918 is 453,796 short tons, as compared with 503,081 tons in 1917, a decrease of slightly over 10 per cent. The prospects for the 1919 crop indicate that there will be a further reduction in the amount of sugar raised next year.

looked the fact that the Italian front is an integral part of the strategic scheme of the allied armies. In some quarters here, therefore, there are strong hopes that the time is approaching when the allied Commander in Chief will decide that the moment has come when Austria, whose internal troubles are believed to be daily rendering her more nearly ripe for a decisive attack, will be dealt with as have been Germany's still meaner accomplices.

It is to Bulgaria and Turkey, however, that Paris is looking today with the greatest interest. As I suggested in my cable yesterday, there are all the elements of dissolution in both countries, and from these all kinds of developments favorable to the Allies may be expected as the details of the double blow dealt by the Allies begin to percolate among the masses of the people.

A factor to which increasing attention is being given here is the probability of the revival of the centuries-old antagonism between Bulgaria and her former oppressor, Turkey. The fact that she succeeded in inducing the Bulgarians and Turks to make common cause in the present war must be admitted as perhaps the greatest of the meagre number of diplomatic triumphs which Germany has achieved in recent years. But the success of this effort had already nearly reached the vanishing point before the allied armies began their double attack.

Bulgaria's Jealousy of Turkey.

Bulgaria has always regarded the last treaty of Bucharest, which deprived her after the Rumanian débâcle of the greater part of what she regarded as her legitimate spoils and gave it to her natural enemy, as a piece of unmitigated treachery on the part of the Sultan's Government. It was only by making the most extravagant concessions and promises to both parties, by all accounts, that Germany succeeded five or six months ago in preventing the two old enemies from forgetting their alliance with the Central Empires and flying at each other's throats.

Now that Bulgaria sees her dreams of Balkan hegemony vanishing like the morning mist before the hated Serbs, and Turkey is already beginning to mourn her heavy losses on the Mediterranean littoral, the full extent of which is not yet revealed, it is regarded here as more than probable that the frail bonds of nominal friendship between the two which have been made in Germany will give way under the strain of constant brooding over their ancient differences.

The doom of Bulgaria, as Paris sees it, is already sealed. As regards Turkey the situation is more complicated, but equally satisfactory for the Allies. The disasters in Palestine point inevitably to the ruin of Enver and his Young Turk followers. Paris foresees from now on a bitter conflict between Enver and his party on the one hand and the Sultan and the more liberal advisers with whom he appears now to have surrounded himself.

Turco-Russian Dissensions.

At the same time the Turks, not content being on bad terms with the Bulgarians, have come to loggerheads with Russia by tearing up the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, as the present masters of Russia view it, through their seizure of Baku and a good deal more of what hitherto has been indubitably Russian territory.

The Bolshevist Foreign Minister has already protested hotly to Constantinople against this violation of a treaty to which Turkey was a party. And this complication has arisen, it is remarked here with great satisfaction, at the very moment when Germany appears to be establishing closer and closer relations with Lenine's Government.

Altogether, as Paris sees it, the Bulgari-Turk-German kettle of fish seems to be well on the boil. It is believed that its contents, when cooked, will be useful to Allenby and his men on their walk to Damascus.

On the right wing the Allied troops operating on both sides of the Vardar have reached the line of Petrovo-Pardovica, Chinarli and Kara Oghlurar on Lake Doiran.

On Sept. 22 about ten cannon, several of which were of large calibre, were captured. At Krivolak, the Serbians, in addition to booty previously reported, captured airplanes and nine automobiles as well as large depots of petroleum and supplies.

SOFIA, Sept. 22, (via London, Sept. 24.)—"As a result of our front giving way in the angle between the Cerna and the Vardar," says the Bulgarian War Office statement today, "our adjacent units were withdrawn to new positions to the south of Prilep and to the north of Doiran."

SINGLE GOVERNMENT FORMING IN RUSSIA

NORTHERN CABINET ASSENTS

Resigns Office and Colonel Duroff, with Approval of Allies, Is Made Governor General of Region.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—A conference attended by many members of the Pan Russian Constituent Assembly and presided over by the Socialist Revolutionary leader Avskentieff, former Minister of Agriculture and of the Interior in the Russian Provisional Cabinet, is being held at Ufa, European Russia, according to a dispatch from Vladivostok.

The conference was organized and supported by President Masloff of the National Czech Council. The object of the meeting is to form in Russia a single Government with the controlling power vested in the Constituent Assembly. Bolsheviki and members of the Social Revolutionary Left Party will not be represented.

This plan seems to be acceptable, it is said, to the Siberian Duma and to the Governments at Omsk and Samara.

ARCHANGEL, Sept. 20, (Associated Press.)—Colonel Boris Androvitch Duroff today became Governor General of the Region of the North, succeeding the Tschalkovsky Government. The new Governor General is responsible to the new Central Government formed at Samara, and which is under the leadership of General Alexieff, former Russian Commander in Chief; M. Avskentieff, Minister of Agriculture in the Kerensky Cabinet, and M. Setepanoff.

The Tschalkovsky Government (which was recently overthrown by a revolt and then reinstated by the Allies) decided to abdicate when it learned of the formation of the Central Government, and in view of the fact that the northern region is small and could be administered better by a Governor General.

"We have named Colonel Duroff and have telegraphed to Samara asking approval," said M. Tschaikovsky to the correspondent. "This meets with the approval of the Allies."

Colonel Duroff formerly commanded the Russian forces at Saloniki. He is to be charged with the care of all civil and Russian military affairs in the Northern Region.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—The German Consul General at Moscow, according to a Berlin dispatch, has protested to the Soviet Government against the arrest of a large number of German subjects and persons under German protection without apparent reason. He urges the immediate release of those against whom there are no adequate grounds for suspicion.

The Consul General, is is added, emphasized the case of two Poles who were under the protection of the consulate, but were executed without proper identification.

AMERICANS WIN FIRST FIGHT WITH THE REDS

Repel Attack South of Archangel and Inflict Severe Losses on Enemy.

ARCHANGEL, Sept. 18.—(Associated Press.)—In an attack against the American outposts south of Archangel yesterday the Bolsheviki suffered considerable losses. Eight dead were found in one heap in front of an advanced position and three other bodies were found in a forest. Most of the Bolshevist dead were Letts.

The Bolshevist artillery bombarded the American positions with shrapnel for several minutes today, but did no harm.

The fighting in this area is a combination of trench and Indian warfare. The trenches are along the railroad, but in the forests hemming the tracks trees are the only cover. The Russian railway employes are loyal to the Allies. They are operating trains under shrapnel fire and even repair tracks in the open unperturbed by bursting shells.

The Bolshevist raid cost the Americans their first casualties on this sector of the front. The Bolsheviki apparently attacked in the hope of saving one of their airplanes which descended the day before just beyond the American lines. They displayed stubbornness, and the accuracy of their artillery fire indicated that skilled officers were manning the guns.

A Bolshevist officer, taken prisoner Sunday, declared that his forces were ignorant that Americans were on this front. The Bolshevist leaders were using every precaution to prevent this from becoming known. The death penalty was imposed on any one reading allied proclamations.

last," he continued. "But the firm resolve to hold out till the end will, despite all vacillations and vicissitudes, continue. The people at home will not leave the army in the lurch just when everything is at stake. From the first day we waged the war as a war of defense. Only to defend ourselves did we invade Belgium."

The Chancellor admitted that in invading Belgium, Germany transgressed the written law.

"But," he said, "as for individuals, so is there also for States another law. That is the law of self-defense."

He repeated the German contention that there were grounds for the fear that the enemy would invade Belgium and referred to alleged proofs from Belgian archives of Belgium's dubious neutrality. He also alluded to offers of peace to Belgium before the invasion and again after the capture of Liege, which Belgium refused to entertain.

In all future fighting, both on the west and the east, the Imperial Chancellor said, it would be solely a question of defense.

The sitting of the Main Committee was attended by Admiral von Hintze, the Foreign Secretary, and other Secretaries of State, in addition to the Chancellor.

Friedrich Ebert, President of the committee, announced that the meeting had been called at an earlier date than expected owing to Austria's peace proposal.

Count von Hertling opened the discussion with a statement on the political situation, internal reforms, Prussian suffrage, and prevention of wars in the future.

GERMANS STILL RAGE OVER WILSON'S NOTE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24.—The Germans have not yet ceased to rage about the promptness with which President Wilson sent his answer to the Austrian note.

The Düsseldorfer Nachrichten says:

"One recognizes with what carelessness the American friend of peace decides on questions pertaining to the existence of Europe. What does he care for the mutilation of the Old World? The Entente countries are downtrodden by this self-complacent American politician. As in all his messages, he poses as the judge of the world, demanding obedience to his laws."

In America's war for freedom the Germans, says the Nachrichten, were her best friends, and Wilson must know that the German people will never submit to his yoke.

"The day will come," it predicts, when Wilson will no longer look on Europe like a Roman Emperor. Then he will have more than half an hour to find a basis for an agreement between his demands and those of this undefeatable nation.

SOCIAL DEMOCRATS FOR PEACE

Reichstag Faction Favors League of Nations and Disarmament.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—The Reichstag faction of the Social Democratic Party resolved at a meeting yesterday to approve participation of the members of the party in a new Government which may be formed under certain imitations, according to advices from Berlin.

The conditions include unrestricted indorsement of the Reichstag peace resolution of July, 1917, together with a declaration to join a league of nations based on a peaceable settlement of all disputes and general disarmament.

GERMANS APPEAL TO BRITISH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24.—Germany has for a long time been trying to sow seeds of dissension between America and England by talking about America's growing mercantile fleet. The German papers allege that America is saving her own shipping and only using it on coastal service and in comparatively safe zones, whereas British shipping is constantly in the dangerous zones. This favorite effort to stir up trouble is now employed in connection with the latest peace move. The Germans have published a flyleaf captioned "The American Peril," to be dropped in the British trenches. One recently happened to drop on the Dutch frontier. It quotes copious extracts from an article published in The Liverpool Journal of Commerce of July 20, which all the German press quoted at the time, and which refers to "England's desperate commercial position," pointing out that England will sink to the position of a second-rate power unless something is done about British shipping.

The pamphlet contains remarks such as: "Isn't it foolish to stay in this war for the sole benefit of the United States?"

"America won't be satisfied with Germany's downfall, but aims at controlling world commerce. World domination—that is what America is after. At any rate, after the war America will be the most powerful and pitiless competitor England ever had. Therefore, come to an understanding with Germany before it is too late."

BERLIN SCENTS DEFEATISM.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24.—Referring to the Chancellor crisis and new party groups in Germany, Emil Zimmermann in the Lokal-Anzeiger speaks of a German Defeatist movement at The Hague, where, he says, "these people walk in and out of the legation."

Even American influences, he adds, are at work. The paper asserts that Americans appear to have convinced intelligent Germans of President Wilson's peace intentions.

"Wilson only needs democratic facts in Germany in order to carry out his peace work immediately," says the paper. "Therefore we must be quickly democratized; for Wilson must naturally be favored, because he means so well for us. This is apparent from the attitude of the Americans on the west front, from the answer to the Austrian peace note and their work in Russia."

VON SANDERS PLANS TO SAVE DAMASCUS

BULGAR FORCES IN PERIL

Serb Advance Up the Vardar May Turn Babuna Pass and Split Army In Two.

By Major Gen. Sir FREDERICK B. MAURICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The situation in Palestine and Macedonia continues of extraordinary interest. In Samaria General Allenby is engaged in clearing up the débris of the Seventh and Eighth Trukish armies, which have ceased to exist as fighting formations, and interest now is centred upon the fate of the Fourth Turkish army, which is east of the Jordan, and hitherto has been scattered along the Hedjaz Railway endeavoring to keep open communication with the beleagured garrison of Medina.

It is not very likely that Limon von Sanders, who was reported to have fled in a hurry to avoid capture by our cavalry, will attempt to defend the hilly country to the west of Lake Tiberias, even if, as seems highly improbable, he has troops for that purpose. This hilly district merges in the Lebanon and Mount Hermion ranges and the only good road through it runs along the coast. Von Sanders would therefore have great difficulty in keeping a force in Northwest Palestine supplied from either Damascus or Beirut, and he would have immediately in his rear the population of Lebanon, which has always been opposed to the Turks.

The news that we have occupied Haifa and Acre with ease confirms the supposition that we need not look for much opposition on this side. It is probable that his hope is to cover Damascus by making a stand on the north side of the Yakmuk Valley between the Mountain of the Druses and Lake Tiberias, and that as an interim measure he will try to block the Yakmuk Gorge a few miles southeast of the lake long enough to insure the escape of at least a part of his Fourth Army and bring up such reinforcements as he has available.

The more one studies General Allenby's operations the more admirable they appear, and the manner in which the movements of the infantry and cavalry were synchronized though separated by wide stretches of difficult hilly country is as perfect an example of co-operation of two arms in a decisive battle as is to be found in the pages of history.

Little less remarkable is the speed with which the mass of horsemen, with sufficient supplies and munitions to make them independent for several days, was got across the maze of our own and of the Turkish trenches in the plain north of Jaffa. This argues most careful and thorough staff work and preparation.

But, with all his skill and generalship, Allenby cannot make his troops fly or exist without food, and in the Yarkmuk Valley they will be a long way from their railheads. Much depends on the amount of Turkish rolling stock which has been captured and the speed with which the enemy's railway can be made to serve us. Much also depends upon how far our friends, the Arabs, will be able to continue their raids on the enemy's communications and whether the Druses will throw in their lot with them.

But we must not be disappointed if that part of the 4th Turkish Army which is north of Amman manages to make good its escape and Sanders succeeds in putting up a defense on the Yarmun. Even if the German does this much for his Turkish friends, the result will be to leave practically the whole of Palestine in our hands, to cut off the Turks altogether from Arabia and bring about the surrender sooner or later of the enemy's forces as are between Amman and Medina.

It must be a great satisfaction to Sir Charles Munro to learn that his labors in expanding the Indian army have been so amply rewarded, for we are now told that the new Indian regiments which went to Egypt and released British regiments for the western front when we were in trouble there in the Spring have played a distinguished part in General Allenby's victory.

In Macedonia the effect of the wonderful progress made by the gallant little Serbian army is becoming more and more at[illegible] As I anticipated in my last art[illegible] Bulgars, in consequence of the Se[illegible] advance in the centre, have been compelled to fall back on the whole front from Lake Dorian to the north of Monastir.

On the left of the front of attack the Italians are now advancing, and on the right our own troops and the Greeks are moving forward across the almost impregable positions which we have been facing for more than two years. The result of this has been to widen greatly the somewhat narrow salient which the Serbians had created, and its base is now extended to over ninety miles. The wedge driven into the Bulgar front has from a very acute-angled triangle become a right-angled triangle, and therefore is likel yto be much more effective.

Our future prospects in this theatre still depend mainly on the achievements of the Serbian Army at the apex of the salient. It has cut the main line of the railway from Ghevgeli to Veles and the branch railway which leaves the main line at Gradsko and runs to Prilep, and hence the Bulgar withdrawals on the right and left if the Serbian advance can continue up the Vardar to Veles, Babuna Pass north of Prilip will be turned and the Bulgar Army split in two.

It was in Babuna Pass that the remnants of the Serbian Army were fighting in gwhen the Allies first landed at Saloniki and vainly endeavored to come to their help. Our own troops, the 10th Irish Division from Sulva Bay, then moved up to Strumnitza while the French on our left were beteen the Cerna and Varda in much the same position as has now been reached by the Serbians.

The Bulgars are reported to have made a light railway from Veles up to Babuna Pass which may help them to rally there ,and they are certain to make as desperate an effort as is within their power to do this and so maintain connection between the wings of their army.

Probably they will now fall back on the Doiran front to the Belashitza range, where they can feed their troops from the Sofia-Seres railway, and will endeavor to hold the left bank of the Vardar from near Stromnitza station to the junction of the Vardar and the Cerna, near Gradsko, and from Gradsko will try to establish a line through the Babuna Mountains to the north of Prilep.

It is so vital to them to hold the Serbian advance up the Vardar that it would not be at all surprising if in order to obtain reinforcements for the centre they drew back their left from Seres and Demir-Hissar and evacuated those portions of Macedonia which remain in their hands.

The events of the next two or three days should decide whether the Bulgars will be forced to make a general and considerable withdrawal on the whole front or whether they will be able to patch up some such line as I indicated above. In any event to the Serbian army already belongs the honor of having affected a very complete change in the situation in Macedonia.

Only born mountaineers capable of enduring the greatest hardships and of living away from their transport could have achieved what the Serbians accomplished so quickly in such a country. We must also take our hats off to the leadership which made these results possible.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

There are several very puzzling aspects of the situation in the Balkans which naturally give rise to considerable speculation. The riddle of the Balkans, of which so much was made in the early days of the war, has appeared in a new phase, and those who thought that it was solved must begin all of their calculations anew. During the last six months the forces of the Allies on the Saloniki front have been very much reduced. This was necessitated by a number of unforeseen elements. The German offensive in France in the first place demanded that as many men as possible be released from other theatres for service on the Western front. The troops of our allies being insufficient for the needs at hand, and America up to that time having failed to land in Europe the number of troops expected, made it incumbent for us to send our men over as quickly as possible. Not having the shipping available we were forced to turn to England for assistance in this regard, and as the demands in France for men continued to grow, Great Britain was forced to withdraw much of her tonnage from the Mediterranean, where it was employed in supplying the Saloniki Army and divert it to our uses. This furnished an additional reason why the number of troops before Saloniki had to be cut down. We may, therefore, begin our discussion of the Bulgarian situation with the assumption that the allied numbers on the Saloniki front are less than at any other time in the last two years, and that this army is not nearly as well supplied as it has been and as it should be if the needs of the French front were not so pressing.

The next consideration are the lines of approach to northern Serbia which, of course, is our objective. These are primarily the Cerna River, the Vardar River, and the Struma. The valley of the latter runs directly to Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, with a western offshoot just north of Lake Doiran, the Strumitza. The rest of the country is heavily mountainous, without roads, largely without water, so that every element of supplies must pass over trackless mountains of a most serious character from a military standpoint. And yet with all of these difficulties, the main line of advance of the Serbs has been not up the valleys, but over these mountains.

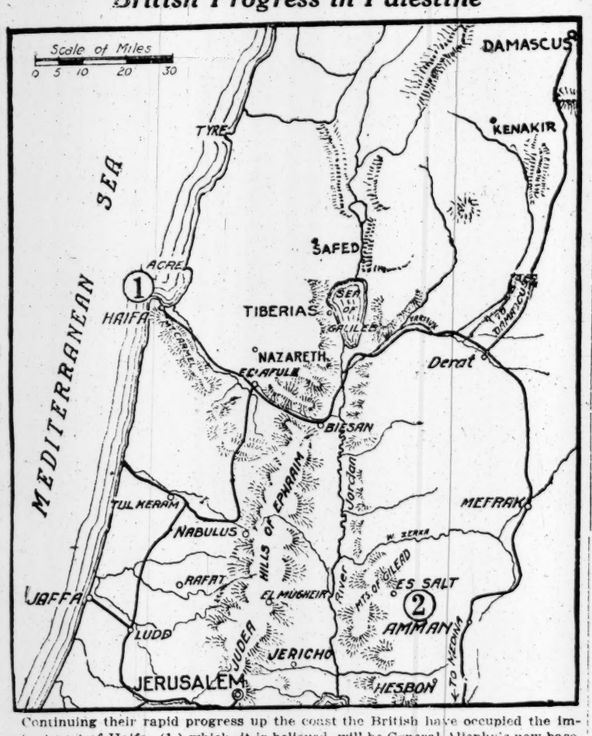
The astonishing features of this latest move, then, are that in spite of their shortage of supplies, in spite of their fewer numbers, we see the Allies moving ahead at a terrific rate, whereas in all previous efforts in this territory their advance has been slow and tortuous, and eventually was halted after a few miles were gained. Moreover, we see the advance taking place over the most difficult territory in the entire theatre, advancing up the valleys only when the advance over the hills has flanked the valley positions. On its face this appears an utterly incongruous state of affairs.

The explanation of it is difficult to find. The question arises, is the advance due to a pending political collapse of Bulgaria? Did the Allies have previous knowledge of this condition and begin the advance, knowing that it would be successful?

It is noteworthy in this connection that the advance so far has been made primarily by the Serbs. The other forces have been struggling for small gains, while the Serbs have gone forward in leaps and bounds. This is due to the fact that the warfare in these mountains is guerrilla warfare as opposed to the finely organized and nicely co-ordinated efforts in France. And in this guerrilla warfare there are no better fighters than the Serbs. Again, the Bulgars are sick to death of the war. They have been kept in place only through the leaven of German and Austrian troops who have been judiciously intermingled with the rank and file. These have possibly had to be withdrawn, leaving the Bulgars alone with a single German division. Or it may be that the Germans are no longer able to hold the Bulgars in check, and that they are determined to get out of the war and care little whether they win or lose.

At any rate whatever the cause of this surprising development may be—and this is the new riddle of the Balkans—the situation of the Bulgars is fast becoming most uncomfortable. On all sections of the battlefront from Lake Doiran on the east to the Adriatic coast on the west the pressure is being exerted. The Serbs by the most efficient and active sort of work have driven a wedge deep into the Bulgar line, the width of which at the top is from Prilep to the Vardar Valley, and the depth of which is about forty miles. This wedge is spreading out at the apex east and west, and is gradually forcing the retirement of the line on the entire front. The result is that the Bulgarian situation is daily becoming more and more desperate

British Progress in Palestine



Continuing their rapid progress up the coast the British have occupied the important port of Haifa, (1,) which, it is believed, will be General Allenby's new base, and have also reached Ancre. On the east side of the Jordan the Turkish bands cut off in the northern region are fleeing southward to Amman, (2,) closely followed by Allied forces, which were last reported at Es-Salt, fifteen miles to the north of Amman. They have also been cut off to the south, where Arabs have occupied Ma'an, southeast of the Dead Sea, on the Medina-Damascus Railroad, and are driving the enemy in that region northward toward Amman. Escape to the east is made impossible by the Syrian desert.

AUSTRIANS BEATEN BY CZECHOSLOVAKS

CHARGES FOE WITH DAGGERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—German and Magyar troops have been defeated by a Czechoslovak unit on the Italian front in a fierce battle which the latter ended by a desperate attack with daggers, says an official dispatch received today from Rome. The valor displayed by the Czechoslovaks was such that it brought from Premier Orlando of Italy this telegram of congratulations to the Czechoslovak National Council in Paris:

"Cordially express my admiration at the intrepid firmness and valor of the Czechoslovak Division on the heights of the Alps, where bravely a people fighting for its liberty conquered the aggressive fury fed by hate. May this be a good omen for the final battle and victory!"

This action, the first in Italy in which the Czechoslovaks operated as a unit in their regular formation, took place on the Trentino front last Saturday. The enemy launched the attack prepared with greatest secrecy, east of Lake Garda. It appears from the dispatches that the Germans and Magyars had no definite territorial objective, but planned the stroke in the hope of gaining support for the Austrian claim that the Czechoslovaks would give way voluntarily when faced by the army of the country that so long had held them in subjugation.

It is believed in Rome and by officials of the Czechoslovak Headquarters here that if the Austrians had achieved even a local success they would, after executing as traitors any Czechoslovaks taken prisoners, have again affirmed that the Czechoslovaks do not wish to fight against Austria.

In describing the battle, the dispatch says that the assault was begun at daybreak by picked detachments composed exclusively of Magyars and Germans under General Schiesser. It followed a destructive artillery fire in which thousands of gas shells were used. The Czechoslovaks went over the top to meet the foe, and the first column was forced to retire. The second column, after desperate fighting, succeeded in occupying a part of the Czechoslovak position, but was driven out after a bloody battle.

No prisoners were taken by either side.

GERMANS INTENSIFY GUNFIRE ON OUR FRONT

But It Is Aimless and Ineffective —29 Germans Are Taken in Raids.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN LORRAINE, Sept. 24, Associated Press.)—The Germans in the last twenty-four hours have increased the intensity of their heavy gunfire on the American front, which apparently denotes the greatest uneasiness on the part of the enemy. Otherwise the German activity has been confined to raids and patroling.

Although there appeared to be no set purpose for the vague fire of the German artillery, which did no damage, the enemy spent the entire night in bombarding the back areas southwest of Kammes and kept up a bombardment both north and south of Pont-à-Mousson for hours at a stretch.

The German fire was a little more intense, but no more effective, than it had been since the Germans retired as the result of the American offensive in the region of St. Mihiel. It seemed to be directed aimlessly and purposelessly, for the enemy viciously shelled the fields and woods to the east of Bénoit doing no more damage than at the other points.

Very unfavorable weather continued to hold the infantry and aviators on both sides fairly inactive, and the enemy ventured from his trenches only rarely, and few of his fliers were seen.

The Americans carried out a successful raid south of Vilcey after violent artillery preparation, which netted five prisoners, and patroling expeditions at various points on the line.

Evidence of the enemy's nervousness was put [illegible] throughout the night and continued all day. Although no offensive movement could have provoked it, the Germans shelled the American lines west of Preney and sent over a strong patrol at this point, which, however, was easily repulsed.

On a narrow sector of the front and in Toknis, immediately behind it, a total of 3,000 shells, including many gas projectiles, was sent over. This bombardment did little damage.

NAME ARMY OFFICERS IN RAINCOAT SCANDAL

Certain papers pertaining to the prosecution of the various raincoat manufacturers now under indictment for defrauding the Government out of large sums of money have disappeared, it was said yesterday, and Government agents are now trying to trace them. One theory is that the papers have been destroyed in an effort to protect persons who are suspected of being concerned in the frauds, but who, for lack of evidence, have not as yet been indicted. The papers which are missing were seized by an agent of the Military Intelligence Service, who found them in the office of one of the raincoat manufacturers now under indictment. The agent turned the papers over to his superiors, from whose files they have disappeared.

The trial of Felix Gouled and David Podell, two of the indicted men, which began several days ago, will be resumed tomorrow morning before Judge Hutcheson in the Federal District Court. The trial was adjourned yesterday because of the illness of Judge Hutcheson. Only one witness, Daniel Davidson, an agent of the Department of Justice, was examined yesterday. Davidson testified to a conversation which he overheard between Gouled and Harry Rosenfield, the last named being one of the principal Government witnesses. Davidson was hidden in the room at the time.

Special Agent Davidson in the course of his testimony stated that on July 18 and 19 last, by prearrangement, he was hidden in a closet in the establishment of the Rosenfield Raincoat Company, at 232 Fourth Avenue, and while there heard and took notes of conversations that occurred between Harry Rosenfield and Felix Gouled regarding the obtaining of raincoat contracts through Captain Vaughan.

When Gouled entered the place and sat down alongside the closet in which he was concealed, Davidson said, Rosenfield complained to the promoter that he thought the other rubber men were against him and that was why he could not get a contract from the War Department. When Rosenfield further stated that he could not live on promises, Special Agent Davidson says he overheard Gouled say: "Don't worry. I like you, Rosenfield, and I am going to let you in on a good thing. It's a proposition that only two men know about and is for the making of gas masks."

When Rosenfield complained that he could not live on promises, Davidson said Gouled replied, "You will be taken care of. Colonel Hirsch and Major Schofield are in this thing, too. Colonel Hirsch gets 15 cents a garment and I get 5 per cent., but that does not show in the contract. I am going to telephone from your office tomorrow to Captain Vaughan and he will fix up things."

UNITE IN CONGRESS TO PROTECT COTTON

Southern Members Form a Committee to Combat Price-Fixing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—An unusual procedure was resorted to today by Southern members of Congress to safeguard the interests of the cotton growers in the fixing of prices, as an outgrowth of the recent appointment of a stabilizing committee by Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board. In conference, a dozen of the Southern Representatives and Senators agreed to the appointment of an "informal committee," whose function it will be to protect, as far as possible, the cotton growers' rights.

The committee consists of Senators Smith of South Carolina, Chairman; Hoke Smith of Georgia, Sheppard of Texas, Ransdell of Louisiana, and Simmons of North Carolina, and Representatives Lever of South Carolina, Heflin of Alabama, Young of Texas, and Lee of Georgia. This committee, it was agreed, would confer with the committee appointed by Mr. Baruch from time to time. The Southern representatives in Congress have been greatly exercised over the possibility of fixing cotton prices. They assert that the cotton industry in the South would suffer such a loss by this action that it would no longer be profitable for growers to continue planting crops.

The committee does not hesitate to say that it will endeavor to prevent any legislation that may be offered looking to price-fixing for the South's staple product. The committee had its first conference with Mr. Baruch today. It expects to see President Wilson later in the week.

TURKS IN A TRAP EAST OF JORDAN

Cut Off on Railroad by British to North and by Arabs to South.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—British cavalry, pushing up the Mediterranean coast of Palestine, have occupied Haifa and Acre, it is officially announced today.

The Turkish bands east of the Jordan are in a predicament similar to that which resulted in the round-up of the armies that were operating between the Jordan and the sea.

They have been cut off on the Damascus-Medina, or Hedjaz, railroad to the north and are retiring southward on Amman, pursued by Australian, New Zealand, Jewish, and other troops, who at last accounts had reached Es-Salt, fifteen miles above Amman. Southeast of the Dead Sea they are being driven north toward Amman by the Hedjaz Arabs, who have occupied Ma'an, on the railroad. To the east of them escape is cut off by the Syrian Desert.

The official statement issued by the War Office today says that the total number of Turks taken prisoner will exceed largely the 25,000 already reported. It reads:

East of the Jordan the enemy is withdrawing toward Amman, on the Hedjas railway, pursued by Australian, New Zealand, West Indian, and Jewish troops, who have reached Es-Salt, capturing guns and prisoners.

In the north cavalry have occupied Haifa and Acre after slight opposition.

The number of prisoners is increasing, and the total will exceed largely the 25,000 already mentioned.

Arab forces of King Hussein have occupied Ma'an and are harassing bodies of the enemy retreating northward toward Amman along the Hedjaz railway.

General Allenby's success was achieved against a total enemy strength of 100,000 Turks, according to unofficial dispatches reaching London. Figures as to the number of men in the Turkish Army in the Holy Land have hitherto referred merely to rifle strength. The Turkish reserves consisted of troops that recently arrived from the Caucasus.

Not the least remarkable feature of General Allenby's achievement lies in the reorganization he effected in his forces since the German offensive on the western front last March necessitated the withdrawal to France of a part of his army.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—"Side by side with General Allenby and the French Colonel de Piepape," writes the Echo de Paris, "we must mention Colonel Lawrence as having played a part of the greatest importance in the Palestine victory.

"The name of Colonel Lawrence, who placed at the disposal of the British leader his experience in the country and his talent for organization, will become historic in Great Britain. At the head of the cavalry force which he had formed with Bedouins and Druses, he cut the railway at Derat, thus cutting the enemy communications between Damascus and Haifa and the eastern side of the Jordan.

"Troops of the King of the Hedjaz are co-operating with great skill and remarkable effect in these victorious operations against the Turks."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 23, (via London, Sept. 24.)—Concerning operations in Palestine, the official statement today from the Turkish War Office says:

On the Palestine front rearguard fights are being conducted with great skill. They are facilitating and permitting the accomplishment of our measures on both sides of the Jordan.

ALL TURKEY'S WOES DUE TO GERMAN GUILE

British Mission Recalls the Record of Selfishness and Neglect Against Teuton Exploiters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—In General Allenby's brilliant victory over the Turks in Palestine the British Military Mission here finds great satisfaction, not only because it virtually wipes out Ottoman power there, but because of its demonstration anew of the disaster that accompanies German démination and exploitation of the Turkish Army.

Field Marshal Liman von Sanders commanded the three armies of about 100,000 men in Palestine, two of which General Allenby annihilated, von Sanders himself barely escaping with his staff. The third is in flight, and its defeat will cut the Turkish garrisons at Asir and Yemen off from Europe and break the hold of the Turk upon Hejez.

"The masterly conception of General Allenby's plan will thus be realized," says a statement today by the British Mission, "and there is a fair promise that its execution will tend to outbid the conception.

"The Turks have a long account of selfishness and neglect against the Germans; disasters in 1912 and 1913, abortive and disastrous offensives at Sarikamiss and against the Suez Canal at the beginning of the war, and the waste of their man power in the Dardanelles. The full effect of this Dardanelles campaign has not been correctly appreciated by the world. The loss of Basra, Bagdad, Mecca, and Jerusalem, the almost inevitable loss of Medina, the Turkish lives sacrificed in order to provide the German exploitation of Rumania and the isolation of their Arabian garrisons must also provide a bitter memory.

"The present Turkish advance in the Caucasus has been carried out not with the assistance but in defiance of the Germans, and this with the isolated success under Turkish command at Kut forms the only entry on the credit side of the book. The net result has been for Turkey the loss of territory and prestige and the depletion of her manpower which can only provide a source of keen satisfaction in Bulgaria.

"It is a marvelous thing how long the Turks have submitted to the machinations of the Committee of Union and Progress, and the amateurisms of her German bear-leaders who display ability only in their escape from the consequence of their interference and in their avoidance of the battlefield. After losing Jerusalem, Falkenheih of 'thunder bolt' fame made good his escape to Europe, while Kress von Kressenstein obtained access to a new zone of interference in the Caucasus. Liman von Sanders escaped the net thrown around his armies, including his German body guard, by the short space of six hours, and thanks to Turkish gullibility and the protection fo the Committee of Union and Progress may yet survive to sport his iron crescent in the Unter den Linden.

LONDON, Sept. 24, (via Montreal.)—French newspapers emphasize that it is the German high command which has been beaten in Palestine and Macedonia. Field Marshal von Sanders commanded the Turks in Palestine, while the Balkan front was under the direction of General Scholtz, and one of the defeated armies was commanded by General van Steinben.

EXEMPTION CLAIMS SPEED DRAFT WORK

Registrants Asked to Aid Boards by Indicating Their Attitude Toward Deferment.

CROWDER ISSUES APPEAL

Claims May Be Made by Employers or Any Competent Third Person—Lottery Postponed to Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Registrants under the new selective service law were asked today by Provost Marshal General Crowder to aid in speeding up the work of classification by indicating in their questionnaires whether a claim was made for exemption, either on the grounds of dependency or employment in an essential industry.

While the local boards have the authority to grant deferred classification because of the facts set down in the questionnaire, General Crowder believes that a definite reply on the part of the registrants would result in the saving of much time. It does not follow, however, that deferred classification will be granted to all who ask it.

It is probable now that the draft lottery will not be held until next week in order to give the local boards more time in which to correct errors in the serial numbers of registrants. Numbers for all registrants will be drawn, but lads of 18 and men between 36 and 45 will not be classified until the boards have given classification to those between 19 and 36, who were first to receive questionnaires.

There have been so many inquiries about the authority of boards to grant deferred classification that General Crowder today issued this statement:

"In order once again to correct numerous impressions which appear to exist in some quarters, this office desires to reassert that there has been no change made in the regulations regarding the authority of local boards to grant deferred classification to registrants on the ground of dependency. Local boards have always had the right to extend deferred classification to registrants, irrespective of whether the registrants do or do not make claims. A registrant is, therefore, at liberty, if he sees fit, to trust to the scrutiny of the board to discover by examination of his questionnaire the necessity for his deferment. But, pressed as they have been in their word, boards have been and will be prone to defer to the judgment of the individual himself on the point that he has no dependents who require that he continue in civil life, and to refrain in such cases from giving deferred classification on the ground of dependency.

"As I explained in my statement of Sept. 9, addressed to employers and other representatives of industry, the boards will welcome and need all the aid that can be furnished by the indication of a claim made for deferment. With this aid, the process will become a simple and speedy one. Time and labor will not be wasted on needless search, and ample time will be gained for attention to those cases where the claim is explicity raised.

"It should be borne in mind by the individual registrant that the military program of this country, built around the desire of all concerned to win victory for our cause as quickly as possible, demands of the selective system the utmost speed in classifying the 13,000,000 approximately who registered on Sept. 12. If all these 13,000,000 registrants were to decline to aid the boards by indicating their own attitude regarding deferment and were to rely entirely on the ability of the boards to perceeive the propriety of making deferment, the whole process of raising the army would be seriously hampered and delayed. This applies equally to those entitled to deferment on the grounds of dependency and those on the ground of necessary occupational employment. Either the claim should be made by the registrant, or by a competent third person in his behalf."

The numbering of the registration cards of the 800,000 men who registered in New York on Sept. 12 is about completed. The serial numbers are now bulletined in the headquarters of the 189 local district boards. Registrants desiring to find out their serial numbers should get that information from the board for the district in which they live.

DUKE OF AOSTA AMAZED BY ALLIED VICTORIES

Did Not Believe Vast Offensive Possible Before Next Spring, He Says.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Discussing the war situation today in an interview he gave to the foreign editor of the Matin, the Duke of Aosta, commander of the Third Italian Army, said:

"What the allied troops are doing against the German Army fills me with admiration and wonder. I freely admit that I never believed this vast offensive would be possible before next Spring. That it could be launched this year in the middle of the German attack and lead to such victories is a marvel, and also is proof that for Marshal Foch the problem of reserves has ceased to be a care.

"Reserves! The whole question lies there. If one is certain of being able to reinforce and relieve the troops engaged while the action is proceeding one can boldly embark on no matter what operation.

"But," continued the Duke, "now that we have the upper hand there must be no stopping. We must beat them completely. We owe it to ourselves. On our front, also, the enemy has revealed himself to be inspired by savage barbarity. The air attacks on our open towns, the slavery imposed upon the population of the invaded territory, and a hundred other revelations of his infamy have awakened in all Italian hearts the ancestral hate for the oppressor of our race. For my part, I cannot imagine a peace giving the Germans and the Austrians the right to come peacefully to trade and travel in our country.

"But let us leave politics. I am a soldier, and that is all I want to be—a soldier like the youngest of them here. Those around me know that, and I think they return it in devotion and affection. Go and see them. You will behold heroes—those who have repelled the enemy, those of Venice who have occupied the delta of the Piave. They live, cling on, and fight under such conditions that one must bow before them. Thanks to them, Venice breathes freely, awaiting the day of revenge."

The Duke described how the Austrian offensive along the Piave River was stopped.

"We had to deal with an enemy who had prepared everything minutely," he said, "but we were forewarned. I did not have a moment's uneasiness.

"I let him advance across the Piave along certain fronts as far as Monasterio, and then when he was just where I wanted him my batteries opened a concentric fire. What butchery! The Austrians will long remember it. The next day I viewed the battlefield. God knows I saw massacres during the three years I fought on the terrible Carso plateau, but my eyes never before gazed on such a spectacle."

WOMEN IN VICTORY ARMY.

New Organization Will Not Heed German Peace Propaganda.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 24.—Two hundred women, from every county in the State, representing Y. W. C. A., National Catholic War Relief Association, Jewish Welfare Board, Salvation Army, War Camp Community League, Y. M. C. A., and American Library Association, pledged themselves as members of a new "Victory Army" here this morning. They will "think victory, talk victory, and work for victory" until they "go over the top with the boys in khaki," according to the resolution.

German peace propaganda will have no effect on this new home army, to which Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, wife of Governor Whitman, pledged the loyal support of every woman in the State.

Nitric Acid Production Has Risen Ninefold, Declares a Chemical Show Speaker.

ARMY ASSURED OF SUPPLY

Franke Outlines Improvements Adopted by the Industry to Meet War Needs.

The American armies now in the field will not be prevented from going beyond the Hindenburg line for lack of high explosives. This was made plain in an address delivered yesterday by E. J. Franke at the National Exposition of Chemical Industries, held at the Grand Central Palace.

Mr. Franke, who is service manager of the American Cyanamid Company, had as his subject, "What War Did for Nitric Acid." The speaker presented figures to prove that present production of nitric acid was nine times greater than in 1914. Mr. Franke said the present rate of importation was about 1,600,000 tons of nitrate per annum, and since very little is going into storage and the total consumption for purposes other than acid manufacture had increased but slightly if at all, it was estimated that at least 1,000,000 tons of nitrate per annum is being converted into nitric acid in this country. This, the speaker said, was equivalent to 650,000 tons of 100 per cent. nitric acid, of which nearly five-sixths is being used for the manufacture of military explosives.

Mr. Franke pointed out that the building of new nitrate of soda acid plants, both by the Government and by individuals, to meet war's necessities, offered an excellent opportunity for the introduction of improvements. As showing the relatively unimportant production of the acid before the war, Mr. Franke said the production of nitric acid in 1914, according to the Federal census of manufactures, was 78,589 tons of average strength, and 112,124 tons of mixed acid. According to other data given in the census, these figures represent about 80,000 tons of 100 per cent. nitratic acid.

"All of this acid," Mr. Franke said, "was produced from nitrate of soda, consuming about 160,000 tons. The pre-war importation of nitrate of soda amounted to about 500,000 tons per annum; hence the normal consumption for purposes other than the manufacture of nitric acid was about 400,000 tons."

Tells of Improvements.

The speaker went on to say that as the result of improvements due to the urgency of the situation, the average charge of 5,000 pounds of nitrate per retort had been increased to about 7,500 pounds. The retorts, instead of being operated in batches, were now operated in rotation. Instead of three runs per retort per day, the usual practice now is two runs per day. Temperatures are also more carefully controlled than in the past.

"The results of these improvements," the speaker continued, "is an increase in the amount of nitrogen recovered as acid from an average of about 78-80 per cent. to about 92-94 per cent. of the nitrogen in the nitrate of soda. At the same time, the labor requirement has been somewhat decreased. A good beginning also has been made in the recovery of nitrose gases produced in the various nitration operations. In some of the systems that have been devised as much as one-half of the fumes is recovered. The collection of the gases from the many nitration units, however, is still a serious problem. While the aggregate amount of acid recovered is large, it represents only a small fraction of the gases that are being wasted."

"The nitric acid production rate in the Spring of 1919 will be about 650,000 tons from nitrate of soda," the speaker said, "and about 225,000 tons by oxidation of ammonia obtained from the air, a total of 875,000 tons of 100 per cent. acid. This is about nine times the pre-war consumption. In 1914 the industrial explosives industry consumed about 50,000 tons per annum, while all other uses took only about 40,000 tons."

Wants Resources Conserved.

Dr. Charles Baskerville, Professor of Chemistry, College of the City of New York, in a review of the development of chemical industries in the United States since July, 1914, told the assembled chemists that the use of the poison gases in the war had been a stimulating factor in causing the American people in general to realize the importance of chemistry in the maintenance of life. "All persons who can read," Dr. Baskerville said, "and some who only run, have heard of this novel weapon in war and the dire results of its use, and so many of them now for the first time begin to realize the industrial significance of our occult science. Far-sighted industrialists in the United States have for some time appreciated the utility of chemistry and its researches. They have built up larges businesses and made fortunes as a result."

The speaker called attention to the great waste of natural resources in the United States, and asked for the conservation of our lumber, the utilization of coal dumps and mine wastes, and called for the development of hydro-electric power, which he said, would "release the necessary fuel for ocean transportation, supply energy to run our factories, and keep us warm in Winter."

Emerson P. Poste, chemical engineer with the Elyria Enamel Products Company, read a paper at the symposium, in which he told of progress in the modern art of enameling. The educational program was continued in the evening, when addresses were made by Professor J. A. Switzer of the University of Tennessee, and Herbert C. Henegar of the American Zinc Company, on the water power potentialities and mineral resources of the South Appalachian Mountain range, with especial reference to East Tennessee. There were also motion pictures showing many phases of the oil industry.

Open Gates to Enlisted Men.

During the morning and afternoon hours yesterday the machinery and other exhibits were studied for the most part by visiting chemists, high school boys, and many women. Last night, however, a record-breaking crowd thronged the three floors of the exposition. The exposition management threw open the gates of the Palace to all men in uniform, and these, both soldiers and sailors, were quick to avail themselves of an opportunity to inspect the exhibits, particularly those relating to military efficiency or preparedness. The gas mask, grenade, and shell booths, in charge of officers of the Army Chemical Warfare Service, were the chief centres of interest last night, and the men in charge were kept busy answering queries of interested visitors.

The shortage of fuel and raw materials has received the attention of the chemists. One of the exhibits attracting notice of visitors yesterday was a carburization system for burning powdered coal. Another exhibit attracting many visitors was one designed to popularize the use of fish skin as a substitute for leather. Fishskin tiaras and necklaces have been worn by women, but the fishskin shoes displayed yesterday were a new and rather starting feature of the show. This afternoon at 2:30 a symposium will be held, devoted to a discussion of potash. Motion pictures will be shown in the evening illustrating the story of potash, a monopoly enjoyed by Germany up to the outbreak of the war.

Many Send Clothes for Belgians.

Hundreds of articles of cast-off clothing for the destitute men, women and children of occupied Belgium and France were contributed to the New York Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday and a big motor van full of garments was taken to the receiving centre at 7 West Thirty-ninth Street. Ancell H. Ball, Chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign, asked other intending contributors not to send to the Red Cross until next Monday, when the New York campaign will officially begin. Arrangements are being made to have many receiving centres all over the city, where every one may conveniently send clothes.

FAVORS CONVICT WAR LABOR

Earle Advocates Federal Control of All Charity Institutions.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 24.—Federal control of the charitable institutions of the country as an aid in the utilization of all the available man power, including the use of convicts on war work, was advocated today by E. P. Earle, a member of the New Jersey State Department of Charities and Corrections. Mr. Earle expressed his ideas at the fortnightly conference of the superintendents of the New Jersey charitable and correctional institutions, held in the office of Commissioner Burdette G. Lewis in the State House.

"Our floating prison and reformatory population in the United States," said Mr. Earle, "numbers nearly half a million men, which will be a helpful auxiliary force to the army, but as an entirely separate and distinct organization. The plan for the utilization of prison man-power in work essential to the conduct of the war, in service under separate organization, is now worked out in every detail by Commissioner Lewis, with the full approval of the State Board of Charities and Corrections.

"It is especially practical and in line with common sense, for it recognizes that few prisoners can be trained to do work of a mechanical nature, either because of their lack of innate capacity or because of the insufficiency of time to train them to do specialized work. As to the proposal for the employment of prisoners in general on war supply contracts, their work will of necessity be limited to the simplest kind of mechanical labor.

"The scientific classification of prisoners in the two State correctional institutions which the Commissioner, assisted by his staff of medical and institutional officers, is conducting in New Jersey, will by no means exhaust the possibilities of the plan. While it will furnish a substantial number of prisoner workers in Class C, the essential industrial working unit, it would be necessary to include in the test several other populous States to get an adequate measure of the proportion of man power for the auxiliary military unit, Class B, and for Class A, now available in our penal and correctional institutions, for purposes of active war service in France or wherever the demand for man power may present itself."

DEFER HEARST RESOLUTION.

Newark Defense Council, in Lively Tilt, Lacks Quorum to Vote.

When the Executive Committee of the State Council of National Defense of New Jersey, at its meeting in Newark yesterday afternoon, took up a proposed resolution condemning the Hearst newspapers, City Commissioner Thomas L. Raymond of Newark, Chairman of the committee, called attention to the fact that there was not a quorum present, and, accordingly, the resolution was laid over.

General Bird Spencer of Passaic, who introduced the resolution, spoke in favor of its adoption before Commissioner Raymond noticed the lack of a quorum.

"Can you vouch for the statements in that resolution?" asked Mr. Raymond.

"The facts have been presented daily in the New York newspapers, and I haven't seen any denial," General Spencer answered. "I think this committee should have taken action in this matter. Thus far we have been a negative body."

After Mr. Raymond remarked that there were not present the eight active members necessary to constitute a quorum, Mrs. Charles W. Stockton asked: "Well, how did you come to pass other business today?"

"The other things were necessary. This isn't a case where it is absolutely necessary to pass this resolution today," Commissioner Raymond replied.

SMITH TO SOUND KEYNOTE.

Democratic Campaign to Open with Formal Notifications Tomorrow.

Alfred E. Smith will deliver the keynote speech of the Democratic campaign in Syracuse tomorrow evening, when, with the other candidates on the State ticket, he will receive formal notification of his nomination. The notification is to be made by D-Cady Herrick.

The entire Democratic State Committee, the newly selected 150 auxiliary woman members of that body, and many Democrats from up-State will attend the ceremonies. The make-up of the committee will be made public in Syracuse tomorrow.

Ex-Judge Herrick started for Syracuse last night and Charles F. Murphy will go this afternoon to attend conferences of leaders before the notification.

That President Wilson will be better served by a Democratic administration in New York than he could be in the event that Governor Whitman should be returned to power will be the contention in a campaign to be made for Mr. Smith by groups of citizens from allied countries recently formed by the Young Men's Democratic League. Albert Père is Chairman of the Belgian group, George Le Grande of the French, Charles Blatchford of the British, John Cavinato of the Italian, and José Fernandez of the Cuban.

WASHINGTON PLANS TO STABILIZE WAGES

Proposes System of Community Agreements to Protect Employers and Workers.

PRIORITY TO ACT AS LEVER

Government Employment Bureau Also to be Used to Reduce Labor Agitation to a Minimum.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Government is about to adopt measures to enforce stability of wages during the war. Plans under discussion between representatives of manufacturers and labor, and officials of the War and Navy Departments charged with letting enormous contracts, it was learned today, provide for a nation-wide system of community or industry agreements, in which both employes and employers will participate and which will be enforced for the agreement period through Government priorities power, or labor employment pressure.

This plan has received tentative approval of representatives of manufacturers and labor interests, and will be discussed further tomorrow with a delegation from the National Industrial Conference Board.

In this connection, it became known today, a number of Government agencies dealing with labor problems—the War and Navy Departments, Shipping Board, Railroad Administration, Labor Department, Labor Adjustment Board, War Labor Policies Board and others— probably will be co-ordinated soon under a new committee of representatives from each. One of the principal reasons for this action, which may be taken by executive order of President Wilson, is to facilitate the enforcement of the Government's wage stabilizing policy. A conference of different agencies was held today to discuss methods of eliminating duplication of effort.

Rapidly rising labor costs, stimulated by competition among industries for employes and by the Government's prime necessity for production have forced the War and Navy Departments to take the lead in promoting stabilizing measures, officials explained today. In doing this they hope to guarantee to employes interests fair wages, in many cases higher than they now receive, but always uniform for an industrial district or for an employment group, and stable for the period of the agreement. These agreements, lasting probably for six months, will be concluded between the Government representatives and labor and simultaneously between Government representatives and manufacturers.

For their part manufacturers will be called on to pay no more and no less than the standard scale, and workmen will be asked to abide by the scale without threats of strike or other labor disturbance. If manufacturers refuse to pay the standard wages, or pay more and thereby unsettle the community conditions, they might find their supplies of fuel and materials cut off through priorities orders. If labor organizations violate the agreement their members would be barred from seeking work through employment agencies, all of which are now Government controlled.

This plan, as outlined today by officials of the War and Navy Departments, would be subject to many variations, but the Government's power to insist on a minimum of labor agitation in the interest of war production would remain.

The proposed plan is an amplification of that adopted recently by the War and Navy Departments in settling threatened strikes of machinists in New York, Buffalo, and Rochester.

HOUSE FOR WAGE INCREASE.

Passes Bill Increasing Pay of Government Employes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Minimum wages of $3 a day for civil employes, exclusive of those in the postal service, who have worked for the government for two years or more, are provided in a bill passed by the House to-day and sent to the Senate. More than 66,000 persons would be affected, according to Representative Nolan of California, Republican, its author, who estimated the total increased cost to the Government at $20,000,000.

The bill would become effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year. It fixes a minimum daily wage of $3, but where the persons are employed by the hour the wage would be 37½ cents an hour, or if employed by the month $90 a month, and by the year, $1,080.

ENTOMB CARDINAL IN THE CATHEDRAL

IS LAUDED AS A PATRIOT

BODY PLACED UNDER ALTAR

Striking Scene When Procession Halts as Musicians Sound the American Anthem.

Just as the sun faded from the tall stained windows and twilight dimmed St. Patrick's Cathedral, the great bronze coffin containing the body of John Cardinal Farley was lowered into the crypt beneath the high altar late yesterday afternoon, the stone flooring was replaced, and the funeral services for the great prelate which had lasted six days came to an end.

Five days had the Cardinal's body lain in state while more than 500,000 persons had passed his bier, and then yesterday, the sixth day, civic officials and church dignitaries had rendered him for four hours the most impressive and solemn tribute ever accorded in this city. Requiems had been sung and resung, prayers for the dead had been told, litanies had been chanted, and chanted again, and then yesterday, when the church employed all its ceremony in final regard for its departed dignitary, 10,000 persons knelt in prayer, while equal that number stood, many blocks from the church, patiently and silently following the service by the chiming and tolling of the bells that marked some especially solemn passage.

Throughout the concluding services yesterday there ran a note of patriotism which recalled the strong American stand the Cardinal had taken with respect to the war and its problems. The black and purple of ecclesiastical mourning and the red white and blue were the only colors in the church; the national colors were the only emblems in the processions; Bishop Hickey's eulogy had a patriotic ring; and there was one stirring moment when the three Cardinals stood under a huge American flag while a band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Dawn had scarcely come before the first thousands began to arrive at the cathedral. Down and up Fifth Avenue and from the parallel streets they came, hurrying despite the earliness of the hour to be sure of getting inside the edifice. As the minutes passed the crowds increased and the steps of the cathedral became black with mourners. Police Inspector Frank Morris, who had arrived with four Captains, six Lieutenants, forty Sergeants, and 400 policemen, realized that the crowd would exceed expectations, and sent in a call for 800 additional men. It was finally necessary to shut off all traffic on Fifth and Madison Avenues from Fifty-second Street to Forty-eighth Street, and to hold those without cards of admittance back of lines at those points.

The doors of St. Patrick's Cathedral were opened at 8 o'clock, and the lines of ticket holders began to file in. The tickets had been distributed by sections, and holders were directed to the doors nearest their seats, the plan permitting the rapid filling of the church without confusion. Within half an hour the seats were practically all taken.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the Marine Corps Band and a detachment of 500 sailors from the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station arrived, and forty-five minutes later the procession formed and moved from the archiepiscopal residence, Madison Avenue and Fiftieth Street. Through Fiftieth Street to Fifth Avenue the cortège, sprinkled with the khaki of the army, the blue of the navy, the scarlet of high church rank, moved slowly to the strains of the Dead March in "Saul." At the main doors of the cathedral the band was stilled, and on either side, bandsmen with muffled drums took up station.

Order of the Procession.

To the long roll of the deadened drums the procession passed under a great American flag and down the aisle in the following order:

Cross Bearer and Acolytes.
Cardinal's Committee.
Catholic Club.
Knights of Columbus.
Mayor Hylan and City Officials.
British Representatives, including Consul General Clive Bagley, Commanders Blackwood and Bolt, Colonel Athill, Captain Durham, and Geoffrey Butler.
French Representatives, including General Clandon, Consul General Gaston Liebert, Stephan Lauzanne, and Marcel Knecht.
Spanish and Italian Representatives.
U. S. Army, Marine Corps, and Navy Representatives.
Cross Bearer and Acolytes.
Religious Orders in Full Habits.
Visiting Clergy.
Diocesan Clergy.
U. S. Army and Navy Chaplains, led by Dr. William T. Manning.
Provincials of Religious Orders.
Cross Bearer and Acolytes.
The Very Reverend and Right Reverend Monsignori.
The Most Reverend Archbishops.
Cross Bearer and Acolytes.
Cardinal Begin of Quebec with Ministers.
Cross Bearer.
Cardinal O'Connell of Boston with Ministers.
Knights of St. Gregory.
Cross Bearer and Acolytes.
Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore with Ministers.
Cross Bearer and Acolytes.

As the procession walked slowly down the aisles the congregation stood facing the moving line. At the altar, having passed the catafalque, all but the monsignori, the Archbishops, the Bishops, and the Cardinals turned to one side, later to be seated in chairs placed throughout the length of the centre aisle. Clad in full robes of office and with black plush-clad boy pages holding their long, lace-caught trains of scarlet silk, the Cardinals passed down the aisle, but halted when midway. Turning so that they faced the door they waited for a moment; outside the Marine Band took up "The Star-Spangled Banner," and instantly every person in the church turned, too, toward the music and stood at attention. As the last bars of the anthem, softened by the distance, sounded, the organ began, almost unnoticed, Chopin's March Funerbre, and the dignitaries again faced the altar and proceeded.

Ascending the dais, with Cardinal Gibbons first by right of rank and age, the scarlet-capped prelates were enthroned on the Gospel side of the altar. When they were seated Archbishop Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate and celebrant of the solemn high pontifical mass of requiem, entered from the sacristy of the Holy Virgin and ascended a throne on the Epistle side of the altar. Accompanying Archbishop Bonzano was the Rev. John H. Farley, S. J., nephew of the dead Cardinal, who acted as Deacon, and the Rev. William Livingston, his Subdeacon. The deacons of honor for the mass were the Right Rev. Mgrs. John Edwards and Michael J. Lavelle.

Because the whole North American Cardinalate, supplemented by seven Archbishops and fourteen Bishops, were ranged on both sides of the gold-ornamented altar, the ceremonies took on a particularly profound note of impressiveness.

After the officiating prelates and clergymen had taken the places assigned to them, the 10,000 in the church arose and remained standing while Archbishop Bonzano changed the robes he had worn in the procession and donned those of a celebrant of a mass. While the sacred vestments were being blessed and kissed prior to delivery to the Archbishop, the boy choir of 100 voices began the Kyrie, singing unaccompanied. Throughout the mass the boyishly clear voices poured out the ancient Gregorian chants, unaided by the organ. As the singing ended, the Epistle was chanted by the Rev. William Livingston, and as he intoned the lines the three Cardinals left their thrones and knelt in prayer before the altar, returning to their places while the choir rendered the "Dies Irae" of "Day of Judgment."

Acting as Deacon of the Mass, the Rev. John Farley intoned the Gospel, the congregation and prelates standing throughout. Unusual ceremony marked the approach of Archbishop Bonzano to the altar, the celebrant being escorted by a retinue of the Monsignori who formed on either side as he knelt and pronounced the opening words of the ritual, "Et introivo ad altare Del." At these words 10,000 heads as one were bowed on the pews, and, aside from the droning intonation of the ritual, the vast church was empty of sound.

Significant as this silence was, it became more tense and the mourning note deepened as the altar gongs sent warning of the approaching Offertory throughout the edifice. Once, twice, and then again the gong sounded, as, at the most sacred part of the mass, the Host was held up for consecration. Low and with tenderness the young voices from high in the back of the church brought the bowed heads up one by one as they began the "Agnus Dei," the sweeping melody breaking the spell that seemed to grip the worshippers. A few final prayers for the repose of the departed prelate's soul, and then the Archbishop was escorted to his throne, the Cardinals replaced their berettas, and the congregation arose and were seated to hear the eulogy.

Bishop Hickey's Eulogy.

Although it had been planned to have Cardinal Gibbons deliver the sermon, ecclesiastical rules and the weakness of the Baltimore prelate's voice prevented, and in his place Bishop Thomas F. Hickey of Rochester, N. Y., was chosen. Bishop Hickey, one of the Church's noted orators, delivered the eulogy from the pulpit to the left of the altar, overshadowing the catafalque where the Cardinal's body lay. The patriotic note was emphasized in Bishop Hickey's eulogy. Speaking in a clear voice, distinctly heard in every corner of the large edifice, he said:

"The world today is engaged in conflict unprecedented in character and extent. It is a tremendous struggle for the liberty and freedom of nations and the equality of man. It is a war that demands leadership of unusual ability to win a victory that will establish for us a solid, firm, lasting peace, and assure the stability of national rights. It is a victory that will be won only after an enduring struggle.

"The officer of high command holds a most responsible position. To him the lives of his men are intrusted and the life of the nation is in his keeping. Is it not true that victory or defeat is measured in the leadership of an army? It is also true that the eternal struggle for the salvation of our souls is in the relations between heaven and earth, the church which brings together God and creature.

"It is little wonder that John Cardinal Farley made a profound impression not alone in the metropolis, but also throughout the country and abroad as well. Time is measured by nineteen centuries since the tragedy of Calvary, where Christ died to emancipate man from his sins and to restore a hope of eternal victory."

Bishop Hickey then recounted the importance to Catholics of proper Christian education, and said that the dead Cardinal had considered the construction and opening of additional parochial and clerical schools the greatest item of his mission as Archbishop of New York. Continuing, he said:

"As Cardinal Farley from his throne looked over this great diocese upon ascending his princely seat he fully realized the great importance of more institutions for educating his young priests to help guide his great flock to God. He regarded nothing so closely akin as Chuch and seminary. Next to seminaries he regarded nothing so important as the education of the children of the diocese in Catholic schools.

"He knew that they must be educated in soul as well as in mind, so he instituted the building of innumerable parochial schools, and told the clergy to impres upon their laity the importance and the duty of educating their childerh in Catholic schools.

"At his word of appeal to the people of this great archdiocese the debts of this Cathedral and the diocese were wiped out. At his word alone did this tender, loving prince of the Church accomplish this great thing. The people, who loved him, responded at once. He loved the great City of New York. He saw in it great and divine strength, and he was confident of the strength and morality of the people. He saw, however, that it could be developed, so he built churches wherever they were needed.

Tells of Cardinal's Loyalty.

"When war was declared, this great agency of truth, the Catholic Church, stood behind President Wilson to a man and were among the leaders in buying Liberty bonds. Cardinal Farley himself was among the individual leaders in buying Liberty bonds, in conserving food, and he was in the fore ranks of all war workers. It was my good fortune to be present at one of Cardinal Farley's last appearances in public life—the funeral of the late Auxiliary Bishop Cusack.

"To show you the great loyalty and devotion this venerable Cardinal had for his country, I will tell you what he told a gathering of the clergy after the services. Speaking of the war he said, 'I am willing to make any sacrifice to supply chaplains. I will go on sick calls myself to let my priests go into the ranks.'

"The rights of children were foremost in that tender heart. It would be a task of great length to attempt to tell what he had done for children placed under his fatherly care. He established foundling asylums for children whom Nature had provided not with parents, and he took them as children of God and the Church. There was nothing better in life for his Eminence, John Cardinal Farley, Archbishop of New York, than to visit foundling and orphan asylums. He was the father of all who knew him, and never once did he flinch in the discharge of his duties.

"Only the Recording Angel will be able to tell his benefactions. It was nigh on to sixty years ago that a young man of noble lineage left Ireland to come to this great city and take up the work of God. John Cardinal Farley began his ecclesiastical studies at Fordham, studied later at St. Joseph's Seminary, Dunwoodie, and forty-eight years ago he received the unction of a priest and was assigned to a pastorate. Shortly afterward he entered an active part of the administration of the diocese under the illustrious Archbishop McCloskey, and for twelve years he discharged the duties of the office with faithfulness and devotion.

"During his pastorate of St. Gabriel's Church he won the affection and love of all who knew him, and so on through his career as Vicar General, Auxiliary Bishop and up to the high throne of Cardinal. Sixteen years ago this Autumn, in 1902, the Holy See appointed him Archbishop of New York.

"This venerable prelate regarded the same today in the eyes of the people as he did when a parish priest. He discharged the duties of this high office with zeal and devotion, and was known by the clergy throughout this country and abroad as one of the high chieftains of God. He realized his responsibility when he began his administration, but time does not permit, nor is it necessary, to tell the life story of our distinguished brother.

Cardinal Farley as a Leader.

"I will say a word of some of the characteristic virtues of this great leader. He knew as the head of this great diocese of New York that one of the essential needs of the diocese were seminaries and preparatory schools for young priests. During his administration he completed the work of his illustrious predecessor, and the Cathedral College in this city and St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie were founded. He well knew that upon the power of its priesthood the stability of the Church depended, and so the Cathedral College and St. Joseph's were the apple of his eye.

"He treasured them for the making and the perpetuation of Christ's ministry. If I were to place three symbols on his grave that would visualize his life, the first figure would be Faith, for he cherished tenderly the faith he practiced so faithfully. His was a virgin faith, untainted by doubt or suspicion and in all ways a guidance to him in his work. He goes to his grave a splendid memory of the faith and devotion given to him by his loving parents in Ireland. He was always cheerful and bright and full of confidence in God.

"The second symbol should be Hope, and the third would be Charity. His work and his benefactions were as deeply rooted in his soul as in his heart. One of the last temporal acts of his life was the signing of three checks—one for religion, the other for his country, and the third for the poor. This was as he had always lived—for God, his country, and the children of God.

"Farewell, farewell, father of this great archdiocese of New York! Today distinguished clergy abroad, clergy and laity of this beloved loyal land, let us join in one loving prayer that God may quickly bring home the great zealous John Cardinal Farley. May his soul rest in peace."

At the conclusion of the address, Archbishop Bonzano and the priests serving him changed from the vestments of the mass to robes of black, heavily brocaded in gold thread, preparatory to offering the solemn prayers for the dead at the catafalque. Accompanied by the chanting of the hundreds of priests assembled within the sanctuary rail, the Papal Delegate walked slowly to a position facing the bier.

He was preceded by torch bearers and by acolytes carrying candles. Then followed the ceremonies of chanting the last offices of the dead, the sprinkling of holy water over the coffin and the offering of incense. This part of the service consumed more than an hour, every one within the Cathedral meanwhile standing with bowed head.

The March Around the Bier.

When the last "Requiescat in Pace," had been intoned by Archbishop Bonzano and responded to by the choir with a final "Amen," the procession of mourners began its march around the bier. This was led by priests, followed by Bishops and Archbishops, the three Cardinals being the last to approach the catafalque.

Each of the prelates stood with bowed head and uttered a prayer, the venerable Cardinal Gibbons standing for a much longer time than his brother priests. When these had passed on to the sanctuary, the congregation formed in the middle aisle and under the direction of the ushers and the police began a solemn procession around the bier as the great bells in the twin steeples alternated with the chimes in a parting requiem.

All through the services, starting at 9:45 o'clock and continuing until about 2 o'clock, most of those in the church remained standing, but there were no indications of restlessness to mar the solemnity of the ceremony. When Cardinals Gibbons, O'Connell, and Begin finally passed the bier, the congregation, directed by the police, proceeded up the main aisle in double formation. The procession was kept moving with precision, but almost an hour was required to permit the last of the congregation to view the body, after which the doors of the church were closed. For several hours groups of men and women lingered in the vicinity of the archiepiscopal residence in Madison Avenue in the hope of catching glimpses of the visiting dignitaries.

After the faithful had viewed the body and left St. Patrick's the police closed the doors while the Cardinal's body was taken from the catafalque and placed upon a couch. A death mask then was taken by Miss Beatrice Wilson. After the mask had been completed the body was replaced in the coffin and carried to the entrance to the crypt back of the high altar. There final absolution was pronounced by the papal nuncio, Archbishop Bonzano, and by the following Archbishops: Dennis J. Dougherty of Buffalo, George W. Mundelein of Chicago, John J. Glennon of St. Louis, and Henry Moeller of Cincinnati.

The coffin was then borne into the crypt and laid to rest beside the coffins of Archbishop Hughes, who died in 1864; Cardinal McCloskey, who died in 1885, and Archbishop Corrigan, who died in 1902. The names of the three dead prelates are engraved on one of the brass doors of the vault, and the late Cardinal's will be the first inscribed on the other door. Over the entrance to the crypt is "The Archbishops of the Archdiocese of New York," and under this in Latin is "May They Rest in Peace."

Among those who attended the services at the Cathedral were:

Bishops, Thomas J. Walsh of Trenton, William T. Russell of Charleston, and Patrick J. Hayes, Ordinary for the United States Army and Navy; John J. McCourt, Auxiliary of Philadelphia; Joseph H. Conroy of Ogdensburg, Joseph Schrembs of Toledo, John P. Farrelly of Cleveland, Daniel F. Feehan of Fall River, Peter F. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill.; John J. O'Connor of Newark, John J. Monahan of Wilmington, Del.; Michael J. Hoban of Scranton, Thomas J. Byrne of Nashville, and Charles E. McDonnell of Brooklyn.

The Papal Knights present were Nicholas F. Brady, Dr. James J. Walsh, Thomas F. Ryan, Myles Tierney, Morgan J. O'Brien, Justice Eugene A. Philbin, Adrian Iselin, Dr. Thomas F. McFarlan, Bernard Coleman, Henry Heide, John F. O'Rourke, Dr. Edward L. Keyes, James Butler, Judge Michael J. Mulqueen, John G. Agar, W. Bourke Cockran, Clarence J. Mackay, and Justice Victor J. Dowling.

An invitation to attend the services was extended to Governor Whitman and his staff, but he was not in the procession in the place reserved for him, nor was he seen later during the requiem. At the archiepiscopal residence it was said that the Governor probably had been detained by official business.

Vitality of Aged Archbishop Is Steadily Lowering.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 24.—Alternate sinking spells and rallies marked a steady lowering of the vitality of Archbishop Ireland today. The prelate was in a state of coma practically all day, and was too low to be told of the funeral of Cardinal Farley.

WAR WORK STARTS IN COLLEGES TODAY

President Hibben Says Education Will Meet War's Need—Johnson on After-War Problems.

Columbia and New York Universities and the College of the City of New York, with other smaller colleges in this city, will open their academic year today with exercises in the military note for the first time since the civil war. All the able-bodied students above 18 years old will be in the uniform of the army or navy as members of the Students' Army Training Corps, and most of the work of the year will be in phases of military training. The opening exercises announced for today include drills and other events with stress upon the military.

Princeton University opened yesterday with 2,500 students in the training courses, or about 1,000 more than its usual enrollment in peace times. In his opening address President Hibben said that the university would have not more than 100 men on the campus taking the regular courses. He spoke of the great change in conditions, of the wiping out of college custom and tradition by army discipline. He said that the duty of every university, at all times, was to graduate men useful to the nation, and added that during the war Princeton could do its national duty best by training men for war.

"Everyone who is a member of this army should regard it as a great honor," he continued. "For the call of duty always invests with honor the man who responds to it gladly. The spirit of loyal service, the will to win, to endure every hardship and suffer every sacrifice to win, lends a double value to obedience. If the men entering this army are imbued with such a spirit, the end is already assured, a peace that, when negotiated, shall be between the conquerors and the conquered."

Most departments of New York University are to hold their opening exercises today, but Dr. Joseph French Johnson, Dean of the School of Commerce, held the first meeting of his classes last night. He urged the students to study "with the problems of peace in mind" because he believes the country ought to prepare scientifically and carefully for peace. Prices, wages, and many other problems woulr require adjustment, he said, while there would be international problems in trade, shipping, and industry.

Columbia University and the City College will hold their opening exercises today, and the students in the military training courses will be inducted into the United States Army and Navy on Oct. 1. At the City College 2,000 men have been passed already for the training courses, and Columbia will have at least 300 men in the naval courses. The Bellevue Hospital Medical College also will open at 4 o'clock this afternoon with many of its students in military courses.

FLETCHER URGES EXCHANGE

Asserts College Men Changes Would Make Us Stronger with Mexico.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24.—A suggestion that Mexican and American university men exchange ideas and use their influence to promote a better understanding between their countries was offered by Ambassador Fletcher on Sunday, when he addressed the seventh annual meeting of the students and Faculty of the National Universitay. The name of President Wilson was greeted with cheers, and the newspapers, in commenting on the effort to avoid misunderstandings, declare that an exchange arrangement between Mexican and American colleges would mean the growth of a strong friendship.

"I consider it a very great honor to be the guest today of the students and Faculty of the National University," said Mr. Fletcher, "for as intellectuals or, as we in my country say in other words, college men, you have the great privilege of directing progress and of molding in large measure the internal as well as the external policy of your nation. You carry forward the lamp of thought for a great nation, but that privilege, like every privilege, carries a corresponding duty.

"This duty, as we see it, is to be certain that the light of knowledge is held high enough so that its pure rays shall penetrate all recesses or caverns and dispel ignorance and the suspicions that lurk in darkness. This duty is especially true of matters affecting foreign affairs of Mexico. Hatred, misunderstanding, jealousies come out of ignorance, and the ignorance, in the particular case of the relations between our two countries has existed on both sides.

might and thrown into the battle scale in France.

"New York's allotment is $1,800,000,000, or 30 per cent. of the entire loan. You have the privilege, the opportunity, of a glorious service in connection with this work. It is no less an essential part of war operations than the actual fighting on the front, although it involves no similar measure of sacrifice and carries with it no comparable share of labor and suffering.

"No great army can fight in the field under modern conditions of warfare unless it is supported by other great armies at home, equally strong for the various parts they must perform, and equally co-ordinated and synchronized in effort with the fighting forces. These home armies must be organized for every part of essential war work. We must have an effective army of transportation, an effective army of war industries, an effective army of food and fuel production, and we must have and maintain all the time an effective army for Liberty Loans.

"While no one thing will win this war, certain things are basic to the war, and therefore are of outstanding importance. The Treasury of the United States is basic to the war. There is no activity of the Government engaged in war work, and there are few activities of private enterprise engaged in war work, which do not ultimately transmute their requirements into demands upon the United States Treasury. The Treasury must at all times be prepared to meet those demands, which invariably take the form of money payments. Unless the Treasury is strong enough to answer every call instantly and in full the essential war industries of the nation may be arrested or slowed down, the vital prosperity of the people may be imperiled, and the fighting power of the armies in the field may be gravely reduced, with serious possibilities of disaster.

Loan Army Most Important.

"Our great national army of Liberty Loan workers, composed of men and women alike, spreading over every State of the Union and responding each time to the call to the colors, is, therefore, basically one of the most important of all the armies in the field. As I review the work they have done in the last eighteen months, the unselfish patriotism with which they have responded to each call, and their splendid achievements in the three Liberty Loans already subscribed and oversubscribed, I am proud to be a member of that army, and more than proud to be its commander. No historian who writes in the future the record of these times can exaggerate the importance and effectiveness of the work done by the Liberty Loan army of the United States and by the bankers of America, who constitute so large a part of that army.

"The Treasury of the United States asks the American people to subscribe to the Fourth Liberty Loan, $6,000,000,000. This money is needed to carry on the war. We cannot lick the Kaiser without it. We cannot restore peace to the world and re-establish liberty and democracy without it. The money is required for food and clothing and munitions for our army and navy, for the ships that must transport these supplies to them, for airplanes to blot out the vision of the Huns in the skies, for the support of the dependent wives and children of our gallant soldiers and sailors who have gone to the front, for the payment of the life insurance which the Government issues to its heroic men, for the construction of wharves and docks and facilities at home and in France for the military and naval operations, and for loans to our gallant comrades who are fighting shoulder to shoulder with us in this war—the Belgians, the Serbians, the Greeks, the Italians, the British, the French, and every other nation which has espoused with us the cause of liberty and humanity.

"The huge amounts expended by America in this war are not wholly used for destructive purposes. Great sums are used for constructive work which will be of permanent value to the American people.

"We are building a great merchant marine. Upon completion it will be the largest, most efficient, and modern merchant fleet in the world. The wharves and terminal facilities we are constructing in America for the accommodation of this merchant marine are an essential part of it. Our commerce after the war will be facilitated by these great national undertakings, and the money used for these purposes is an investment of immeasurable value to the American people. The loans to the allied Governments are represented by obligations of great nations who will in time repay them. Out of the $30,000,000,000 of appropriations made by the Congress for the fiscal year 1919, it is probable that $8,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 will represent loans to the allied Governments and expenditures for ships, shipyards, docks, wharves, and other facilities which will be salvaged to the American people.

The New Bonds Described.

"The bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan bear 4¼ per cent. per annum. They will mature on Oct. 15, 1938, unless the United States should exercise its reserved right to redeem them on or after Oct. 15, 1933.

"The interest on $30,000 of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan is exempt, until two years after the termination of the war, from surtaxes and excess profits and war-profits taxes. The taxpayer who subscribes for $30,000 of these bonds and still holds them at the time of making his tax return will also receive an exemption from such taxes for a like period as to the interest on an aggregate amount of $45,000 of bonds of previous Liberty Loans, and subscribers in lesser amounts will receive a proportionate similar exemption. These bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan are also permanently exempt from all other Federal, State, and Municipal taxation, except estate and inheritance taxes.

"These bonds are an investment of unquestioned security, and no man who lends his money to his Government by buying Liberty bonds need ever fear that the principal will not be paid in full at maturity, or that the interest will not be paid punctually every six months. Every purchaser, therefore, of a Government bond is doing the wisest possible thing for his own welfare and prosperity, in contributing to the success of our armies in the field, to the restoration of peace, and the security of liberty and democracy for the future, and, at the same time, is aiding in the constructive work of creating a great merchant marine with all of its auxiliaries which will have a permanent effect upon the prosperity and destiny of the American people.

"Who should buy Liberty bonds? Everybody. The laboring men and women, the salaried men and women of the country, and the people of moderate means and of large means particularly should buy Liberty bonds. They should save money and put it away now where neither moth nor rust can corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. A Liberty bond complies with these conditions, especially if it is registered with the United States Treasury, because, if registered, the Treasury will replace it if the owner should lose it or if a thief should steal it.

"Wages and salaries are higher in America today than ever before in its history. Those who spend everything they earn are not only living in a fool's paradise, but they are doing a grievous injury to their country. They are living in a fool's paradise because the same degree of prosperity cannot be expected to continue upon the return of peace, when the inevitable readjustments of all industries must take place; and they are doing their country a grievous injury because it is only by saving that we can provide our Government with the money which it must have to buy the essential supplies for our military forces.

"Every dollar saved now and invested in Liberty Bonds will be worth much more when peace comes again. Every provident man and woman in the United States may find his savings worth twice as much in purchasing power after the war as now. How can any one more certainly make money than by saving it now with assurance of its enormous enhancement in value when normal conditions are restored?

"The improvident men and women who fail now to save money may find themselves unprovided for if a rainy day accompanies the return of peace, and every one who fails to make provision for this time will add to the difficulty of readjusting the industrial and commercial situation so as to preserve prosperity under peace conditions; whereas every one who has saved and provided for that readjustment will ease the process and contribute to the continued prosperity of the nation as well as to the individual welfare of every citizen.

Save Against the Future.

"The highest duty of every man and woman in the land, therefore, is to save to protect himself and his children against the possibilities of the future, to say nothing of the fact that by such saving he is bringing peace that much nearer and is making that much more certain the saving of thousands of American lives which otherwise will have to be destroyed as the price of victory.

"The same obligation to save money and lend it to the Government rests upon the men of larger means—the men of comfortable incomes and the men of large incomes. The laboring men and the salaried men and women have been appealed to and have responded nobly to the call to buy Liberty bonds on the installment plan. Why should not the men of moderate and large means buy bonds also on the installment plan? If they have not the ready money in hand they should anticipate the future, just as the laboring men and the salaried men do, by obligating themselves to take all the bonds they can and to pay for them in installments. The Government offers bonds payable in installments in order that all classes of citizens may make purchases within their present and reasonably probable future income.

"The business men and the men of comfortable means and incomes who fail to buy to the limit of their ability, even though it involves the payment for their Liberty bonds on the installment plan, are not only failing to do their full duty, but they are negligent of their own and their country's interest. Their business and welfare depend upon the success of America's army, and they must omit no duty to support that army.

"In the Third Liberty Loan 18,000,000 Americans subscribed for Liberty bonds. It is a very remarkable fact that of this vast number of patriotic Americans all but 22,500 bought bonds in amounts ranging from $50 to $10,000. Only 22,500, including corporations, bought Liberty bonds of the Third Loan in excess of $10,000. It would be preposterous to say that there are only 22,500 men, women, and corporations in America able to lend more than $10,000 each to their Government on Liberty bonds. The record of the Third Liberty Loan conclusively shows that the great mass of the American people, the men and women of small and moderate means, were highly patriotic and did their duty splendidly, whereas only 22,500 persons and corporations among America's wealthier classes bought bonds above the $10,000 mark. I would not intentionally draw any inferences from these facts which would do injustice to wealthy corporations and to the men and women in America of large means and circumstances; but these figures at least indicate that they did not respond to the call of the Government in the Third Liberty Loan commensurately with their ability to help. An earnest appeal should be made to them to do more in the Fourth Liberty Loan, not only for their own good, but for the welfare of the nation. We must largely increase the number of subscribers to the Fourth Loan between $10,000 and $100,000.

"We must continue our efforts to impress upon people who buy Liberty bonds that it is the very essence of patriotic duty to keep them to the utmost limit of their ability to do so. In no other way can we meet the colossal demands of the future. Every patriotic American must realize that service to the country is not satisfied by the mere purchase of a Liberty bond to be sold at the first opportunity, but service, genuine service, patriotic service, consists in holding that bond to the limit, making it a sacred duty not to part with it unless adversity or necessity which cannot be met in any other way forces him to sell it.

To Protect the Bondholders.

"This brings up the point of a more effective and intelligent organization of the bankers and Liberty Loan Committees of the country for the purpose of securing a secondary distribution of Liberty bonds after the completion of each loan and stabilizing their value. We must provide the machinery and the means through which those who have to sell their bonds may do so and get the highest possible price for them, while at the same time protecting the innocent investor against swindlers and unscrupulous and unpatriotic people who, contrary to the earnest request of the Treasury Department, have induced holders of Liberty bonds to exchange them for stocks or investments of doubtful value. The effect of these operations is to force the Treasury to buy the Liberty bonds which these unscrupulous and unpatriotic people acquire and throw upon the market. The Treasury, therefore, must take a part of the money it has borrowed from the American people, after so much difficult and patriotic work on the part of bankers and Liberty Loan organizations, and buy back these Liberty bonds, in order to protect the market and the credit of the Government. Thus the Treasury's available resources from the Loan are depleted and forced into unworthy channels, oftentimes in wildcat enterprises, to the injury of the American people and to the detriment of the war. We must create a healthy public opinion which will reprehend such practices. I have made frequent appeals to Liberty bond purchasers to resist the efforts of unscrupulous and designing persons; to refuse to exchange their bonds upon the advertisements of selfish promoters, merchants, or manufacturers who tempt holders of Liberty bonds to give them up in exchange for stocks or bonds of questionable value or for goods at higher prices than cash prices, and then, in turn, sell the bonds at less than their par value on the Stock Exchanges, with all of the evil consequences I have described.

"I have repeatedly said that no objection could or should be raised to the sale of Liberty bonds where imperative necessity or adversity makes such sales unavoidable; but we should constantly appeal to the intelligent self-interest and patriotism of those who buy Liberty bond to keep them to the utmost limit of their ability as one of the sacred duties they have to perform in this war.

"The amount allotted to the New York District is $1,800,000,000. We must not be content with a subscription merely of our allotment. No district must be content with that. We mus, from one end of the country to the other, make it a point to surpass our allotments. It is necessary to do that because some sections of the country have suffered grievously from drought and other causes and may not be able to reach their full quota in this loan. Therefore it is that those sections of the country which have prospered most shall do most in order that the country as a whole may not fail to meet the pressing demands of the nation.

Every Dollar a Victory Dollar.

"There is hard work before you before success can be secured, but it is glorious work. Every dollar you provide brings us nearer to victory and to a righteous and enduring peace. Success means life to thousands of our brave men, who, if we fail, must pay the price of that failure with their blood and find their final resting places far from their native soil in foreign lands across the seas.

"I was asked not long ago what argument could be made for the Fourth Liberty Loan. I replied immediately, 'Pershing and our heroes in France!' No other argument is necessary. The American people know and feel the need of those men and are prepared to go the limit to supply that need.

"Who can measure the wonderful morale of great and glorious America—this unparalleled democracy of ours, which military despots have heretofore amused and deluded themselves by describing as incapable of organized effort and too cowardly to fight? In eighteen months we have given the most inspiring and conclusive proof, not alone of the spirit and ideals of democracy, but of its power to organize and face successfully any foe, however unscrupulous and brutal. The despots who threaten democracy, the ideals it represents, and the liberties of the world, will be vanquished by the sword of democracy.

"What marvelous strides this great democracy has made since the civil war! One has only to contrast the two periods to realize the splendor of our achievements. In the civil war rich men hired substitutes to fight for them at the front, and stayed at home to make money out of war activities. In this war a draft law of impartial and universal application throughout the country has been passed and no substitutes are allowed. Wealth and poverty are leveled to precisely the same plane. The rich man fights beside the poor man in the ranks and the burden of taxation, although borne by all the people and distributed widely, is imposed more heavily upon those most able to carry the load. The greatest tax bill in the history of the world has just been passed by the House of Representatives unanimously. All honor to the men of both parties for this superb exhibition of patriotism.

"Democracy in America is resnant everywhere, and the discipline of democracy and the organization of democracy, as exemplified by America, have been an example to an amazed world. But more than all, the sons of democracy upon the field of battle has vindicated the noblest traditions of our country and the highest ideals of our nation.

"Who is not thrilled by what Pershing and his glorious men have done already upon the field of battle? Those untrained freemen of democracy have met the veteran fighters and the best trained soldiers of autocracy and have vanquished them, not by foul means, but by fair fighting. They have already demonstrated that the power of righteousness and of democracy is irresistible; that the doom of autocracy is sealed and the day of reckoning near at hand.

Must Keep the Pressure High.

"What we must do in America is to keep the pressure high. Now that we have the Kaiser and his brutal hordes on the run, let us not relax effort but intensify effort. Keep hitting hard and smashing harder. That is the way to win surely and quickly. That is the way to eliminate the Rhine; that is the way to open an American parade on Unter den Linden.

"We must maintain steadfastly the standards we have already set and surpass those standards whenever it is necessary to do so. By self-abnegation and sacrifice we must match, as far as we possibly may, the deeds of our sons upon the field of battle, and thereby contribute to the victory which we are determined to secure regardless of the time required or the price paid, either in blood or in treasure, because without that victory there is neither security for the world nor hope for the future.

"One cannot fail to do his duty in this supreme time and expect to save his soul in the eternity before us. No man can shirk his duty without incurring the just reprehension of public opinion. The acid test will be applied and the shirker, whether from military service or in the field of labor or in the ranks of the wealthy, will be unable to withstand the finger of scorn which will be unerringly pointed at him. We must rise to the sublimest heights of patriotism, of sacrifice, of devotion, of love of country, if we would not deserve to be cast into the depths of defeat and oblivion.

"Glorious America, glorious for what she has already done, more glorious for what she is now doing, and glorified she shall be for what she is determined to and will achieve!"

Mr. Strong's Address.

In introducing Mr. McAdoo, Mr. Strong explained in great detail the conditions of the Fourth Loan, and, in part, said:

"Success for the Fourth Liberty Loan will be another battle won and failure will be a retreat. These are not days, however, when American Armies are retreating. (Applause.)

"During the next four weeks we are to undertake the greatest transaction in the history of finance and it is important that certain general rules which must govern our work should be frankly discussed and understood. The selling organization must undertake to reach every individual and corporation, the methods varying according to the size and character of the community. In this city many methods must be pursued. We must not, however, lower the standard of a dignified campaign by sensational displays, extravagant statements or methods calculated to arouse ridicule or reproach. The enthusiasm of the members should not lead them to employ devices which will associate this serious undertaking with the methods of a circus or of a lottery.

"You are aware that bonds of previous loans, bearing the same rate of interest as those now to be sold, are selling at less than par in the market. I shall repeat, with less fear of contradiction now than when I made the same statement at our last meeting—that with over a million and a half of our American boys in the fighting line in France, whose victory depends upon the success of these loans, the American people will not subject their patriotism; their resolution to support that army, to be measured by a rate of interest or by a premium or discount on the bonds of their Government.

"But we must not overlook the urgent injunction which has now been spread broadcast for all owners of the Government's bonds to retain them. The question is repeatedly asked, how may subscriptions be made by those who are pressed to subscribe, but who have not sufficient ready cash. There is but one answer: Those who must borrow money to make their purchase should do so in the expectation of paying their loans out of funds accumulated by the practice of rigid economy, rather than by selling their bonds. The greatest difficulty now encountered by our organization in selling bonds is caused by the failure of the people of the country to practice thrift sufficiently.

"It will be a great economy to the Government, a saving of labor and material, if those subscribing to the Fourth Loan are, generally, induced to take registered instead of coupon bonds. The organization throughout the district should ask subscribers to indicate on the subscription blanks that they are willing to accept registered bonds. In this form bondholders receive a greater protection against theft and los than in the case of coupon bonds, and they avoid the inconvenience of collecting coupons, as checks for the interest will be mailed to them.

New Honor Flag Plan.

"A modification of the honor flag plan has been adopted for the next loan, of which you have been duly advised. The development of the honor flag seemed to have had two effects in the course of the last bond sale, to which reference is necessary. In some cases it led committees in certain communities to relax their effort as soon as their quotas were completed. This was a serious mistake.

"In the Third Liberty Loan every banking town in this district (with one exception) won the honor flag, and over 75 per cent. of the towns without banks won honor flags.

"As in the past loan, this flag will be awarded to those towns which subscribe their full quotas. In addition, a blue star will be awarded for each oversubscription of 50 per cent. Accompanying the honor flag will be a pennant for those communities of which 25 per cent. of the population subscribe to bonds, and an additional pennant will be awarded for each additional 10 per cent. of the population that subscribes.

"The industrial honor flag, used with great success in this city during the Third Loan, has been adopted for the whole country. It will be awarded to those organizations which secure subscriptions from 75 per cent. of their employes. If a larger percentage subscribe it will be indicated on the pennant.

"At the suggestion of Mrs. Wilson the names of communities showing the largest oversubscriptions, and showing the largest percentage of population subscribing, will be given to new ships to be launched and to new tanks being built for the army.

"Ten ships and ten tanks have been assigned to this district. The rules governing the designation of the communities will shortly be published."

Among those who had seats on the platform were Mrs. McAdoo and her sister, Miss Margaret Wilson. Before the meeting there was a reception and dinner in honor of the Secretary at the Hotel Plaza, where he is stopping. Among those who attended the dinner were James S. Alexander, George F. Baker, Allen B. Forbes, Gates W. McGarrah, Seward Prosser, Frank A. Vanderlip, Martin Vogel, James N. Wallace, Albert H. Wiggin, William Woodward, and Benjamin Strong, all members of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District.

PRAISES SHOWING OF STATE CANALS

80,000 Tons More Carried in Year, Is Wotherspoon's Reply to Critics.

WORKING ON BIG TERMINAL

No Serious Defects In Waterway, on Which Barges of 10-Foot Draught Make Through Trips.

General W. W. Wotherspoon, State Superintendent of Public Works, issued a statement yesterday reviewing the operation of New York State canals for the year, telling of developments to take place in the near future, and replying to criticisms which appeared recently in an article in The Nautical Gazette.

"Strictly speaking," General Wotherspoon said, "my concern is with the canal system itself, and I take exception to what is said as to the lack of depth in the channel. During the first few months' use of the new waterway, more than 500 miles in length, it is inevitable that some defects will appear here and there. None of the defects thus far is serious, and a good, navigable depth is maintained throughout. Boats drawing more than 10 feet have made the passage safely from Buffalo to Waterford, and any intimation that the present type of boats loaded to 7 feet cannot navigate safely is absurd.

"Adequate facilities are rapidly being installed at all canal terminals. Every important city now has convenient dockage, excepting New York and Buffalo. The Buffalo terminal, however, will be ready for use within a few days. Pier 5, New York City, while uncovered, has been at the disposal of traffic all season, and the progress of the general terminal improvement in New York Harbor is proceeding as rapidly as possible, taking into consideration the tremendous difficulty experienced in securing needed materials for the work and the scarcity of labor due to wartime conditions.

"Taking the canal system as a whole, it constitutes the most splendid inland waterway in the world," declared General Wotherspoon. "The statistics on file in my office show a total for the first half of the season—that is, up to August 15—of 274,115 tons of freight transported over the Erie, Oswego and Cayuga-Seneca Canals. When we add the Champlain Canal traffic, which should not be excluded, we reach a total of 505,117 tons. Instead of there being a decrease of 408,844 tons from the season of 1916, as stated in the Gazette, there is an actual increase over that season of more than 80,000 tons.

"As to the wheat shipments, the article is again misleading. During the 1917 season, up to Sept. 14, there were 41,691,907 bushels of wheat and corn received at Buffalo by lake. During the same period of this year, the total reached only 7,290,908 bushels. Notwithstanding the tremendous falling off in grain receipts at Buffalo, the canals, up to Sept. 14 of the present year, have carried 334,400 bushels or 10,032 tons, as compared with 264,400 bushels or 7,932 tons during the same period in 1917.

"While it is practically true that 'not one bushel of wheat had been shipped over the canal up to Aug. 29 last,' it must be remembered that there was relatively no wheat at Buffalo to be shipped, either by canal or rail. The actual figures show that little over 130,000 bushels or 3,900 tons of grain moved by the rail route.

"On the other hand, the canals carried grain milled at Buffalo in the shape of flour to the extent of 20,084 tons, such flour being destined for the use of the Army abroad. The Department has no knowledge that any considerable portion of such flour was damaged in the canal, but, on the contrary, has been advised that the flour movement has been most satisfactory to the military authorities."

General Wotherspoon said that westbound traffic on the canals had been light because of the falling off in imports received in New York harbor to be shipped West. He added that the question whether the 25 per cent. differential allowed in favor of canal traffic was sufficient was an open one, not to be decided except by experience in competition with railroads for a longer period on the present basis.

"As to the prejudice to canal interests by canal traffic being under the Railroad Administration, recent announcement was made of the appointment of G. A. Tomlinson, the former Federal Manager, as head of the new division of inland waterways with offices at Washington," General Wotherspoon concluded. "The creation of this office and the separation of canal and railroad interests should be beneficial to water transportation, and has relieved a situation that was objectionable."

SMITH HEARD AT WATERLOO.

Special to The New York Times.

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Alfred Smith addressed a large gathering in Waterloo today, but made no political speech. He said, in opening:

"President Wilson has said that politics is adjourned. Much as the candidates for State office on the Democratic ticket desire to be elected, he will not by any political activity hinder in the slightest way the success of the Fourth Liberty Loan. The absence from this gathering of our young men and the presence of these service flags remind us that winning the war is our first duty, not the seeking of office at this time."

Mr. Smith had dinner in Seneca Falls and at the hotel he met several hundred men and women. Because of unfavorable weather, the Seneca County Fair opening was delayed one day, but Mr. Smith went to the fair grounds with officers of the fair association and met a number of people there. At 3 o'clock he spoke to meeting with Dock Commissioner Murray Hurlbert of New York, formerly a resident of Waterloo, and Supreme Court Judge Peter Hendricks of New York, who came here from his Summer home at Sheldrake.

All factions of the Democratic Party in this part of the State were presented in Mr. Smith's party. It was said that Charles F. Rattigan had accepted appointment to the Smith Campaign Committee and that Thomas Mott Osborne would address meetings in behalf of Mr. Smith's candidacy.

PERKINS QUITS RED CROSS.

Commissioner General for Europe Accepts A. E. F. Staff Post.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Major James H. Perkins, Commissioner General of the American Red Cross for Europe, has resigned from that office to accept a staff appointment in the American Expeditionary Forces. The duties of Commissioner General for Europe henceforth will be assumed by a commission composed of the Commissioners for France, Great Britain, Italy, and Switzerland, and Major Ralph J. Preston, Deputy Commissioner for Europe.

Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council, expressed regret at the withdrawal of Major Perkins from the work he had so successfully inaugurated.

"We can understand the appeal the opportunity for army service has made to him," said Mr. Davison, "but greatly regret the loss of his guidance."

Major Perkins, before starting for his new post, said he much regretted leaving those who had served with him in such a great work as that performed by the American Red Cross.

"Only service in the army itself," he added, "would have induced me to relinquish my share of the effort."

MOB TWO "NONPARTISANS."

South Dakotans Drive Candidate for Governor Out of Town.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Sept. 24.—Mark P. Bates, candidate for Governor of South Dakota on the Nonpartisan League ticket, and A. C. Townley, Nonpartisan League organizer, were driven from Britton, S. D., today by a mob when they attempted to make a campaign speech there, according to reports received here.

When the Nonpartisan members arrived in Britton they were met by a crowd of farmers and townspeople numbering between 200 and 300, who locked the town hall and refused to permit them to speak. They were then marched to the county line, reports said.

NEW RULE ON ESTATE TAXES

Final Returns Must Be Made Before Advance Payment to Get Discount.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper issued a ruling today as to payment of estate taxes, in which he holds that the final return must be filed before advance payment can be made in order to obtain the 5 per cent. discount provided by law. The Commissioner says:

"It is not contemplated by the act that immediately after the decedent's death, or at any time before the expiration of the year, the executor may make partial payment on account of the tax and receive credit for the discount because of advance payment.

"If advance payment is to be made before the due date of the tax, the estate must be in a position to file a final return on Form 706, showing the value of all assets as of the date of decedent's death and the allowable deductions to which the estate is entitled under Section 203 of the act, the value of the net estate and the determined tax because of the transfer of the net estate. Final return must be filed wherever advance payment is desired, and the amount paid should be entered upon the collector's assessment list for the month in which paid as advance collection.

"Section 207 of the Estate Tax act provides that if, for any reason, the amount of the tax cannot be determined the payment of a sum of money sufficient in the opinion of the collector to discharge, the tax shall be deemed payment in full of the tax, &c. This provision clearly relates to the time when the tax is due.

"The collector is not required to exercise his discretion as to what amount will satisfy the tax until the due date thereof. It is obvious that no discount is allowable upon such payment, as necessarily the payment cannot be made before the expiration of a year following the decedent's death.

"At the time the tentative return is filed an extension not to exceed ninety days may be granted by the collector in which to file a final return. If at the expiration of the extension granted the executor represents that he is still unable to determine the tax and file final return a detailed statement as to the reason preventing the determination of the tax should be transmitted to the bureau for consideration as to whether an additional extension should be granted. In every case where a tentative return is filed it should be plainly so designated and a duplicate thereof transmitted to the bureau with a statement by the collector as to the period of extension granted."

W. H. Newman Left Over $1,000,000

The will of William H. Newman, former President of the New York Central, who died on Aug. 10 last at the Biltmore, disposes of an estate estimated at more than $1,000,000. His personal effects and half his residuary estate, to be turned over at once, goes to his widow, Mrs. Bettie Carter Newman. She will receive the income from the other half and upon her death the principal will be distributed among relatives and friends.

SUFFRAGE FEDERAL AMENDMENT

The People vs. The Lobby

It is asserted that "woman suffrage is coming." We reply: It is not coming if decided by popular vote, as provided for in the Constitutions of Forty-seven States, where the people are protected by the secret ballot from coercion, intimidation and blackmail.

But it may come, and come quickly, if the people of each State are robbed of their Constitutional right to vote on this question, and it is decided by a mere majority of some 4,000 politicians in thirty-six legislative bodies, who have no such protection, but must vote in the open under pressure of suffrage threats and lobbies.

The question before the United States Senate on September 26, therefore, is: Shall this revolutionary change in our form of government be decided by popular vote or dictated by the suffrage lobby?

Representative government is at stake.

The following table shows the people's verdict—the general mandate from the people of the United States that confronts the United States Senate:

The people have said "NO" to woman suffrage. Hence resort by suffragists to settlement by Federal Amendment, which, if passed by Congress, goes over the heads of the people to politicians in state legislatures for settlement. Both factions of suffragists agree that if suffrage is ever to be won the decision must be taken out of the hands of the people.

After the four great defeats by the people in 1915 the official organ of what is now The National Woman's Party (pickets) hoped "that similar campaigns would not be undertaken again. * * * One result of a state campaign that cannot be overlooked is the apparent mandate it gives the representatives of that state to oppose woman suffrage in Congress. * * * It is rather a pity for suffragists to spend their time and money in securing a count of votes against themselves," etc.—(Editorial, Suffragist, November 6, 1915.) After one more suffrage defeat by the voters (Iowa) the so-called "conservative" National Woman Suffrage Association came into line with the Pickets and advocated decision by politicians instead of by the people. Mrs. Catt, their president, called an emergency convention at Atlantic City (September, 1916). "The Amendment is our immediate and principal aim," she said. She asserted "the necessity of reforring important questions of state to a more intelligent body than the masses of the people." The other veteran leader, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, historian and press chairman of the "conservatives," further emphasized the necessity of taking the question away from the people: "Why were both Republican and Democratic National Conventions (1916) willing to favor woman suffrage through state action? Because they knew they were putting it off until doomsday. We have had enough of appealing to the individual voter with his secret ballot."

Here in one amazing sentence is the authoritative statement of the real purpose of suffragists' resort to settlement by Federal Amendment: 1.—Admission of defeat by the people and determination to over-ride their decision. 2.—Determination to circumvent the secret ballot, chief safeguard of rule by the people.

Since then, the suffrage controversy instead of being an issue between suffragists and anti-suffragists has become a trial of strength between the people and a nation-wide lobby strangling democracy.

Nothing more anti-democratic, more opposed to rule by the people which the whole world is now demanding, could be planned than the Suffrage Federal Amendment campaign.

The Lobby

This campaign is due to suffragists' belief that the people's representatives can be coerced. To this end highly financed lobbies are operating in Congress, state legislatures and political bodies. The New York "World," although pro-suffrage, said editorially of these women that they "maintain at times a veritable reign of terror in legislative bodies. In consequence, half the country is now bedevilled by some form or other of harem government which is in no respect a true expression of public opinion." All suffrage victories since 1914, with the one exception of the inglorious socialist-pacifist triumph in New York, have been lobby victories in legislative bodies. Shall representative government go down like a house of cards before the assault of women politicians?

Ohio is an example of what has befallen representative government in several state legislatures under pressure of the suffrage lobby. The voters of Ohio in 1912 defeated woman suffrage by a majority of 87,455 and again in 1914 by a majority of 182,905, and in 1915 a poll of women of twenty-one years or over showed a woman majority against of ten to one. Notwithstanding this emphatic mandate, in February, 1917, the so-called people's "representatives" in the Ohio legislature imposed Presidential suffrage on the state. But Ohio, more fortunate than Illinois and Rhode Island, has a referendum law which enabled the people to demand that the question be referred back to themselves, and in November of the same year the voters for the third time defeated woman suffrage. This REPEAL of woman suffrage was by a majority of 146,120. The combined majorities for suffrage in all states outside of New York is only 96,861!

By their own bold avowal suffragists' Federal Amendment drive is a campaign of coercion. Mrs. Catt said: "The female of the species has affrighted the great men on the Hill"—meaning Congressmen at the Capitol. (N. Y. Tribune, December 29, 1916.) Mrs. Blatch De Forest, while acting president of the Woman's Political Union, wrote: "It is easier to bring influence to bear on a legislator, especially during the sensitive months before election, than on a voter who does not face defeat and can afford to risk our displeasure." (Woman Voter, January, 1916.) It must be remembered that these are "the sensitive months before election," the lobbyists' heyday. With incredible disrespect, the official organ of the National Woman's Party said of the President of the United States and of the highest legislative body in the nation: "Let him (the President) go to the Senate of the United States and demand the three votes lacking from the twenty-three Administration servants who are at present blocking the Amendment." (Editorial, Suffragist, June 8, 1918.)

The suffrage lobby uses chiefly three weapons:

1. A huge lobby fund: Miss Paul, President of the National Woman's Party, estimates that the last five years' fight for the Suffrage Federal Amendment has cost her party alone $468,918.89—an average of about $100,000 a year.

2. Reprisals: Suffragists' threats to "hold their votes as a whip over all parties"—a "sex" vote to punish representatives who are coercion-proof—to influence legislation. At the 1917 Annual Convention of the New York State Woman's Party, the Executive Board recommended in its platform—according to the New York Tribune—that "every Federal and State officeholder who had opposed suffrage in the past be disciplined and that the voting power of the women be brought to bear upon would-be legislators and Congressmen of the future, so that none such should win office who would not indorse the Federal suffrage amendment." (N. Y. Tribune, November 21, 1917.) By means of the "woman's vote," Mrs. Catt says that "a limited number of well organized women can give control of the 66th Congress to either party," (N. Y. Tribune, September 17, 1918,) thus confirming the contention that the suffrage movement is that of an aggressive minority, with power through funds and organization.

3. The card index system on legislators, "the centre from which all the legislative work is directed," which contains everything discoverable about their public and private lives. "Here is set down the record of every Congressman, every fact that has any bearing on his personality, opinions, and mental make-up, is minutely detailed. * * * his family, his home, his church, his clubs, and his lodges—no detail is overlooked which might give a lobbyist insight into how best to approach him." (Suffragist, February 7, 1917.)

Barring eleventh-hour conversions, the suffrage Federal Amendment—a defiance of the expressed will of the people—should be defeated in the United States Senate if it comes to a vote as scheduled on September 26th.

Details of the Voting.

The full returns from few of the districts of the State had been received up to midnight. In Camden County in 92 out of 130 districts, Governor Edge had 5,080; Gray, 628, and Record 270. It was estimated that Edge would poll a total vote for the entire 130 districts of 6,700, and that Gray would not get more than 1,000. About 8,000 Republican votes were cast.

La Monte in this county was running about 250 ahead of Hennessy for the Democratic United States Senatorial nomination. There were less than 1,000 Democratic votes cast in Camden County. La Monte and Hennessy had a close race in Union County, with about one-third of the districts heard from. Governor Edge apparently had an overwhelming vote in this county. In Monmouth County Governor Edge has a plurality of over 2,900. La Monte has a plurality of over 1,400.

Edge and Hennessy won easily in Middlesex County. In New Brunswick Edge had 644, Gray 99, and Record 44. Hennessy had 295, La Monte 165, McDermit 114, and Simpson 30.

With about half of the election districts in Morris County heard from, Governor Edge ran about 1,090 ahead of his nearest rival. He won by a big margin in Sussex County. Returns from more than half of the districts in the county give Edge 332, Record 34, and Gray 86. Hennessy and McDermit were very close in Sussex. With only six districts missing, Hennessey received 286 and McDermit 291; Lamonte, 275, and Simpson 259.

Governor Edge's majority over the combined vote of Gray and Record for Senator in Cumberland County was estimated at about one thousand. About 2,000 Republican votes were cast. The Democrats give Lamonte nominee for Senator, about 500 over the opposition candidates. Their vote was solid for Hennessey for the short term nomination.

In 65 out of 123 districts in Passaic County Governor Edge received a vote of 4,209; Record, 1,572, and Gray, 431, Edge's majority being 2,637 in these early returns.

PRESIDENT VOTES IN JERSEY

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 24.—President Wilson came to Princeton this afternoon to cast his ballot in the primary election. He arrived shortly after 1 o'clock on a special train, and spent less than half an hour in the town. Mr. Wilson was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty, Dr. Grayson, and his personal stenographer. When the Presidential party stepped from the train Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were greeted by a crowd of students and citizens, among the latter being Charles Swem, the President's former stenographer, now an aviation student here. There was a large crowd of students here for the opening of the university tomorrow.

The President and his party walked to the polling place, which was in the fire house on Chambers Street, accompanied by a large throng which applauded the President at intervals. Having cast his ballot, Mr. Wilson walked back to the station and started his return trip to Washington.

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, voted in Jersey City yesterday afternoon in the polling place of District 5, in Public School 3, in Bright Street, near Jersey Avenue. He cast Ballot 20 in the Democratic box, and was introduced to the new woman member of the Election Board, Miss Augusta Schuldt, a public school teacher. Mr. Tumulty called on his brother, Philip Tumulty, Jr., a real estate dealer, and then went to see his father, who has been ill for a long time at Caldwell. "I wish there were seven elections a year, so I could get away from Washington," Mr. Tumulty remarked to friends.

LONG TAKES LEAD IN BAY STATE RACE

BOSTON, Wednesday, Sept. 25.—Returns received up to 2 A. M. today indicated the probable nomination of Richard H. Long for Governor on the Democratic ticket in yesterday's primaries. The vote was running very close, however, William A. Gaston having been in the lead in the early returns. Edward P. Barry was third in the late returns.

Channing H. Cox was nominated by the Republicans for Lieutenant Governor, defeating Guy Ham apparently by about two to one.

Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald defeated Congressman Peter F. Tague for the democratic nomination in the Tenth Congressional District. Congressman James A. Gallivan was renominated by the Democrats in the Twelfth Congressional District, defeating former Mayor James M. Curley by 2,080 votes. The vote was light.

Senator John W. Weeks, Republican, was renominated without opposition, and the nomination for Senator on the Democratic ticket went to former Governor David I. Walsh, without contest.

Calvin Coolidge, now Lieutenant Governor, was the unanimous choice of the Republicans for the Gubernatorial nomination.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 24.—Le Baron B. Colt, senior Senator from Rhode Island, was unanimously renominated today by the Republican State convention. Governor R. Livingston Beeckman of Newport was also renominated. Other nominations were: Congress, First District, Clark Burdick, Newport; Second District, Congressman Walter R. Stiness, Warwick; Third District, Congressman Ambrose Kennedy, Woonsocket.

HENEY AND ROLPH OUT.

Court Decides They Are Not Legally Entitled to Run for Governor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—A State Supreme Court decision today, upholding the constitutionality of the State Primary law, eliminated Francis J. Heney and Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco from Democratic nomination for Governor. The law was challenged as robbing a party choice for nomination.

Rolph, who obtained the highest Democratic vote, was eliminated because defeated for the Republican nomination. Heney, next highest Democrat, was eliminated as a defeated candidate.

HOUSTON RIOT CASE ENDED.

Last of Convicted Negro Soldiers Pays the Death Penalty.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 24.—Private William D. Bonne, a negro formerly of Company I, 24th Infantry, was hanged at daybreak this morning at Fort Sam Houston, it was announced by Brig. Gen. J. A. Ryan. He is the sixth whose death sentence in the Houston riot cases was affirmed by President Wilson recently. The other five were hanged last week.

Twenty-six other negro soldiers sentenced by the same court-martial were taken to Fort Leavenworth today. Twelve of them are to serve life sentences, five terms of fifteen years, and the remaining nine two years each.

The execution of Bonne and the taking to Leavenworth of the others marks the end of the Houston riot cases.

Nineteen negro enlisted men of the 24th Infantry have paid the death penalty for participation in the riot in August of last year, in which fifteen white persons were killed and twelve others wounded. One negro soldier killed himself and ninety-eight other were sent to prison for terms ranging from two years to life imprisonment.

DENIES MEDIATION OFFER.

Lansing Disavows Reported Step to End Disturbances in China.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Secretary Lansing today authorized a flat denial of the widely published report that the American and British Governments had offered to mediate beteen the Peking Government and the revolutionists in Southern China.

"There is not a word of truth in it; it is without any foundation whatever," he said.

The southern provinces have been separated from the Government at Peking. This division followed the dissolution of the regularly elected Parliament by the then Premier, Tuan-Chi-jui, during consideration of proposals for the revision of the Constitution. Members of Parliament representing the southern provinces reconvened at Canton and set up a provisional government which has been able to maintain itself politically and militarily.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Hope now is felt here that a settlement of the civil strife in China may follow quickly the inauguration of the new President, Hsu Shih Ching, Oct. 10. He has laid down six principles which will constitute his platform, and officials in Washington today expressed confidence in his ability to execute them. His program includes consolidation of the present opposing factions by pacific means, a permanent constitution on a truly Republican basis, reduction in military expenditures and reorganization of the army, promotion of the economic welfare of the people, and development of Chinese trade through the co-operation of America, England, and Japan.

Lost Enamel is Lost Forever

The only tissue in the body which does not renew itself is the enamel of the teeth. It is also the hardest substance and if properly cared for should last a lifetime.

"Acid-Mouth"—an unnatural condition—breaks down the enamel, exposing the softer part of the teeth and decay sets in.

95 people out of every 100 are said to have "Acid-Mouth."

To preserve the teeth two things are necessary—keep them clean and keep up a constant fight against "Acid-Mouth."

The dentifrice that accomplishes both of these results is

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

In addition to cleansing the teeth it contains elements that counteract "Acid-Mouth." A single trial will give such a refreshing sense of cleanliness in the mouth that you will be convinced of its wonderful cleansing properties.

The world has been waiting to hear the true story of the execution of Edith Cavell. Brand Whitlock, U. S. Minister to Belgium, makes it public in the October Everybody's. Here it is, laid before the world in its pitiful and dramatic detail as only Brand Whitlock can express it.

WAR CLOUD JOGS TO EASY VICTORY

Papp and Kashmir Fail to Extend Macomber's Colt in Roslyn Handicap.

MAIN RIVALS WITHDRAWN

Sun Briar, Sunny Slope, and Jack Hare, Jr., Refuse Issue with Imported Racer.

A. K. Macomber's War Cloud, rated early in the season as one of the best colts of his age, dropped into a soft spot at Aqueduct yesterday in the Roslyn Handicap for three-year-olds. With Sun Briar, Jack Hare, Jr., and Sunny Slope either absent or ailing, War Cloud had little to oppose him, and he simply galloped over the mile and a sixteenth, to win by five lengths from Kashmir, with the greatly deteriorated Papp in third place.

Until War Cloud was let down in the stretch the contest was interesting, Kashmir and Papp racing to the war turn two lengths in front of the favorite. Kashmir pulled back on the turn, but Papp continued on his mad career and was still in the lead when he turned into the stretch. It was not until near the quarter pole that Loftus let War Cloud down, and when he did the race was over in a very few strides. Mr. Macomber won this event last year with Sunbonnet.

The Macomber silks were also carried to the front in the Highweight Handicap, at six furlongs, in which Hollister proved that he has a place among the good sprinters by carrying 134 pounds to an easy victory. Emil Herz's High Cost cut out the running, but Loftus kept Hollister close up until the stretch, where he went to the front and won with plenty in hand by a length and a half. G. W. Loft's Wise Man came strongly in the stretch and took the place from Arnold, which had been chasing Hollister all the way.

For the first time this season on local tracks the steeplechase was for three-year-olds only, and there was considerable interest in the event, which introduced [illegible] jumpers. Strange to say, Elysian, which was making his [illegible] with Whist II. and Mohab an equal demand. Whist II. made most of the running, closely attended by Mohab, a little more schooling. Elysian was let down on the last turn of the field, but Whist II. had enough left to beat him by a length and a half.

There was a rustling finish in the last race, for two-year-old fillies, in which the public choice, H. F. Whitney's Sketchy, finished just outside the money. Fairbrother rode W. R. Coe's Kiss Again with unusual vigor, and she won by a length from P. A. Clark's Merry Princess, with J. Fitzsimmon's Ballet Dancer third.

Torchbearer, an odds-on favorite for the fifth race, at a mile, had his path to victory made easier when the starter left three of the seven contenders at the post. It was simply a gallop for Torchbearer after that, and he had a margin of four lengths over Happy Valley at the finish.

Four favorites were successful, which is far above the average for the present meeting.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 24.—A card that comprised the best day's racing so far of the present Grand Circuit meeting also was enjoyed by the largest crowd of the week. Of the four stakes on the program for a total distribution of $15,000, but one was won in straight heats. Even the three-year-old colts in the Western Horseman's Futurity trotted some extra miles before a decision was reached.

Directum J. tripped off three winning heats in the 2:06 Board of Trade pace, equaling his record of 2:03¼ in the last heat with Little Batice chasing him out.

Ante Guy did an erratic first mile in the 2:12 Buckeye trot, finishing tenth because of a bad break. She trotted to a new record for her of 2:04¼ in the second heat and won the third handily.

One of the best battles of the day was between The Toddler and Wilkes Brewer in the Chamber of Commerce 2:08 trot. The Toddler dropped the third heat to the mare. She had him beaten in the second heat but broke at the wire. The Toddler trotted the last half of the fourth and winning heat in 1:01½ to shake off Wilkes Brewer.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 24.—C. E. Clement's Mary Maud, which has been racing with great consistency here, scored a popular victory this afternoon in the Florodora Purse for mares at a mile and seventy yards. MAYBERRY IN FRONT ON PARKWAY TRACK Driver Sends Deldie and El Clinta to Victory in Harness Matinees.

Charles Mayberry piloted two winners yesterday in the opening day's trotting and pacing of the Nassau Subscribers' Meeting on the Parkway track. Mayberry's first victory came in the 2:18 pace, in which he held the reins on J. Culp's bay mare Deldie. Mayberry sent the mare over the mile course to a straight-heat victory, and in all three of the heats beat the time for the class.

The first heat was covered with Deldie winning handily in 2:14 3-5. The Culp entry again showed marked superiority over the other horses in the second heat, passing the judges' stand in the van by a good margin over W. Urban's Jay Potter in 2:16½. In the third heat the closest race of the day was furnished, but again Mayberry's colors flashed under the wire first, this time in 2:15½.

In a special trotting race Mayberry guided J. Lee's El Clinta with such good effect that the mare won easily in straight heats.

The other special, for pacers, resulted in a convincing triumph for Moe Aronson's chestnut gelding Hal Direct. In the only other race on the card Marion Kirke won in straight heats in a field of five horses, the largest of the day.

AID REMOUNT DIVISION.

Pimlico Officials Plan Race for Eligible Animals.

Another new idea to make racing more essential has been offered by the Maryland Jockey Club which has completed arrangements for a remount breeding purse race to be decided during the coming meeting at Pimlico. This race was arranged at the request of those interested in the breeding department of the Remount Division of the United States Army. It will be run over a mile and will be for entire colts and horses, 3-year-olds and upward, with a purse of $,00, of which $500 will go to second, $300 to third, and $200 to fourth. There are special weights with penalties and allowances.

It is agreed that all starters may be purchased for $1,000 for the United States Remount Breeding Bureau within forty-eight hours of the time of the running of the race. The entries will close Nov. 2 and the race will be run Nov. 9. This early closing is arranged so that all horses entered may be examined by inspectors for ailments defined by the remount department, and such entries as are approved will be named as accepted starters.

The five stakes of the Maryland Jockey Club, to be decided at the coming meeting, will close today at the office of the club, 350 Equitable Building, Baltimore. In addition to the stakes to be decided this Fall the entries will also close for the Pimlico Nursery for 2-year-olds, to be run next Spring.

Cycle Race Arranged.

Unusual interest is being shown by cyclists of the local district in the two-mile bicycle race which will be held at the Cork Men's Association annual games at Celtic Park, Oct. 6. The race will be held under sanction of the National Cycling Association. Other events scheduled are Gaelic football and hurling matches.

SAMP TO COACH WILLIAMS.

Former Wisconsin Star Selected to Tutor Football Eleven.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Sept. 24.—Edward J. Samp, the old university Wisconsin gridiron star, will coach the Williams eleven this year, according to an announcement made today, succeeding Fred Walker, who turned out an undefeated eleven a year ago.

Samp will have Walker's one best bet to start with. Benny Boynton, all-America quarterback, who was a big factor in the Purple's success last Fall, has returned to college and he has been named Captain, to succeed Ted Brown, the original choice, who is with the colors.

Samp played three years of 'Varsity football at Wisconsin, holding forth at full back in 1911 and 1912, but shifting to tackle in 1913, when his university won the Western conference title. He was chosen all-Western tackle that year, and Walter Camp gave him mention in his all-America writeup. Samp coached at Hamilton in 1914 and assisted at Wisconsin the following year.

ALLOWS FRESHMEN TO PLAY

Western Colleges Asked to Raise All Bans on Athletics.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Steps taken by the Western and the Missouri Valley football conferences, composed of the largest colleges and universities in the Middle West, to waive eligibility rules this year and permit freshmen to play were indorsed today by Colonel R. I. Rees of the General Staff, in charge of the Students' Army Training Corps. In a letter to Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who at the request of the officials of both conferences submitted the matter to the War Department, Colonel Rees wrote:

"Inasmuch as the men in the Students' Army Training Corps would be there a relatively short time, and that the personnel of this corps is subject to change, it seems feasible to allow all men in the corps to participate in all athletic contests. It is the desire that every man receive a maximum amount of physical training, and that this training will not be confined to any particular class or set of men. To this end intermural contests are urged and such contests as will bring physical training to all of the corps are particularly suggested."

PENN STATE LOSES CAPTAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Penn., Sept. 24.—Harry D. Robb, Penn State's football Captain-elect, has joined the ranks of the army and the benedicts. He won a Lieutenant's bar at the Plattsburg Military Training Camp and took a bride yesterday at Pittsburgh. With these two new interests in life, Lieutenant Robb has forsaken the college gridiron and State's team is without a leader.

Last year he was a member of the State College Reserve Officers' Training Corps, where his qualities of leadership merited appointment to the Plattsburg camp. Lieutenant Robb was President-elect of the senior class, and played in the Penn State back field for two seasons.

He has been detailed to Columbia University as an instructor in the S. A. T. C.

N. Y. A. C. PLANS NEW EVENT.

Unlimited Handicap in Two-Mile Race to Feature Games.

A two-mile handicap race, to be known as the Liberty Loan Handicap, has been added to the program of track and field events which will be held by the New York A. C. at Travers Island Saturday to commemorate the centenary games of the Winged Foot club. The race will be an unlimited handicap affair. A suggestion was made that a limit be placed on the handicap marks, but this proposition was discarded by the Mercury Foot Athletic Committee, which decided that there should be no limit to anything connected with the Liberty Loan.

Indications are that the New York A. C. banquet, to be held Monday night at the Hotel Astor, will be a big success. The banquet will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the club.

Plan High School Chase.

The annual scholastic championship cross-country race will probably be held on Oct. 23 over the Jamaica High School course of about two and three-quarter miles.

FEMININE EXPERTS IN TENNIS TUSSLES

Only the stronger players in the women's and men's singles survived the advanced rounds in the continuation of the open tennis tournament at the Park Hill Country Club yesterday. As usual, the women made greater efforts and carried their end of the event to the semi-final round with Miss Clare Cassell and Mrs. Ingo F. Hartman opposed to each other in one-half of the draw and Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. E. V. Lynch holding the laurels in the other half.

Miss Cassell and Mrs. Hartman each were forced to the utmost before achieving victory. Miss Cassell first had to dispose of Mrs. Samuel W. Waring in the second round and it took two deuce sets to accomplish this end. Mrs. Waring made no end of trouble for Miss Cassell with a back-line smashing game. The placements of Mrs. Waring also were uncannily accurate. Miss Cassell is an able getter and she had to be to win at 6—4, 6—4. In the next round Miss Cassell met Miss Madeline Lowerre and had no such difficulty, winning by 6—2, 6—0.

Mrs. Hartman was opposed by Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and these two rivals of many contests fought through a bitter struggle before Mrs. Hartman won at 7—5, 6—4. Mrs. Pritchard smashed continually but was unable to control her placement shots as well as usual. Mrs. Hartman came to the net frequently and managed to finish off many points with a well-directed shot.

Mrs. E. V. Lynch swept aside the efforts of Miss Edith Adele Bagg at 6—1, 6—3, to gain her semi-final round bracket. Miss Wagner earned her laurels on the first day of the tourney.

In the men's singles Vincent Richards eliminated one of the strongest players in the tournament when he sent Fred Pianisani to decisive defeat with the score 6—0, 6—4. Pianisani was wholly unable to handle the speedy shots of Richards in the first set and only made headway in the second set when the young expert let down a trifle.

Allen Behr, Duke E. F. Thomas, and Elliot H. Binzen all gained semi-final brackets during the day. Behr defeated Alexander Iler of Pelham Bay at 6—3, 6—1, in a surprising match, since it was expected that Iler would put up a stiffer battle.

On Saturday there will be an exhibition doubles match with Vincent Richards and William T. Tilden, 2d, the national champions, pitted against Walter Merrill Hall and Elliot H. Binzen. Tilden has written that he may be able to come on for the match, but since he has been seriously ill it is doubtful if he can recover in time to play.

The summaries:

Fourth Round—Allen Behr defeated Alexander Iler, 6—3, 6—1; Duke E. F. Thomas defeated E. Welkovitz, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3; Elliot H. Binzen defeated Ingo F. Hartman, 7—5, 7—5.

Men's Doubles.—First Round—J. B. Hughes and Hugh Tallant defeated L. J. Gage and Dr. H. Rosen, 6—1, 6—1; G. M. McCallum and W. Richards defeated S. Du Brueil and J. Doyle, 6—4, 6—4.

Second Round—Elliot H. Binzen and H. B. O'Boyle defeated J. Lesterence and A. B. Duncan, 6—2, 6—1.

BASEBALL MELON IS CUT.

First Division Teams Share in World's Series Coin.

The National Commission has cut the world's series melon and distributed the spoils among the clubs which finished in the first division in the National and American Leagues. Under this new system, four clubs in each circuit share in the money, instead of the pennant-winning players taking it all.

The Giants and the Cleveland Club, which finished in second place in the major league races, received $6,961.53, after the 10 per cent. for war charities had been deducted. As there were about twenty players on each club, they received a little over $300 each.

The Cincinnati and Washington Clubs received $4,176.95 for finishing in third place, and the Yankees and Pittsburgh Clubs got $2,785.53 for finishing in fourth place.

Although the players on the Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs objected to the other clubs getting any money at all until they received their full share of the spoils, the National Commission did not see its way clear to change the rules all over again at such short notice. Before baseball gets under way again, however, there may be another change. The new conditions were strongly advocated by former President John K. Tener of the National League, and, as he is now out of baseball, the leagues may revert to the old condition of affairs.

The Yankee players, after deducting their 10 per cent. for war charities, received about $154 each for their share of the series.

SERVICE HARRIERS TO RACE.

A. A. U. Plans Cross-Country Chase for Enlisted Men.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—To encourage cross-country running among men in the army and navy Championship Committee of the National A. A. U. today decided to hold a United States Service cross-country championship in the various district associations of the A. A. U. on or before Jan. 1.

Three championships will very likely be held in the following cities: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis, Birmingham, New Orleans, Kansas City, Camp Cody, San Diego, San Francisco and Portland, Ore.

The committee awarded the national A. A. U. ten-mile run and seven-mile walk to the Morningside Athletic Club of New York. The events will be held on Sunday, Oct. 2. Charles Pores, the national five-mile champion, will be one of the contestants in the ten-mile event.

Experts today proclaimed the three days' carnival, which closed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station yesterday, the greatest ever held by the National Amateur Athletic body.

SUBWAY SHUTTLE TO RESUME OCT. 5

Service Board Thinks Station Changes Make Times Square-Grand Central Route Safe.

BETTER SERVICE DEMANDED

Broadway and Fifth Avenue Associations Meet to Discuss a Course of Action.

The shuttle service through Forty-second Street between the west and east side subways at Times Square and the Grand Central station is to be resumed by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on or before Oct. 5.

When this service was first operated, early in August, as part of the new subway system, so much confusion was caused by the heavy cross-currents of traffic that it was withdrawn, with the promise that it would be resumed within a few days. Since then the engineers of the Public Service Commission have been busy making changes in the two stations, and it was not until yesterday that the commission felt that these changes were far enough advanced to warrant the setting of a specified time for the resumption of the service. The commission is said to believe that the patrons of the main lines have grown so accustomed to the new routes and have adapted themselves to them to such an extent that no one will use the shuttle unless compelled to do so by sheer necessity.

What changes have been made in the stations to afford greater accommodations to the public and to do away with the dangers that attended the first attempt to use the shuttle are deemed by the commission to be ample to afford the fullest accommodation possible until the tunnels under the East River and all of the terminals are completed.

The platform used for the crosstown service at the Grand Central Station has been extended by a temporary structure across the line of the old northbound local tracks into the mezzanine of the new Grand Central station. This makes an additional route to and from the crowwtown platform, and will do away with the dangers of crosscurrents of traffic in one passageway, which was one of the causes of the confusion when the shuttle service was first operated. A number of iron railings have been placed both at the Grand Central and at Times Square. Before the shuttle service is resumed new signs and guide posts will be placed at both stations so that all may know the way to travel.

Residents of Washington Heights and of other uptown sections have written many letters to the commission asking for the resumption of the shuttle service. They complained of the inconvenience to which they were put in order to reach places of business on the lower east side. Many have been compelled to walk long distances, or to spend extra nickels on crosstown surface lines.

The commission asks that those who have been walking to stations on the west side subway continue doing so in order that the shuttle service may not be overburdened. It was pointed out by the commission that substantially equal facilities exist for all persons south of Chambers Street as both the subway lines are about equal in accessibility. It was said that the shuttle service would probably consist of three six-car trains.

While the commission was preparing to begin running the shuttle trains representatives of the Broadway Association and the Fifth Avenue Association were gathered at the Manhattan Hotel discussing plans for compelling improvement of the subway service. It was finally decided to appoint a committee to confer with persons having special interest in the matter and to adopt a course of action to be submitted to a meeting next Tuesday.

This committee consists of Louis Stern, Chairman; Howard B. Boden, Alexander Wilson, Robert Grier Cooke, Bresident of the Fifth Avenue Association, and R. W. Harrington of the Times Square Committee of the Broadway Association. It was deemed unwise to confine the movement to those mainly interested in the resumption of the shuttle service, or in some other method for connecting the west and east subways, and it was decided to invite co-operation of all of the civic associations, and especially those interested in the Washington Heights region.

One of the plans of the committee is to obtain the signatures to a petition or address to the Public Service Commission asking for the quick restoration of the cross-town service either by shuttle or by such a plan as that of Frederick C. Weber, which provides for a belt line service traversing both sides of the borough, or by running trains down the east side tracks from Times Square, which was recently declared by the Interborough company to be impractical.

ADMITS POOR CAR SERVICE.

Hedley Says Railways Company Is Heading Toward Destruction.

At the hearing yesterday before the Public Service Commission concerning the service rendered by the New York Railways Company on the surface lines Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the company, admitted that the service was from 20 to 25 per cent. less than the schedules called for because the company was paying out more money each day than it was taking in. He said that he would not buy bonds of the company if they were offered to him at 8 cents on the dollar, for the reason that the company was heading toward financial destruction. He said that nothing could save the company if it was not permitted to increase the fare or to charge for transfers.

Commissioner Ordway suggested that if the night car service was discontinued the daytime service might be made more decent and comfortable. Mr. Hedley was not inclined to favor the discontinuance of evening service, but he expressed no opinion concerning the lessening of the service at night for the purpose of bettering it in the daytime. Figures concerning the value of the company's property were submitted by John Eubelacher, a consulting engineer. The hearing will be resumed today.

AT THE FUR AUCTION.

Fox, Beaver, and Marten Among the Pelts Sold Yesterday.

Bidding for white fox was one of the chief features of the second day of the annual Fall sale of raw furs that is now being held in the Masonic Temple here. Beaver also caused something of a stir. Silver fox brought out numerous bids, and prices, as a rule, were higher than had been expected. This was attributed to active buying for foreign account, especially for Danish interests.

Sundry foxes, which opened yesterday's selling, were quickly disposed of, as were kitt foxes. The highest price got for kitt fox was $1.65, and was paid by E. R. Skinner of Sacramento, Cal. Revillon Frères of this city bought the best gray fox pelts at $4.50 each. The revival of the demand for beaver was brought out by the way the bids for these skins came in. The best lot of beaver, made up of extra large and large skins, went to Fred R. Hill. The price paid was $22.75.

Marten sold well, especially the dark skins. These brought high prices, while the lighter colored ones sold practically at the levels established at the April sale. Jacob Adler got the best dark marten at $75.50, which was regarded as a very good price. Other marten buyers were H. Jaeckel & Sons; Gross, Engel & Co., and Joseph Sanditz of St. Louis.

The snappy bidding for white fox featured the afternoon session. There were not many of these skins but, with general market supplies depleted by their active sale for Summer use, the demand for them was large. The choicest pelts were disposed of to Joseph Steiner & Brothers at $58 each. Milton Schreiber & Co., and G. J. Fuerth were among the other buyers of white fox. Nearly 2,700 white fox paws were also disposed of. For the best silver fox $800 was paid by H. Jaeckel & Sons of this city. P. D. Olsen, who registered from Nome, Alaska; C. G. Gunther's Sons, Jacob Adler, Milton Schreiber & Co., and Revillon Frères also bought "silvers."

The total for the two days' selling was announced at the close as $1,200,000. Compared with the average prices obtained at the Spring sale of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation here last April, kitt fox and marten showed no change. Beaver showed a decline of 10 per cent., but the other furs, in percentage, advanced as follows: Gray fox, 20; white fox, 35, and silver fox, 20.

During the day further pledges to the forthcoming Liberty Loan were increased to $1,470,800. The chief pledges, each for $50,000, were made by the Eilingon-Schild Company, Waldemar Eilingon, and the Edward M. Speer Corporation.

The sale will go on today at 10 A. M. Among the offerings will be about 55,000 skunks, 42,000 ermine, and 202,000 mole. Other furs to be sold today are house cat, kolinsky, badger, otter, leopard, ocelot, and chinchilla.

Education Board Combines Two Jobs with an $8,000 Salary.

After the transaction of routine business yesterday afternoon the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Education held a private session, which lasted two hours. At its conclusion President Somers announced that the salary of the Director of Reference and Research and Statistician had been fixed at $8 000 and that Tristram W. Metcalfe, formerly in charge of the school department of The Evening Globe had been chosen for the office. The appointment will probably be made at today's meeting of the board.

GERMAN CANNON IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—German cannon captured by American and allied troops on the western front were dragged through the business district of this city in a parade today by companies of the State Guard and navy reservists.

The trophies, brought to New England to boom the Fourth Liberty Loan, included 105 m.m. 77 calibre guns, howitzers, trench mortars, anti-aircraft guns, and depth bombs. Most of them bore the Krupp mark and were made within the last year.

The guns will be exhibited in more than 200 communities in New England.

OLD DONIZETTI OPERA BY NATIVE ARTISTS

Marie	Bianca Saroya
Tonio	David Bispham
Orfensio	Craig Campbell
A Peasant	Harvey Wilson
A Notary	Harvey Wilson
A Duchess	Mary Kent

Conductor—Henry Hadley.

When a veteran of three campaigns of the Society of American Singers for opera in English, by native artists, paused midway in Act II of "The Daughter of the Regiment" at the Park Theatre last night to sing "La Marseillaise," a wartime audience of patriotic Americans showed appreciation of the incident as it might in the coming Liberty Loan campaign on Broadway. David Bispham sang the air, Henry Hadley conducted, and the Opera Comique orchestra played till the house rang. At the final curtain the entire company and audience sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," which had also been played when the performance began.

Donizetti's "fifty-third opera," in a list of which few survive today, resohed America by way of the old French Opera House in New Orleans seventy-five years ago, after a Paris première. Its heroine, Marie, has been sung in New York by Jenny Lind, Sontag, Lucca, Patti, and at the Metropolitan in the seasons 1901-3 by Sembrich. Until Hempel and Scotti revived the military piece last December, after fourteen years, the only like occasion was at the Manhattan, Nov. 22, 1909, with Tetrazzini, John McCormack, and the late Charles Gilbert.

Bianca Saroya, an Aborn graduate, gave the music of Marie last evening with zest of youth and real skill as comédienne. Julia Henry, daughter of Max Heinrich, was the Countess, while Craig Campbell as Tony and Mr. Bispham as Sergeant Sulpice not only acted and sang, but talked, to the enlightenment of many who could not have followed the brisk little plot when done in French or Italian. There were also Mary Kent, the former Marie van Essen, as a Duchess, and John Quine as Corporal with minor rôles by Walter Greene and Harvey Wilson.

William Hinshaw, now President of the society, announced a first concert next Sunday evening, to be led by Mr. Hadley, with Florence Hinkle, Ruth Miller, Viola Robertson, Craig Campbell, Carl Formes, Henri Scott, and the Russian 'cellist, Max Gegna.

'TELL THAT TO THE MARINES'

The versatile Adolf Philipp, an impresario and author, who has long been active both in the German and English speaking drama, last night introduced a new régime at his Yorkville Theatre by offering "an American play by American authors, with an American cast." Mr. Philipp himself is one of the authors, the other being Edward A. Paulton, and is also the head of the American cast. The first production of his season is a patriotic piece entitled "Tell That to the Marines," which, although undeniably American, is also a poor play.

A German-American father is its central figure, and its hero a son who goes forth to war under a cloud, to return to his contrite father when the latter discovers that the cloud should have hovered over another. The fact that it was a very silly cloud, anyhow, is not the least of the play's weak spots, for the piece is at all times crude. Most of the acting also is amateurish, although Mr. Philipp, as the German-American father, has one or two real moments.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

The Husky Dog

WHEN snow is on the ground, and this is for the greater part of the year, the only method of transportation in the North is the dog sledge drawn by the Eskimo or husky dog. A fine dog team is greatly prized in the North country, and long distance races between rival teams is a not infrequent sporting event.

Every Revillon post has its dog team and dog driver for communicating with other posts in winter. The husky dog is a handsome creature, but rarely gentle enough to make a satisfactory pet These sledge dogs are as carefully bred as the bench show favorites which pass the door of our Fifth Avenue store.

BARON BURIAN'S OPINIONS.

In Baron BURIAN'S scrap book, carefully kept, President WILSON'S declarations of principles "for the new arrangement of the world" find a prominent place. The Austrian Foreign Minister is familiar with the text of these declarations and we must suppose that he understands their meaning. His attention may be invited particularly to No. 1 of the four principles set forth in the President's Fourth of July address "which must "be conceded before there can be any "peace":

> The destruction of every arbitrary Power anywhere, that can separately, secretly, and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world, or if it cannot be presently destroyed, at least its reduction to virtual impotence.

The Baron ought to get down on his knees and fervently pray that this decree may be enforced. It would make a man of him, it would raise his country to the status of an independent nation. He now serves two masters, one in Vienna, one in Potsdam. Potsdam is paramount. It must be a constant humiliation to him, in his relations with his own sovereign, to be forced always to consult Potsdam before he can give advice or determine a policy. The destruction of the "Potsdam gang," for that is what Mr. WILSON meant, the destruction or reduction to impotence of the Prussian irresponsible military power would free Austria from vassalage and give her Minister of Foreign Affairs a better position. In loyalty to his sovereign and to his country, the Baron ought to give his unqualified approval of this first principle.

There are others to which he might assent. To many of the principles embodied in the fourteen declarations put forth on Jan. 8, Austria should agree, since they would serve as an assurance of her freedom from German control. The "adjustment of all colonial claims" in the interests of the populations concerned would cause groans in Germany but do no harm to Austria. The evacuation of all Russian territory now under German dominance would diminish the might of her dangerous neighbor without damage to her own interest. The evacuation of Belgium and the righting of the wrong done to France in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine would not particularly concern her. Some of the principles she will find it hard to accept. The readjustment of the Italian frontiers "along clearly recognizable lines of nationality"; guarantees of the political and economic independence and territorial integrity of the Balkan States; "the freest opportunity of autonomous development" for the peoples of Austria-Hungary; the creation of an independent Polish State, including territories "inhabited by indisputably Polish populations"—to all these she might set up the objection of her vital interests.

But Baron BURIAN ought to see that the accomplishment of these purposes would serve as a guarantee to Austria against the devastation of future wars. There is an impression that Austria does not want any more war. She has pretty uniformly been unsuccessful in her wars, they have wasted her substance, they have been begun and carried on chiefly for selfish and dynastic ends, and they have given Austria a bad reputation among nations. If she wants peace, if she would regain good standing and the respect of other nations, she would be wise in assenting to the President's principles. It must come to that in the end. Baron BURIAN is careful and exact in enumeration. Mr. WILSON has "set out his fourteen points, and, "in addition, twice four; that is, alto-"gether twenty-two." Every one of them was carefully formulated as a part of a consistent whole, the purpose of the twenty-two war aims being to make sure that "this agony shall not be gone through with again." These are the terms upon which Austria may have peace; she will have to accept them either willingly or against her will; she might as well give her assent now as later.

But the Baron is still beating about the bush. He is very careful in what he says about Mr. WILSON; studious in his avoidance of ground of offense. He does say that "it does not do to be "always contrasting our actions with "the views expressed by President "WILSON'S points." That is one of the eternal verities of this war. We are glad that the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister perceives that his Government cannot stand the comparison. The sending of the note to Serbia, the rejection of the Serbian reply, and the attack upon Serbia are a black reproach to the Hapsburg Government. They are acts in violent contradiction of the principles of right and justice and human freedom which Mr. WILSON has repeatedly and with such eloquence declared to be fundamental, which he insists must be established and recognized, which all the people of the United States, 100,000,000 of them, with immense resources, will support him in enforcing. "We "shall take the next step when the "time seems suitable, always in full-"est accord with our allies." That is a foolish utterance unless Baron BURIAN is prepared to admit complete defeat and make Germany admit it too. When that admission is made at Vienna and at Potsdam, the "suitable time" for the next step will have come, not until then. Untimely, because doomed to rejection, would be any half-way or veiled admissions of defeat. The Allies are determined that the Quadruple Alliance must know it is beaten and say so. An equivocal confession will serve no purpose. That has been tried, it failed. And all the time, in Palestine, on the Macedonian front, in the west, as well as in the vast domain of Russia, the fortunes of war are going against the Central Powers. There will be no peace for them except a peace dictated by the Allies.

TREATY-BREAKING PROHIBITION.

By a vote of 171 to 34, the House of Representatives accepted the Senate prohibition amendment to the Food Stimulation bill. The United States, if this amendment is not amended or killed, will be dry after June 30, 1919. The manufacture of beer, wine, &c., will end on May 1, 1919. The importation of "distilled, malt, vinous, or other intoxicating liquors" is to be prohibited "after the approval of this act."

At the request of Secretary LANSING, the Committee of the Whole had accepted an amendment allowing the importation of wines until May 1, 1919. If importation of wines is to end with the approval of the act, as the amendment read originally and as it now reads again, the wine exporting countries, such as Spain, Portugal, Italy, and France, will be treated differently from and more unfavorably than the United States. Each one of them, so far as the importation of stimulants is concerned, will no longer be on a basis of "the most favored nation." This is an old, regular, one may say almost an elementary and indispensable, proviso of treaties with foreign nations. We have made, and foreign nations have made with us, stipulations for equality of treatment. For the sacred purpose of foisting war prohibition upon the country, the House, by a vote of more than 5 to 1, calmly kicks international agreements into a cocked hat, becomes in its poor little imitation way a devotee of the "scrap of paper" theory of treaties.

If the bill is not changed, in accordance with the representation of Mr. LANSING, into decency and common sense enough not to violate international agreements, at least three of which affect our allies in the war, there is apprehension of a veto. There is sound domestic, as well as sound foreign, reason for forbidding this half-baked, fanatical measure. Senator THOMAS of Colorado said in the Senate on the day of the prohibition victory over treaties in the House that "it is worse than hy-"pocrisy to levy a huge tax on "liquors on hand, destroy their value "by forbidding their sale, and then "require all other forms of taxable "wealth to supply the deficit." Something like $750,000,000 a year to be thrown away for the sake of gratifying the Anti-Saloon League and the cowardice of politicians. A tidy sum, but not enough for the virtuous House. In the cause of prohibition the United States must break its word.

BULGARIA AND PEACE.

Only last Spring the Bulgarian Premier was boasting: "Serbia has ceased to exist." Now that the Serbians are driving the Bulgarians out of their Macedonian conquests at the rate of twenty-five miles a day, no small accomplishment for the army of a nonexistent nation, the Bulgarian Government "hastens to express" its eagerness to participate in the conference proposed by Austria. We are assured that Bulgaria seeks neither conquests nor hegemony over her neighbors, and that she sympathizes with President WILSON'S views on the settlement of Balkan conflicts in accordance with the rights of nationalities.

Well, Bulgaria never called her conquests conquests. When she overran Macedonia, the Dobrudja, and Eastern Serbia, and claimed all those territories as permanent possessions, she called it the redintegration of the Bulgarian people. She has done her best to make the conquered populations Bulgarian by methods to which many witnesses have testified. The unhappy peasant is visited by a commission which asks him if he is Serbian or Bulgarian. If he says he is Bulgarian, whether because he really is Bulgarian or because he is prudent, he is taken forcibly into the Bulgarian Army; his name is changed, and his religion. If he says he is Serbian, he is stood up before a firing squad and Bulgarian soldiers presently play football with his severed head.

By such methods as these, coupled with deportations of women and children and the selling of men as slaves to the Turks, the Bulgarian Government has been preparing for the possible necessity of submitting the fate of Macedonia to a popular vote. The survivors, apostasized at the point of the bayonet, will be asked to exercise the right of self-determination. The Bulgarian renunciation of conquests which only a few months ago Bulgarian statesmen and Bulgarian newspapers were considering as eternally incorporated in Bulgaria can hardly mean anything else than an attempt to utilize the principle of self-determination to save something of the occupied territory.

Before the Germans began to retreat in France, a former Bulgarian Minister asserted that America's influence would be exerted at the peace conference to guarantee Bulgaria's possession of the territory she had conquered. The present statement may reasonably be regarded as an appeal to those friends of Bulgaria in Washington, New York, and Boston who have been regaling us with tales of Bulgaria's eagerness to change sides in the war. It is worth while for other Americans to remember that this "renunciation" did not come until the Bulgarian armies in Macedonia had been broken by the Serbs, Greeks, French, and British, under General FRANCHET D'ESPEREY. Last Spring Serbia had "ceased to exist," and the German alliance was declared to be the cornerstone of Bulgarian policy for all time.

ERZBERGER'S LEAGUE.

Many persons have a good deal more confidence in a name than the facts warrant. The value of the name depends on who uses it and why, and what is meant by it. "League of Nations" is a fine name; but there is no sense in becoming ecstatic whenever one hears it. It is better to find out who is talking about the League of Nations, why he does it, and what he means by it. After that it may turn out that he means something just the opposite to what you mean by it.

These considerations apply to our old friend MATHIAS ERZBERGER, who is at the front again with a complete scheme for a League of Nations. The last time we heard from him he was talking about "no annexations and no indemnities," which is also a fine phrase, depending for its importance upon who uses it and why, and what he means by it. Mr. ERZBERGER got the Reichstag to pass a resolution declaring for the principle, or rather for the phrase. The world knew who introduced it; it was ERZBERGER. It knew why; because things were not looking well for Germany. Later the world found out what he meant by it: the treaty of Brest-Litovsk.

With this recollection fresh in its mind, the world will examine with hilarity Mr. ERZBERGER'S proposal for a League of Nations. When we talk about a League of Nations we mean a league that will keep Germany from attempting to garrote the world again as she did in 1914. When a German talks about a League of Nations he means one in which Germany will have a leading part and which she can use to her advantage when next she issues from her lair to pounce upon the neighboring flocks.

Mr. ERZBERGER'S League of Nations is to "guarantee the territorial pos-"sessions of each federated State, as "well as undisturbed possession of "colonies." In other words, Germany is to work her will on the wretched negroes whom she has been slaughtering and enslaving in Africa, and who are fast being delivered by the French, British, Belgians, and Portuguese. Her title to them is to be made permanent and underwritten by the free nations of the world. We are similarly to guarantee to Turkey the undisturbed possession of Armenia and Palestine, which are not colonies, but "territorial possessions." We are to guarantee to Germany the possession of Alsace and Lorraine, and we are to turn the Czechoslovaks and Jugoslavs over to Austria and guarantee her possession of them.

The league is to protect the neutralization of such States as Belgium and Luxemburg, just as the European Powers bound themselves to protect the neutralization of those States long before 1914. "A scrap of paper," the German Chancellor called that bond when the time came for Germany to tear it up. Mr. ERZBERGER'S proposal, therefore, is that we all make again, in a slightly different form, the same agreement that the Powers made before, and trust Germany not to tear it up again the next time it suits her.

All the nations in the league are to be bound to defend any one of them which is "attacked." It is to be borne in mind that no nation ever admits that it is the attacking party. Germany and Austria are quite pathetic on this subject whenever they talk about it; they have been ruthlessly attacked and are only defending themselves. What Mr. ERZBERGER'S proposal comes down to, then, is that the nations are to be bound in an offensive and defensive alliance. It is the Holy Alliance over again, under a different name. That alliance, too, was framed in the most benevolent language and for the most pious purposes.

Then the nations would agree to cut down their "land, naval, and "aerial forces, according to a fixed "standard to be agreed upon." England would set about dismantling her navy, for instance, taking Germany's promise to dismantle hers. The British Navy is what has saved the world. If Germany could get that kind of agreement made, she could almost afford to enter the League of Nations without other conditions and trust to luck in her next war.

Not less amusing is his proposal to internationalize "connecting seas." That would work some entertaining marvels, such as the control of the English Channel and the French coast by Germany, France, and England jointly; for despite the pretty word "internationalizing," that is what his proposal would come to. When England and France thus give themselves over to the German knife it will be because Germany has conquered them and they cannot resist.

The nations are to give up using troops raised in colonies, so that in the next war Germany will not have to confront those feared and formidable colonials that the French and English have used against her. Finally, of course, if any nation in the league is so wicked as to invade another, the whole league is to unite against her. So, if Germany invades Belgium again, England, France, and the rest will take up arms to defend Belgium. In other words, Germany is willing to grant them the right to do what they would do anyway, what they have been doing for the last four years.

There will be a League of Nations, but it will not be Mr. ERZBERGER'S German-ruled league. It will be a league to which Germany will not be admitted until the other nations have assured themselves that she no longer has the power to threaten their lives again as she has been doing since she last tore up a scrap of paper. And it will not be a league for the purpose of returning Palestine to the Turk or the hapless Herreros to Germany, still less for the purpose of so crippling the police of the seas as to make piracy easy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Their Own Advice Forgotten.

There is a chance for all sorts of cynical comment—and one that certainly will not be neglected—in the news that when Washington had its first touch of real Fall weather this week the employés in several of the departments declared that they could not work their typewriters in a temperature of 50 degrees, and steam heat was at once turned on to make them comfortable. And among the offices where this was done were those of the Fuel Administration, the very place whence has been sent all over the country something between a command and a supplication to the rest of us that we should on no account begin to burn our coal—if we had any—until Nov. 1.

To anybody with a well-developed sense of humor, that will pass as merely funny, or as prettily illustrating what very human creatures human creatures are. Others, however, may take a graver view of the episode and deliver more or less impassioned lectures on the not altogether imaginary inclination of public servants to exempt themselves from the application of the rules they lay down for people not in positions of authority. But, with the best of good-will and the least desire to be unduly critical, one cannot help seeing a certain incongruity in the haste which these Washingtonians made to save themselves from discomforts which people in other parts of the country have been exhorted by them wisely and patriotically to endure.

It is a fact that indoor work cannot be done either efficiently or safely with the thermometer at 50. Especially is this true with an epidemic of influenza well started in many parts of the United States. It would therefore probably be too much to expect from the fuel administering staff that, having coal at their command, they should now shiver and snuffle in order that they might minimize for themselves—and other folk—what is, after all, little more than a possibility that the coal supply may give out entirely in January or February. Ills as far off as that do not fill the average mind with much terror, especially when there is in the hearts of all the hope, amounting to the belief, that somehow or other we are going to be saved from freezing to death.

As our own State Fuel Administrator says, if we have a mild Winter, and if we don't waste any coal, there won't be any serious trouble for anybody.

Resistance Can't Be Victorious.

That there has been a change amounting to a reversal in the war situation could hardly have more convincing proof than is presented in the latest production of the faithful ROSNER, reporter in ordinary and extraordinary of the Kaiser's doings and of the speeches made by and to that remarkable monarch. Often and often has the faithful one revealed to the presumably delighted Germans, and incidentally to the rest of the world, the confidence of his lord, stern but calm, that his armies were advancing through heroically borne hardships to victory and a good peace. Now the best he can make his once lyric pen set down is that, as the Kaiser passed along the battle lines—well behind them, of course—his Generals assured him, and his soldiers confirmed the assurance, that "they shall not pass."

That was a noble promise, and it was nobly kept, when the French grimly uttered it at Verdun, where they did not even hope to do more than stop an enemy superior to themselves in numbers, equipment, and everything else except courage and a good cause. But Germany on the defensive—really on it, this time, and not in insolent pretense—is a very different spectacle and a sorry one.

For the Germans to say no more than "they shall not pass," is to admit, if not impending defeat, at least that their war has been a failure, that all their plans of conquest have been abandoned, and that they have lowered their expectations to the avoidance of utter ruin.

According to Herr ROSNER, the Kaiser hears now none of the cheers that greeted him in the good old days when he was fixing dates for the occupation of Paris and the taking of Calais and Dunkirk. He has to content himself with "the same unshakable and sure calmness which never for a moment doubts of a victorious resistance." The Kaiser knows enough about war, however it may be with his favorite scribe, to be aware that resistance, though it may be successful, is never victorious, and that to call it so is a contradiction in terms.

Why Bring Them Back Here?

From Panama comes the news that agents of the American Government have found and arrested in Venezuela two young men who went there from this country to avoid the draft. It seems that the precious pair were "traveling with their mother," which tells a good deal about both the two boys and her, and that, not trusting to distance alone for safety from compulsion to risk their valuable lives in the service of their country, they had chosen to pass under another name than their own. Such youths as they would naturally feel safer in a wild land like Venezuela with their mother along to look after them, but one hardly knows whether to praise or blame them for having abandoned, "for the duration of the war," the patronymic of LIVINGSTONE, which the dispatch said was theirs.

On the one hand, if a young man found it really necessary to be a slacker, it would show a lingering sense of decency for him to drop a name all the many associations of which were with patriotism, courage, and the respectability which courage and patriotism engender. On the other hand, a young man with a name as good as LIVINGSTONE might fairly be expected to live up to its obligations and to have a special horror for losing whatever of honor there may be in having ancestors who were "gentle" in quite another sense from the one in which the pacifist uses the word.

Possibly these particular LIVINGSTONES acquired that name, not by heredity, but through choice confirmed by an obliging court. Even that, however, would not make the case much better. The selection of such a name in place of one less euphonious to American ears evidences that for a time at least those who chose it had appreciation for merit and aspired to be worthy of comparison with previous bearers of it. But these boys evidently fell away from a level once reached, and it looks as if they were a bad, bad lot.

"DOUGHBOY" ACCEPTABLE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's issue of your paper I notice a protest from Charles L. Robinson against the term "doughboy" as used "to refer to our troops or soldiers." Evidently your correspondent has been misinformed—or, rather, uninformed—as to the meaning of "doughboy." The term is only applied to men in the infantry. It is an old army term, I believe, and no doubt some of our "old soldiers" could enlighten Mr. Robinson as to its origin. He considers the term as unpatriotic, and, possibly, as an insult. If he has a son in the service over there, I would advise him to get the youngster's opinion of the matter. Two weeks ago I arrived in the United States, having been invalided home after nine months' service abroad in the Engineer Corps, and I know that the infantrymen in France consider the term "doughboy" as a compliment. Many a time I have asked a man what branch of the service he was in, and, if he was an infantryman, he would always stick out his chest and say, "I'm a doughboy."

A VETERAN FROM "OVER THERE."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The term "doughboy," to which an indignant father in today's TIMES so strenuously objects, is not a recent invention of the war correspondents. It is probably as old as the army itself. Nor does it apply to all branches of the service. If Mr. Robinson's son is in the cavalry or artillery he can possess his soul in peace. His son is not a doughboy. The name applies only to our gallant infantrymen, and is said to have its origin in the use of flour to clean the white stripes of the infantry's trousers. At least that is what was told me some twenty-five years ago when I married an infantry officer. It would be interesting to know if there were any other explanation.

ARMY WOMAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The objections of your correspondent to the use of the word "doughboy" would hardly be concurred in by the infantrymen themselves. The term is army slang, and was originated in the service and not by the correspondents. The infantry has long been known as the "flower" of the service, hence the term "doughboy." In like manner we have "wagon soldiers," referring to the field artillery, and "yellow legs" to the cavalry, &c. Though perhaps not artistic, these terms are known and used throughout the entire army, and no odium or stigma is attached thereto. It is perfectly natural that the correspondents through daily association with the "flower" of our army should refer to the men as "doughboys." A DOUGHBOY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the large and imperative need of chewing gum for our soldiers has been so brilliantly urged by a few correspondents, and perhaps deplored by others with equal eloquence, it may be there is a possibility of compromise, so that real benefit shall go where it belongs. Civilians find themselves better able to conserve than they could have supposed in ante-bellum years. Many essentials are used sparingly, and some products hitherto considered essential are used not at all. Why should not this apply to chewing gum? There is no doubt it has been looked upon in some quarters as the staff of life, but even so, there are some medical objections to it. If it is necessary in a patriotic sense, why cannot we send all our chewing gum to our armies, and let gum-chewing at home subside for the period of the war? It is a consummation devoutly to be considered, provided, that is, we are sure the military authorities approve. If the soldier has use for chewing gum, no doubt he will get it and use it intelligently. Therefore, let us see that home consumption ceases without delay.

JOHN HUTCHINSON, M. D.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Broadway has been the main artery of travel on Manhattan Island for three hundred years. It is a natural one, and is going to continue to be the main artery of travel despite the efforts of any one. It was that way when the elevated roads were built, that trade and travel could be diverted along other streets, but it did not do so to any great extent.

The idea of cutting up Broadway so that three separate routes were placed on this street to the convenience of no one was a wrong idea, and you will never get the public trained to the point where there will not be wholesale transferring of passengers nor will any route be designed on the present system that will be a convenience to the majority, until there is one through route from one end of Broadway to the other. CHAPLAINS LOSE INSIGNIA.

Will Be Designated Only by Cross, Giving Up Sign of Rank.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Orders have been issued by the War Department depriving chaplains in the army of their insignia of military rank. Hereafter they will wear only the insignia of chaplain as well as the letters "U. S." on their collars.

This action was recommended by those in charge of the American Expeditionary Force abroad. There is a strong feeling among officers in the overseas army that chaplains should not wear insignia of military rank. It is asserted to be the opinion of officers there, and this view has been adopted by the War Department, that chaplains can be of greater service to the men if they do not wear military insignia.

It is argued that the wearing of military insignia does not give the men the same sort of attitude toward the chaplains that would exist where only the chaplain's insignia is worn. It is asserted that where the insignia of higher military rank is worn the men seem to show a reticence about going for spiritual advice, and that where the military insignia is not worn there is a readier disposition among the soldiers to treat the chaplains as chaplains rather than as military officers.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 24.—Chaplains in the United States army hereafter will wear no insignia of official rank, retaining only the cross, according to a War Department order received late yesterday by Major A. A. Pruden, commandant of the school for chaplains and approved chaplain candidates at Camp Taylor.

Great dissatisfaction among students at the school is said to have been caused by the order, and last night it was reported that more than 100 of the members of a class of 252 who are to be graduated Thursday had wired to authorities of the churches to which they belong and to members of Congress protesting against the War Department's action.

DENIES PACKERS OWN BANK.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, appeared before the Senate Agricultural Committee today in connection with suggestions recently made in the Senate that the packers influenced the Chamber's report to President Wilson attacking the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Wheeler denied there was any foundation for the suggestion, but made no general statement concerning the report, asking that the Secretary of the Chamber be called.

Senator Norris of Nebraska questioned the witness for an hour in an effort to establish a business connection between the Union Trust Company of Chicago, of which Mr. Wheeler is Vice President, and Armour & Co. Mr. Wheeler said the Union Trust Company had loaned money to the Armours, that the firm had an account with his bank, but that no officer of the bank was an officer of Armour & Co. He said he could not say as to the ownership of the stock of the two institutions.

Taking up the Trade Commission's report stating that the packers were entrenched in financial institutions, Senator Norris said he wanted to find out whether the Union Trust Company was a packers' bank. Mr. Wheeler declared it was unfair to bring the bank into the inquiry. He said so far as the Chamber of Commerce was concerned, it was anxious for the public to know who had contributed to it before it became a self-supporting organization.

Asked by Senator Norris if the Chamber denied the truth of any of the statements made in the Federal Trade Commission's report, Mr. Wheeler declined to answer, saying the report should speak for itself.

Carless Sunday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Before the authorities at Washington banish for all time the really idyllic conditions that have existed for the last four never-to-be-forgotten Sundays, I feel drawn to express what I am sure must be the feelings of thousands of other carless people.

Today I spent some time in one of the parks of a nearby city, a park I have visited many times before, but never until today did I stand transfixed by the beauty and tranquillity of the scene about me. A carless Sunday! The beautiful drives where children played, where an occasional horse-drawn vehicle could enjoy for an afternoon the shady drives which are denied them when cars hold sway! It is impossible for me to convey the absolute relief, the relaxation, I felt in strolling about, free for a day from the noise and dust and smell of the gasoline motor. I am sure if I owned a garage full of cars that such a carless Sunday as this would be not a hardship, but just the pleasure it has been today. E. F. S.

Bowling Green's Historic Fence.

The hand-wrought iron fence that surrounded Bowling Green was one of the oldest and most interesting relics of New York's Colonial period. I have passed by it—and through it—hundreds of times, yet almost never without noticing the rough tops of the slender iron posts, and recollecting that loyal Americans had knocked off the crowns that adorned them until the approach of the Revolution loosed patriotic passion throughout the land. If the old railing has been lost as an incident of subway construction, as indicated in your columns on Sept. 23, it implies a carelessness amounting to culpability on the part of the Park Department. If a part of it has been "sold for junk," as the contractors are quoted as saying, it may still be possible to trace it. Certainly an effort to recover it is worth making. If much of it is recovered, the missing parts could be reproduced from what remains of the original. If all of it is hopelessly lost, the old fence could still be facsimiled from existing photographs. J. B. G.

Terms for Immediate Acceptance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To dispose of German peace talk in the proper manner, let the President of the United States reiterate our terms of peace and make them conditional upon immediate acceptance. If the Central Powers wish to avoid further punishment and really want peace, they should be made to understand that the longer they hold off the worse it is going to be for them. If they keep on murdering and pillaging, the terms will become more drastic. L. J. FRANK.

FROM A WAR GARDENER.

For a little keep away!
Mercy, for the cosmos sweet,
Marigolds so bravely gay,
Respite for my cabbages,
Beans and peppers still, I pray!

There's a white rose coming out—
Stay your coming, I implore!
Let my squash vines, full of buds,
Grow unscathed, a few days more!

If you must have work to do,
Paint more brilliantly the trees—
Make the forests glow and flame
With their Autumn tapestries!
But my garden still reprieve—
Have a heart, dear J. Frost, please!

PUTS FAITH IN WILSON.

Uruguayan Foreign Minister Tells Panama Leaders of Our Fairness.

PANAMA, Sept. 24.—Dr. Baltasar Brum, the Uruguayan Foreign Minister, who recently visited the United States, was the guest at a banquet and reception at the Presidential palace last night. In introducing Dr. Brum, Ernesto Lefevre, Foreign Secretary of Panama, told of the benevolent friendship of the United States for Panama.

"I found in President Wilson," said Dr. Brum, "a statesman of a mind so broad and a sympathy so universal that I shall devote my time henceforth with absolute assurance to Pan Americanism, knowing that we of Latin America can expect from the United States and its leaders only the utmost fairness and a desire to lead or follow according as they or we are in the right."

William J. Price, the American Minister to Panama, responded. He said he could assure Latin America that the United States desires in its relations with Central and South America to grow with them as brothers in a great family whose only desire is peace and justice.

But City Has Surprise for Some It Calls "War Profiteers."

In making up the city's budget for 1919, officials in charge propose to allow an increase of $100 for every city employe receiving $1,800 or less. The increase will affect about 30,000 employes. The Finance and Budget Committee, which comprises all the members of the Board of Estimate, will rule on individual cases in regard to those receiving more than $1,800 a year. Laborers are to receive an increase from $3 to $3.50 a day, while street cleaners are to receive $1,000 a year, a slight increase over their present wages.

It was learned yesterday that the budget makers are preparing a surprise for those city employes who left good jobs to accept better ones in civilian war posts, such as ship yards and ammunition plants. These former employes are not to have their old jobs back. Many such employes, who received leaves of absence, in the opinion of city officials, are war profiteers, and are not entitled to be taken back or to receive pensions. It is the intention of the Board of Estimate to make public soon the names of city employes who left their jobs for positions connected in no way with either the Army or Navy, and who will be dropped from the payrolls.

MAYOR FOR MILK INQUIRY.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Health Commissioner Copeland, announcing that the investigation the Commissioner of Accounts is making into the high price of milk is the only real investigation of the subject now under way. After asserting that a "Milk Trust" had under previous administrations forced the independent milk dealers in the city out of business, thereby giving the so-called "trust" a monopoly of the distribution of milk, the Mayor wrote:

"I note by the press that the Chairman of the New York Milk Committee has learned that there is an investigation being made. After all these months he suddenly awakens and discovers that the price of milk and milk products should be investigated very deeply.

"We are glad to have all the assistance we can get, but we will not stand for any camouflaged investigations to mislead the people. Our investigation is to be a real investigation, and I want to thank you for aiding the Commissioner of Accounts in this important work."

NO COAL FOR GOLF CLUBS.

Fuel Administration Forbids Use of Such Fuel This Winter.

The National Fuel Administration ordered yesterday that coal should not be used in golf and country clubs this winter. If the members want their clubhouses heated, they may burn wood or peat, but they will not receive any coal. It is ruled that such clubs must use no coal between Dec. 1 and April 1 of next year.

Permits to use small quantities of coal for the comfort of regular employes of the clubs may be obtained from the Fuel Administration at Washington. Such requests must be accompanied by a certificate of necessity from the State Fuel Administration. Neither State nor County Administrators have the power to exempt anyone from the order. Cutting off the coal supply from such clubs will mean the saving of thousands of tons of anthracite, the officials here say.

It was announced yesterday that C. A. Graves had been appointed administrative engineer for New York State of the Fuel Administration. He was formerly assistant administrative engineer in charge of the New York district.

WOMEN CALLED TO FARMS.

Miss Carey Tells of Things Accomplished in England.

In the drive of the Women's Land Army Miss Sophia Carey of the National Land Council of England addressed a meeting at the front of the Sub-Treasury yesterday at noon. Miss Carey did relief work in Belgium early in the war. She told her audience that 6,000,000 women and children had died of starvation and that 2,500,000 were still starving, and that it devolved upon the women of America to relieve conditions. "You have no idea how hungry we are over there," said Miss Carey. "We are pleading not for luxuries, but for crusts of bread. There is not a woman in England not now doing war work of some kind. The women enlist for work on farms, not for their vacations, but for a year at a time or for the period of the war. We have reclaimed 1,500,000 acres of land that was formerly idle. England was producing only one-quarter of the food consumed, and now she is producing four-fifths."

During the present week the Four-Minute Men will deliver addresses on the Women's Land Army and the United States Department of Labor.

CALL TO JEWISH CHAPLAINS.

Congregations Asked to Provide for Rabbis Who Enter the Service.

An appeal for volunteers to serve as Jewish chaplains in the United States Army has been sent out by Elias L. Soloman, President of the United Synagogue of America, 531 West 123d Street. The appeal was directed to institutions affiliated with the United Synagogue of America and to the rabbis engaged by those institutions.

Chaplains are appointed with the rank of First Lieutenants at $2,000 a year, and it behooves each congregation, said Mr. Soloman, to make such financial arrangements as will insure the rabbi against financial difficulty or his family being deprived of its customary living.

ONLY FORCE CAN WIN, SAYS JUSSERAND

PRESENTS GIFT OF FRANCE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Ambassador Jusserand of France today presented to the United States Senate on behalf of his Government two Sèvres vases in appreciation of the reception that body had accorded to Premier Viviani and Marshal Joffre when they came here last year as members of the French War Mission. The Senate Chamber was crowded for the ceremonies, during which the French Tricolor and the Stars and Stripes were displayed side by side behind the Vice President's desk.

The address delivered by M. Jusserand was both eloquent and impressive. He extolled America's attitude in the war, saying that "she has thrilled all France." The Ambassador struck a responsive note when he prophesied that the war would not end until Germany had been beaten by force of arms, adding that this was not far off.

Vice President Marshall, in accepting the vases, assured Ambassador Jusserand of the sincere devotion of this country to France and its determination to fight with the French until justice wiped away their tears and fears.

The vases were manufactured in the National China Factory at Sèvres and are pronounced by critics to be wonderful examples of the work that has made the Sèvres works famous around the world. They stand about 6 feet high. Similar vases have been given by the French Government to the House of Representatives and will be formally accepted at an early date.

In offering the vases Ambassador Jusserand said:

"The decision of the President and of Congress to take part in the war sent a thrill of joy throughout France, not simply because of the aid, but because of the justification. Our faith that our living and our dead had made manifold sacrifices for a supremely great and just cause receives its most telling confirmation when, from across the ocean, the voice of this great nation was heard above the din of battle, saying: 'From now on, until the last gun is fired, until right triumphs, not for a time but for all time, we take our place by your side.'

"Of the two ways of expressing one's self, that of Marshal Joffre, of Marshal Foch, who started from the same Marne a pursuit that is now near its end, of Marshal Haig and his admirable Britishers, of General Pershing who has given back to France a portion of France, and of their companions in arms in Italy, Palestine, the Balkans, Siberia, is the only one our enemy understands, (he is never tired of saying so himself,) and since we want to be understood, we mean to use no other.

"We have to deal with a strange enemy; I shall not say a monstrous enemy, though, in fact, such he is. He can devise, he cannot understand. That unique enemy can devise liquid fire, poisonous gases, poisonous propaganda, noxious germs sent by his diplomatic pouch to neutral countries, as happened in Norway and Rumania, (after which he wonders why he has no friends,) an accurate shelling of Rheims, the burning of Louvain, the sinking of the Lusitania and hospital ships, perfectly appointed wagons to carry off loot, the

WROTE ABOUT HIS WORRIES

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 24.—A stack of about thirty photographic copies of letters which Charles S. Mellen, former President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, received from Mrs. Margaret B. Brown of New York, the wife of H. Douglas Brown, assistant manager of the Vanderbilt Hotel, New York, purporting to have been written by his wife, Katherine Lloyd Livingston Mellen, to Mr. Brown were read as evidence today in the Berkshire Probate Court to Judge Edward T. Slocum, presiding.

The letters, written between 1913 and the end of 1914, are but a part of those Mrs. Mellen is alleged to have sent to Mr. Brown. They form the basis for Mr. Mellen's suit for a separation and a decree of living apart from Mrs. Mellen, the hearing of which began this morning. The epistles lost nothing in their dramatic reading by John W. Crim of New York, Mr. Mellen's attorney.

When the hearing opened today M. B. Warner, representing Mrs. Mellen, presented a motion that the present proceedings be abated and the action stayed until after the hearing on a libel for divorce which Mrs. Mellen has filed. Judge Slocum held that the petition of Mr. Mellen was properly within his jurisdiction.

After identification of photographic copies of the letters by Ernest S. Holland of Dayton, Ohio, formerly photographer of court records in New York, and identification of typewritten copies of the letters by a stenographer in Mr. Crim's office, Mr. Mellen was called. His attorney said, in asking for a later opening of the court tomorrow, that the witness was in poor health, suffering from Parkinson's disease, for which he was taking electrical treatments.

Mellen Tells of Discord.

Mr. Mellen testified to his purchase of property in Stockbridge, Mass., and his having had an apartment at the Vanderbilt Hotel. He said that he had protested against Mrs. Mellen's frequent visits to New York and that when they continued he had cut off her allowance of $4,000 a year. He had had many conversations with her regarding her conduct at home, the deportment of their children in the streets, and the service at their cottage in Stockbridge. He also protested, he declared, against her habit of drinking.

"Mrs. Mellen was seldom drunk," he said, "but she very often carried what the boys call 'a load.'"

"The conduct of the children," Mr. Mellen testified, referring to two daughters, Priscilla and Candace, who are 11 and 13 years old, "was very bad. They were hanging around the Post Office and one was peddling newspapers in the streets. I thought the conduct improper for children whose parents were situated as we were."

Mr. Mellen testified that Mrs. Mellen, who had an income of more than $11,000 a year from the estate of her parents, continued to go to New York and stay as long as she pleased. She went at least once a month. He kept no track of her movements. He only learned of her going through the children or the servants. She had no expense for transportation when she was in the railroad business. Mrs. Mellen was last in Stockbridge on Sept. 11, 1917.

The witness said that on Nov. 18, 1916, he made some protest against the children's littering his desk with pencil shavings.

Hit with a Marble Egg.

"Mrs. Mellen had a marble egg in her hand," he continued. "She struck me with it on the hand. She drew back and lunged again at me. I put out my hand to guard myself, and she was struck in the face. Her nose was bleeding. I followed her upstairs and apologized to her and she slapped my face. She struck me three times with the egg and scratched me.

"On the evening of June 7, 8, or 9, 1917—I can't recall the exact date—we were sitting in the living room in rocking chairs. She struck me a blow in the left eye which blackened the eye and made my nose bleed. There was a scuffle. Both of us fell, and when I got up she grabbed a glass ash receiver and struck me. Then she ran after me, throwing a chair at me. I think I accelerated her through the door—that is, I kicked her."

Mr. Mellen testified to having met Mrs. Margaret Brown in the general parlor of the Belmont Hotel, New York, and having received there the letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Mellen to Mr. Brown. These letters were delivered to Mrs. Mellen's attorney, Anson McCook Beard, in New York after they had been photographed, and on demand of Mrs. Brown.

Mr. Mr. Crim then began the reading of the letters. In his opening address to the court he said that the plaintiff would show that the physical and mental shock of the disclosures of Mrs. Mellen's infatuation for Mr. Brown put Mr. Mellen, who had not needed the attention of a physician in 40 years, in a doctor's care. He said he would show that when Mrs. Brown discovered Mrs. Mellen's infatuation for Mr. Brown, Mrs. Brown went to Mrs. Mellen's apartments in the Vanderbilt Hotel and chased her out of a room and down the hotel stairs. Mrs. Mellen then went to New Haven and engaged the services of an astrologer to watch the wife of the hotel man and see if Mrs. Brown intended to sue for a separation, according to the attorney. He charged Mrs. Mellen with excessive use of liquor and cigarettes.

Mrs. Mellen's Alleged Letters.

Mrs. Mellen's alleged letters to Mr. Brown, as read by Mr. Crim, were in part as follows:

"Sunday afternoon.

"Douglas Dear:

"Thank you so much for taking me to the Della Robbia Room on Saturday and showing me those wonderful tables. The room looks lovely, dear. If you could do something like that every once in a while it would be lovely. There could be no talk and yet we would be seen together.

"Douglas, your talk to me on Friday noon was a little hard, but, dear, it was what I needed and my actions since then have been different. And, dear, it has worked wonders. M. is like a new man. I really have never seen anything like it. On Friday when he came to the hotel from his office he was like a dog that had been whipped. He sank into a chair all exhausted. I went to help him. I said: 'You are tired. Now, would it not help you a little to talk things over with me.' He looked at me, dear. Then he began to talk.

"I sympathized with him. And I tried to cheer him all I could. We went to dinner. When we had finished he said, 'I am so tired. Do you mind if I go to the rooms?' I said, 'No, by all means go.' I finished. Then I went to the Marshalls' table and had a cocktail with them. I then went up. We sat in the salon and talked a little. At last he said, 'I am so tired I'm going to bed.' He went to his room. In a few minutes I followed.

"The shade in the little candle by his bed was crooked. I straightened it, and for something to say said, 'The shade is on the blink.' He then said: 'Kitty, Kitty, everything is on the blink and I am all in.' He was terribly despondent. I went to him and I took his hand. I said, 'Now, look here. Don't lose your nerve.' I said. 'Buck up, you will win this all right.' 'Kitty, I have not lost my nerve.' I said, 'No, and you are not going to.'

On Eve of Morgan Funeral.

"We went to bed. In the morning he came to me. He was smiling. You would not think he was the same man. I looked at him and said, 'You are feeling better today.' He smiled and said, 'Very much.' Since then, dear, he has been like a new man. He has talked all his matters over with me and just before he left this afternoon to attend Mr. Morgan's funeral he came to me and said, 'How would you like to hear what I have written about Mr. Morgan's death?' (You see it has to be sent to the family.) He read it to me, and Douglas, dear, he was like a different man when he went away than when I saw him on Friday. On Friday he evidently thought, 'What is the use? No one cares, not even my wife.' That is the way he acted, dear, and when I was kind to him and showed an interest he seemed to take a new lease of life.

"Now, dear, just before he left he said something about resigning. He said perhaps it would be a good time now that Morgan was gone. I didn't know what to advise him, dear. He seemed to want me to tell him. Talk to me about it a little, can't you? I want you to advise me. I can tell you things in talking better than I can on paper.

"Douglas, dear, have I not been good not to sit around the lobby? It is a terrible temptation, dear, to linger just a little, but you didn't want it, do you? Listen, dear, luncheon I shall sit just a little. You try and speak to me for a short time, will you? In the evening you would rather not have me, would you? Then, dear, if you don't want me to sit, will you not arrange to be standing outside as I leave the dining room? Then I can have a few minutes before going to my room, and I shall feel so much happier. I am silly, you know, and sentimental, and if I didn't see you before going to bed I don't sleep as well. Don't laugh, but it's true. Well, dear, take care of yourself, and don't be too gay when you go out. Fondly, KITTEN."

A second letter read in part:

"Tuesday—

"Douglas Dear:

"To begin with, don't be cross with me for writing you again today. I shall try my best not to have more than one letter a week after this. If I once in a while step over please don't mind, dear. For I know no one to go to but you, and it really seems as if I had more than my share of trouble.

"I was dreadfully blue, but not a bit cross. Now, this is confidential. He says he may be forced to resign. I don't think that, but you know when a man gets blue he thinks every one is against him. He says to save the road he himself has to step in and take his coat off, and work like a man of 40. It is not right, dear, but he says he will have to work harder for the next six months than he ever worked before. Well, I should much rather have him work like that than resign and then feel that his life was a failure.

"He said on Sunday, 'Kitty, if I am forced to resign I shall consider my business career a failure, and, think, after forty-four years of hard work.' Well, he is not going to resign if I can help it. When the time comes, Douglas, I shall want him to go into business."

The letter is signed, "Fondly, Katherine."

Mrs. Mellen was not in court. Her attorney, Mr. Warner, said she was not in the immediate vicinity. It is not known whether she will appear in her defense. It was said today that the case Mrs. Brown had brought against Mrs. Mellen had been withdrawn from a New York court.

Mrs. Katherine Lloyd Livingston Mellen is the second wife of Charles S. Mellen. They were married in Brooklyn on Nov. 15, 1893. The couple have five children—Katherine, Raymond, Amory, Candace and Priscilla—whose ages range from 11 to 21 years. Mr. Mellen is 67 years old and his wife is 46.

SAY RAILROADS HAVE ENTERED NEW ERA

DIFFER AS TO PROSPECTS

Hulbert Says Credit for Planning Federal Reserve Act Is Due to President Wilson Alone.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Government control of the railroads is here to stay, but whether actual Government ownership will accompany it is still a question, financiers gathered here for the convention of the American Bankers Association were told today.

Two views of the Government control and ownership questions were presented to the bankers, both being expounded at the meeting of the savings bank section. Samuel Untermyer, the New York lawyer, who represented the railroad security holders in the making of their contracts with the Government, presented one, and Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, gave the other.

Both agreed, however, upon one thing. They assumed that it was impossible that the railroads would ever return to the pre-war system of ownership and management.

Tonight there was a joint meeting of the national bank, savings bank, State bank, and trust company sections, over which John V. Farwell of Chicago presided, and which was addressed by E. D. Hulbert, President of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company of Chicago; John Staley, Vice President People's State Bank, Detroit; M. J. Dowling, President Olivia State Bank, Olivia, Minn., and Robert D. Kent, President Merchants' Bank, Passaic, N. J.

Advocates Regional System.

Mr. Sisson, in presenting his views on the future of the railroads, affirmed that Government control and operation had not yet proved itself superior to private operation. He advocated a system of regional railways, with wasteful competition eliminated, and perhaps with Government guarantee of investment returns.

He also thought "railroad stocks would be placed in the same class as railroad bonds, since, with their earnings definitely limited and guaranteed, speculative possibilities will be largely eliminated from them and their prices should not greatly fluctuate."

Mr. Sisson insisted that the Government, in its own operation of the roads, having found both freight and passenger rates inadequate, would never return to the pre-war rates.

Mr. Untermyer saw "no terrors" in continued Government control, which he affirmed was normal, natural and not socialistic. He also stated his belief in Government ownership of telegraphs, telephones and the natural resources, "such as our deposits of coal, iron, copper and oil and our forests, that of right are the heritage of the entire people and should not have been allowed to go from them."

This also, Mr. Untermyer affirmed, was not socialism, which he deprecated as economically unsound "in all its tenets."

"It would be unsafe and unsound," said Mr. Untermyer, "to predicate the final outcome upon the human or political life and power of any single individual. The problem must be analyzed in its wider aspects, from the standpoint of the powers that have been delegated by the constitution. We have no right to assume they will not be exercised. The status of the security holders must be judged by what may be lawfully done under the contract and not by speculating upon what will be done.

More Sinned Against Than Sinning.

"Whatever the sins of the past of the companies, they have long since been more than expiated by their victims, upon whom these sins have been visited, as the sins of the fathers are said to be visited upon their children and their children's children, and that here the punishment has not been visited upon the offenders or their children, but upon the children and the children's children of their victims. For many years the roads have been far more sinned against than sinning. Fortunately in one respect, unfortunately in others, they have been under such rigid Government regulation that their power to offend against the public has been destroyed.

"I have long been an advocate of Government ownership, but have always hoped and expected that it would come through just and adequate compensation, not through quasi confiscation. The good faith of our Government, the golden rule of fair dealing, and the sanctity of property rights alike demand that it shall not be less. Whether these utilities and resources, or which of them, shall be operated or developed as the case may be by the Government or leased to private enterprise to be conducted under Government regulation is another question which need not be here discussed.

"Reviewing the problem in all its various aspects, there may reasonably be deduced from the situation conclusions that the well secured bonds of prosperous roads are not likely to suffer substantial shrinkage; that the, at present, indifferently secured bonds will be subject to serious deterioration in value; that the established dividend-paying stocks will be somewhat injuriously affected and that the values of non-dividend earning stocks will to a large extent be eliminated. The prospects cannot be said to be alluring, but if we are prepared for the worst there is always hope that we have been taking counsel of our fears, and that, after all, they may not be realized.

"There is also the cold consolation, which I do not believe will be the result, that Government operation may prove so expensive and unpopular or so unsuccessful, that the roads will be returned and that the Government, having by experience learned something of the injustice that has been done the roads and the public by a policy of inadequate rates, will conclude it is good business to treat them fairly and thus to attract investors and secure the best service. Let us, therefore, while prepared for the worst, hope for the best outcome of this stupendous epochal experiment."

Hulbert Warns Federal Banks.

E. D. Hulbert, President of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company, a personal friend and confidant whom President Wilson has sought in the past to appoint to the Governorship of the Federal Reserve Board, gave the bankers a solemn warning that the Federal Reserve system faces a grave danger in the practice of loaning to banks at a price at which they can profit by the transaction. Many bankers have feared the possible results of permitting banks to rediscount at far below the going money rate and loan out their borrowings at 1 or 2 per cent. profit, but few have dared voice their opinions in public.

Mr. Hulbert told a bit of unpublished history showing that President Wilson, on a visit to Chicago before his first inauguration, outlined a plan for the organization of the Federal Reserve System differing from those of bankers, commissions and Congressmen, and then persisted until it had been adopted. He asked to "record the statement that to Woodrow Wilson alone is due the credit for planning the Federal Reserve act."

Bankers delegated to the Clearing House section of the association spent the day planning ways of using the Clearing Houses of the country to greater advantage in co-ordinating efforts toward the financing of the war and adjusting the general scheme of Clearing House operations to co-operate with the Federal Reserve System's clearing and collection system.

From the bankers' point of view one of the most interesting addresses was that of Clay Hollister, President of the Old National Bank of Grand Rapids, Mich. His plea was that a reasonable compensation be exacted for all banking services and exorbitant charges entirely eliminated. He proposed that all checks, drafts, and acceptances be made to pay the cost of correction and remittance. The tendency of the reserve system has been to reduce charges to a point where many services are rendered without fee while many bankers have "absorbed" charges in competition for accounts.

John Drum, member of the National Capital Issues Committee, pledged his committee and the powers of government, Mr. Drum said that the best statistics available indicated that since the First Liberty Loan was floated $400,000,000 Liberty bonds had been exchanged for non-essential or questionable securities. After telling of the work to be done by the Capital Issues Committee in checking the evil, he asked the section to go on record and take an active part in the work.

As a result a committee was appointed to report back to the section a constructive plan of action and it probably will report to the main body of the convention.

Ralph Stone, President of the Detroit Trust Company and former Director of the Bureau of Trusts for the Alien Property Custodian, made an address defining the administration of alien property. This included statistical information regarding the amount of alien property held in this country at the outbreak of the war, which totaled, said Mr. Stone, $471,403,994.02, consisting of Government securities, current funds, stocks, bonds, mortgages, notes receivable, accounts receivable, real estate, general business, and enemy vessels.

Mr. Stone suggested that enemy property here might be taken as part of our indemnities, the owners being referred to their Governments for recompense, or that the property might be returned, in consideration of American property in enemy countries being also returned to its owners. He concluded by saying he would "divorce utterly and forever all German capital from American industry."

UNVEIL DEPEW STATUE.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Chauncey M. Depew, who is 84 years old, aided today in the unveiling of a heroic-size bronze statue of himself in Depew Park here, a part of the original tract of land bought from the Indians in 1685 by his ancestor, François du Puy, under a license from Governor Dongan. Sanford R. Knapp, a student in Peekskill Academy with Mr. Depew in 1840, made the presentation speech.

Mr. Depew, in his speech, told of the early history of Peekskill and of the efforts of many of the old Peekskill citizens during the civil war, when Mr. Depew was Secretary of State for New York, and of the heroism of the soldiers who marched away then. Praising the American Army in France today, he said:

"Now the boys of our village are fighting over there. Though the seas divide them from us there is no waking moment when they are not in our thoughts. We have the youngest army that ever walked on a battlefield, but it understands as well as the President and the Cabinet or the House and the Senate why it is in France. It asks no loot on territory or indemnity, but it is determined never to return until autocracy has been beaten to its knees, until militarism has received its death blow, and until the world is sure of permanent peace with liberty."

The statue of Mr. Depew is the work of Sigurd Neandross, and was unveiled by Miss Helen Husted, a daughter of General James W. Husted. A holiday was declared in the village for the ceremony.

Manufactured Furs Sell Well.

Despite the advanced stage of the current wholesale season for manufactured furs, sellers of these goods report no great falling off in the demand for them. Coats continue in liberal demand, and the call for sets is by no means small. Separate scarfs and muffs also are selling. An excellent season for men's fur and fur-lined coats is reported, in spite of the high range of prices that are of necessity asked for these goods at the present time. In the women's coats the demand for the less staple furs is topped by the call for squirrel, while in the more popular-priced furs Hudson seal continues far and away the leader. Natural raccoon also are "good." Practically all lengths of garments are being bought.

Some Gray Goods Sales Made.

While business was light in the local gray goods market yesterday, pending the outcome of the pricefixing conference in Washington, some sales were made. Both first and second hands shared in the day's trading, the former letting out fair quantities of twills and sateens at Government prices. Second-hand business was confined very largely to printcloths, spot sales being put through on 39-inch 72-70s at 22 cents, 39-inch 68-72s at 20½ cents, and 38½-inch 64-48s at 14½ cents. Sheetings did not receive much attention.

Fibre Sweaters Called For.

A survey of the business that has been taken so far on fibre silk sweaters for Spring delivery indicates one of the most active seasons these goods have ever experienced. Jobbers and the larger retailers especially have been good buyers, some of the smaller merchants being somewhat handicapped in their buying, so far as quantity is concerned, by the increased cost of the merchandise. In this industry, as in many others, the question of deliveries is paramount. Labor is none too plentiful now, and the possibility of a further sapping of the supply by the draft and by higher wages in other trades is viewed with no small misgiving.

Demand for Women's Bloomers.

The early activity in the buying of women's bloomers for Fall is holding and even increasing in some cases, according to reports from local manufacturers. Basing their hopes on the business that has already been done and on the outlook for the immediate future, authorities in this trade believe that the present season is going to be one of the best on record for these garments. They are wanted this Fall in both high and low grades, though in every case good workmanship is a positive requirement. Satin, taffeta, glove silk, and wool jersey are some of the materials mentioned as being among the best sellers.

More Army Bids Opened.

Bids were opened yesterday in the local office of the Quartermaster's Department of the army for 3,000,000 yards of 31-inch 28-36 combed cheesecloth and 2,000,000 yards of 39-inch 68-88 sateen. For cheesecloth there were ten bids, offering a total of 2,925,000 yards at prices ranging from 14 to 15½ cents. One bid, which it is thought will be thrown out, stipulated "at Government price." The average bid was a little under 14½ cents. Of the eight bids offering sateen three were for 37½-inch widths instead of 39 inches. Prices on these were 19 to 19⅛ cents, and their total was 780,000 yards. The other five bids on the asked-for construction offered 1,135,000 yards from 19⅜ to 20 cents. The total of all sateen offered was therefore 1,915,000 yards. There was one offering of 300,000 yards of 39-inch sateen which failed to mention the price.

Silver Mesh Bags Liked.

Fine silver mesh bags are reported to be coming back into general popularity. Whether the novelties in these lines have caused the revival or whether the revival has spurred manufacturers on to create new novelties is not clear, but the fact remains that a great many attractive features have been developed which are selling quite readily. One such novelty is a baby mesh bag made with a mirror and pocket for a small powder puff secreted in the sterling silver frame. It may be opened without opening the bag itself and when closed fits into the design so perfectly that its presence is not evident.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With the war news continuing to turn principally on the activities in Macedonia and Palestine, which may serve to eliminate the two smaller members of the Teutonic Alliance from further consideration by the Allies, the stock market fluctuated irregularly yesterday, yet with a good undertone always in evidence. Some of the net changes at the close of the session were out of all proportion to the volume of business done, indicating that the process of liquidating speculative accounts is still going on as opportunity offers.

Steel swung through a range of exactly 1 point, ending almost at the previous night's closing level. Offhand, the tremendous addition which the corporation must make to its wage account without receiving any proportionate direct benefits would seem to be a bearish factor on the stock, with practically all sales made at prices fixed before the shorter working day was contemplated, but Wall Street has unlimited faith in the ability of the company to absorb this increase as it has taken in numerous other wage advances since the beginning of the war. Of the other active stocks, Sugar closed unchanged, Baldwin gained 1⅝, Central Leather 1⅛, Marine preferred lost 1¼, and Mexican Petroleum gained ⅛.

On the Cotton Exchange the appointment of committees, one to make a study of the cost of producing the crop to supply a basis on which to take up the delicate matter of price fixing and one to regulate purchases of the staple for the United States and her allies, was hailed as an assurance that the trade has little to fear from arbitrary price fixing. Prices advanced easily on the passing of fears that the Government would shortly announce a basis substantially lower than that on which the market has been trading.

Secretary McAdoo's appearance at the first loan meeting of the new campaign last night cleared up the remaining details of the new war offering. No earlier campaign has started off so auspiciously so far as popular feeling goes; the stirring victories in which the American troops have figured and the departure of a million and three-quarters of soldiers, recruited from every part of the country, have prepared the ground for an immediate response from twenty million or more investors. At the same time, Mr. McAdoo is well aware of the added difficulties thrown upon the loan salesmen by the doubling of taxation and the consequent necessity which many buyers of the big blocks in earlier loans will be under of apportioning their income between insistent demands. The vital factor in the new campaign will be the response made by the class to which the exemption of $75,000 of the several loans becomes possible under the amendment recently passed.

GOOD UNDERTONE IN LONDON.

Gilt-Edged Business Decreased Owing to War Bond Campaign.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Money continued scarce in the market today, necessitating borrowing from the banks.

On the Stock Exchange the undertone was good, but the gilt-edged business decreased owing to investors awaiting next week's war bond campaign. Home rails were weak on account of the strike of English railway employes. Profit taking affected the miscellaneous section, but land shares and shipping stocks were firm.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Trading today on the Bourse was calm. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 63 francs for cash. Exchange on London was quoted at 26 francs 7 centimes. Five per cent. loan was quoted at 88 francs 20 centimes.

BORROW LARGE SUMS TO MOVE WHEAT CROP

The United States Grain Corporation, the Government's wheat-buying agency which assumed control of the wheat markets in all the leading centres of the country about a year ago, has recently found it necessary to borrow money in order to facilitate the movement of the crop. This financing has been carried on by the drawing of drafts, secured by bills of lading or warehouse receipts for the grain, and the acceptance of the bills by banks and trust companies.

Until a few weeks ago the corporation did not borrow funds, its capital being sufficient to take care of its needs, but lately the capital, which is now $150,000,000, proved inadequate and resort had to be taken to the open market. The acceptance arrangements are not restricted to New York City institutions but take in many of the principal out-of-town banks. It was reported yesterday that the total of the acceptances outstanding was about $

STEEL CORPORATION GRANTS 8-HOUR DAY

WILL RAISE WAGE OUTLAY

Other Steelmaking Concerns Expected to Follow—Midvale Co. Invites Labor Co-operation.

The United States Steel Corporation has adopted the eight-hour day as the basis for calculating wages and working periods for its employes, abandoning its long opposition to this standard. The change will take place next month. Approximately three-quarters of the 275,000 workers in rolling mills, blast furnaces, mines, and transportation organizations operated by the corporation will be affected, and it is expected that substantial increases in the corporation's outlay for wages in some departments will result.

Announcement of this radical change of the corporation's policy was made by Elbert H. Gary, Chairman, after the monthly Directors' meeting yesterday. He said:

"The Finance Committee of the United States Steel Corporation today unanimously approved the recommendation of the Chairman and President of the corporation and of the Presidents of the subsidiary companies to adopt the eight-hour basic day, to become effective Oct. 1, 1918. The open-shop plan heretofore in force throughout the works will be continued."

Judge Gary had nothing to add to his statement, and little was learned of the practical application of the new measure. Inquiry among officers of other steel companies showed that the action of the biggest single unit in the industry had caused some surprise, but it was intimated that the Lackawanna, the Republic Steel, the Bethlehem, and other steel concerns would shortly adopt the policy of the Steel Corporation.

When the news was first discussed in financial circles it was thought that the establishment of the eight-hour day would mean a large increase in the income of a majority of the workers. For some years the ten-hour day has been the basis for day labor and employes in departments where wages are on an hourly or daily schedule. Day labor is now receiving $4.20 for a ten-hour day and the assumption that the pay after Oct. 1 would be $4.20 for an eight-hour stretch indicated a 25 per cent. increase in wages. Coming on top of two other increases of 15 and 10 per cent., respectively, since Jan. 1, it appeared as though the corporation's labor bill in the next twelve months might be increased about $70,000,000 over the outlay in the year ended Dec. 31, 1917, by the new departure.

As a part of the corporation's force at blast furnaces are paid for twelve-hour shifts, and workers on other departments, totaling fully 25 per cent. of the whole number of employes, have long had an eight-hour day, it is probable that a complete readjustment of the wage system will be made to equalize the new basis among all grades of employes.

Surprise to Financiers.

The Steel Corporation's decision to accept the eight-hour day, which has gained foothold in many lines of industry of late, came as a surprise to the financial district. At as recent a date as March 27, last, when announcement of a 15 per cent. wage increase was made, Judge Gary went on record as opposed to the eight-hour basis.

"It is rumored," he said at that time, "that some employers of labor have been discussing the adoption of an eight-hour day, and in view of this fact we have given careful consideration to this question and have decided against it. Extending over a period of many years we have been operating on an eight-hour basis in departments where the labor is unusually heavy and where workmen and managers have both decided eight hours' work was most conducive to health and comfort; and we have also been putting into practice from time ot time during the last few years an eight-hour day in most of our underground iron ore and coal mines. A little over 25 per cent. of our total employes are now on an eight-hour basis. The conclusions arrived at today, as above stated, have been influenced largely by reason that we believe the largest production will be thereby secured. This is always essential, and especially important in times like the present."

In the absence of official explanation for the change from the current system for figuring wages, several theories were advanced. One was that the corporation had decided to accept a tendency of the times, having found through experiment that production would not be adversely affected if the eight-hour basis were taken. Another was that the corporation acted in order to stave off possible labor troubles. The management has always supported the open shop, and considerable interest in steel trade circles was attracted a fortnight ago to the activity of union representatives at the Gary, Ind., plant.

Another significant development as affecting capital and labor in the steel industry appeared yesterday in news that the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company had invited its employes to co-operate with the officials for the purpose of working out plans for mutual benefit. A committee of employes of the Midvale plants and the Cambria Steel Company, a controlled concern, is scheduled to consult today with a committee consisting of Vice Presidents of the Midvale Company. The meeting will be held in Philadelphia. A poster put up in the various plants on Monday, signed by A. C. Dinkey, President, said:

"We recognize the right of wage earners to bargain collectively with their employers, and we hereby invite all employes to meet with the officers of their respective companies for the purpose of considering and, if practicable, adopting a plan of representation by the employes, which shall be thoroughly democratic and entirely free from interference by the companies, or any official or agent thereof. It is hoped that every employe will respond to this invitation and meet with the officers of the company in the spirit of fair dealing and mutual helpfulness."

The plan follows in general outline the measures taken a few months ago by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to promote close co-operation between workers and officers. Representatives of the employes meet regularly with the Standard Oil officials to discuss matters of mutual interest.

GOVERNMENT REJECTS SHORT LINES' TERMS

Counter Proposals Also Refused by Roads and Negotiations Are in a Deadlock.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — Proposals of short line railroads for modification of the form of contract under which the short lines would return to Government control were rejected today by the Railroad Administration, and counter proposals of the administration were refused by the short line representatives. Negotiations which have been under way for several days were suspended indefinitely, and several hundred short lines which complain that they are operating at a severe disadvantage in competition with Government-managed roads, will continue to operate privately.

Railroad Administration officials characterized the short lines' demands as exorbitant. The American Short Line Railroad Association gave out a statement describing the terms proposed by the Railroad Administration as "impossible and uunlivable."

"The final draft of the short line contract," said the statement, "as prepared by the Railroad Administration, was submitted and has been rejected by the American Short Line Railroad Association Committee, for the reason that it does not embody any of the vital points that have been contended for by the committee during the negotiations with the Railroad Administration for a satisfactory short line contract. The absence of these points makes the contract as submitted by the administration impossible and unlivable so far as the short lines are concerned, and in the opinion of the short lines, does not conform to the principles set out by the President in his veto message to Congress of July 11, 1918.

"No further negotiation will be had with the Railroad Administration unless the Director General of Railroads will listen to the claims of the short lines personally and grant the vital points necessary to their very existence."

RATIFY RAILROAD CONTRACT

Atchison Directors Advise Stockholders to Accept Compact.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway, at their regular meeting yesterday, voted to recommend to stockholders at the adjourned annual meeting on Oct. 15 to accept the contract offered by the Railroad Administration for the operation of the property during the war period. S. D. Beldsoe and E. D. Engel were elected Directors to succeed Walker D. Hines, now in the service of the Railroad Administration, and the late Homer A. Stillwell. Mr. Engel was also elected a Vice President of the company.

The usual quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. was declared on the common stock. It will be paid on Dec. 2 to stockholders of record Oct. 31.

SMELTERS EARNINGS SHOW BIG DECLINE

First Half of Year Gives Net Income of Little More Than Half Same Period in 1917.

WILL ISSUE REPORT TODAY

Revenue Barely Covers Dividend on Common—Adjust Contracts to Meet Situation.

The American Smelting and Refining Company shows in its report for the six months ended June 30, which is to be issued today, a sharp slump of earnings from the total achieved in the same period of 1917. The dividend on the common stock was earned by only a slight margin, this being $118,872. In the initial half of 1917 the balance after dividends was $5,165,070. The net income before making allowances for taxes and depreciation was $9,745,525, not much more than half the net a year before.

The poor showing had been forecast in the annual statement for 1917, in which Daniel Guggenheim, President, recited some of the burdens of cost and inadequate smelter charges under which the company was laboring. It had not been expected in financial circles, however, that so extensive a falling off would occur. The principal features of the semi-annual statement are presented in this table:

Deprec. and deplet.	2,587,587	2,596,173
Total charges	5,676,704	8,555,779
Balance for div.	4,068,821	10,202,119
Final surplus	118,872	5,165,070
Total surplus	27,069,288	28,607,305

Mr. Guggenheim indicates in his statement that some of the factors which militated against profits during the half year have been improved. In regard to the discouragements affecting the company, noted in the 1917 report, he says:

"The situation became even more aggravated during the first half of this year. The costs of operating our various works continued to increase and our contract charges to mines remained fixed. Many of our principal smelting and refining works were actually running at a loss, but the Board of Directors decided that the war situation would not permit the closing of these works, as the various metals produced by the company, and especially copper, were in urgent demand by the Government of the United States and the various allied Governments. The company was obliged, therefore, to lay the situation before the various mining companies with which it had long-time contracts, with a view to so amending the contracts as to allow the company a living return for the services rendered.

"The board is pleased to report that an adjustment has been agreed upon since the close of the semi-annual period with most of our important contracting mining companies, in some cases dating back to April 1, which, together with the improving situation in Mexico, permits the company to report earnings equal to our usual dividend requirements."

COTTON RESPONDS TO WASHINGTON NEWS

Market Indicates Strong Technical Position as Result of Southern Liquidation.

The cotton market yesterday made a favorable response to the announcement from Washington regarding the appointment of two committees, one to make a thorough investigation of the general cotton situation and the other to regulate purchases of cotton for this and allied Governments. Although opening prices were 14 points lower, to about 14 points higher, there was a steady advance in prices throughout the morning session. The early rise carried prices 61 to 77 points net higher.

October contracts, which closed last Friday at 32.70 and declined to 31.20 on Saturday on the sharp break, following the reports of the President's intention to fix prices, sold up yesterday to 32.60, or practically to the point where it stood on Friday night. On the advance yesterday December contracts sold at 32.31, or 18 points above Friday's closing figure and 161 points higher than the low figure reached on Saturday's break.

The market's behavior yesterday indicated that it was in a strong technical position as a result of the liquidation of speculative holdings among traders throughout the South.

During the afternoon the market became somewhat easier than it had been during the forenoon, and appeared as if the trade was waiting for further developments in Washington. In the closing half hour prices broke about 50 points on general liquidation, caused by further hedge selling and declines of ½ to ¾ cent in Southern spot markets. The market closed easy, with October contracts showing a net loss of 49 points and December contracts a loss of 33 points.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was a reactionary tendency to the market at the close yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final quotations in a majority of the issues, both in the rails and industrials, had fractional net losses and were substantially below the high levels of the session. These latter, as a rule, were made at the outset, and subsequently the market moved irregularly during the greater part of the day.

Ennis & Sinnott resold the six-story apartment house at 561 and 563 West 175th Street, on plot 50 by 112.9, near Audubon Avenue, to a client of F. William Sohns for investment. The house is fully rented and shows an annual return of over $12,000. The property was held at $85,000.

In another deal Frederick Brown sold to Alois Soeller the five-story apartment house at 502 West 173d Street, on a plot 50 by 100. The house, which shows an annual rent return of about $8,000, was held at $65,000. Mr. Soeller gave in exchange the Eureka Hotel property at Huntington, L. I., and a free and clear plot, 50 by 100, on the west side of Bailey Avenue, 50 feet north of 192d Street, in the Bronx.

Two Torrens Registrations.

Howard R. Conkling sold to Thomas Harper, the tenant, the brass foundry at 204 Lafayette Street, on a lot 21.3 by 100, near Broome Street. Folsom Brothers were the brokers. Andrew Harper of the same address, also bought from Charles Eberle the two-family dwelling at 15 Seventy-fifth Street, Brooklyn. Both titles will be registered under the Torrens system.

The combined parcels were sold by William A. White & Sons for August Klipstein and the Paracies estate.

Brokers May Increase Leasing Commissions.

The Committee on Ethics of the Real Estate Board of New York held an executive meeting yesterday afternoon to consider the advisability of increasing the commission rates on leases negotiated in Manhattan, Bronx, and Brooklyn.

On Jan. 1 last the Board of Governors of the Real Estate Board made effective new commission rates on sales, changing the old rate of 1 per cent. to 2½ per cent. on sales up to $40,000, and 1 per cent. on transactions above that amount. This move, it was explained, was made necessary by the general advance in living and business operating expenses.

It was not deemed necessary at that time to change the leasing commission rate. A report of the meeting will be made to the Board of Governors for action.

Harlem Garage Deal.

The lease of the Gothic Garage, 239 East Fifty-sixth Street, completed by Philip Weinstein & Son, on a plot 100 by 100, has just been effected. The property has been leased to Duncan B. UNION LEAGUE READY FOR A POLITICAL FIGHT

Patriotism Declared Not to be an Issue for All Are Patriots—Campaign Committee Meets.

"Politics is not adjourned in the sense that party principles should be abandoned," is a campaign slogan of the Union League Club. It was sounded and adopted as such at the first meeting of the Campaign Committee, recently appointed by Charles E. Hughes, President of the club, yesterday afternoon when Robert C. Morris was elected Chairman, Joseph H. Emery Secretary, and Harrison K. Bird Treasurer of the committee.

The committee had invited George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, to attend the meeting Mr. Glynn appeared and gave the members his views regarding the campaign and some facts and figures of the enrollment throughout the State which he declared augured well for Republican victory. After his address Mr. Glynn was asked to make arrangements for Governor Whitman and all the other candidates on the Republican State ticket to address a meeting of the club at some date after the Liberty Loan drive.

Mr. Morris, upon his election as Chairman, addressed the committee. "We have entered upon a momentous campaign in the State of New York for the election of a Governor and a full State ticket," he said. "It is vital to the preservation of the Republican Party in the nation as well as in the State that we should elect our party candidates. The result of the campaign will demonstrate whether there are to be two great parties in the future or whether Government in this country is to be dominated by the principles of a single group.

"It is therefore the imperative duty of all Republicans to unite their utmost efforts to a continuance of their party's influence. Politics is not adjourned in the sense that party principles should be abandoned.

"We are all patriotic, and patriotism is not an issue in this campaign. What we demand is that the principles of the Republican Party shall be maintained and preserved for the future welfare of the nation. The immediate issue is, shall the present Administration with its splendid record be continued or shall the State be sacrificed to Tammany rule?"

The committee is composed of the following members:

George C. Austin,	F. J. Middlebrook,

INFLUENZA SPREADS; 150 NEW CASES HERE

Health Commissioner Sees No Cause for Alarm, but He Advises Caution.

TELLS OF WARNING SIGNS

Urges Those Attacked to Give Up Work and Call a Physician at Once.

Spanish influenza continued to spread in New York City yesterday. Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland announced that for the twenty-four hours ended at 10 A. M. yesterday 150 new cases were reported, breaking all records since the disease was made reportable, on last Wednesday. Commissioner Copeland did not consider the situation alarming, but he issued a warning against the dangerous character of the germ spreading the disease, and strongly urged persons not to fail to take the necessary precautions against it.

"The Bureau of Laboratories is making a careful study of this condition," said Dr. Copeland. "As a result of these researches thus far there are already indications of the seriousness of this disease.

"I must say that we are dealing with a very treacherous condition. Fortunately, only a small percentage of affected persons develop the second-day pneumonia, which is so fatal in its results. Let me review just a little the symptoms, regarding which we are getting more exact knowledge every day.

Tells of Premonitory Symptoms.

"First there is the sneezing or coughing, accompanied by headache, backache, or general aching of the bones and joints. This may be preceded by a chill, but a chill is not always present. Then there is an immediate rise in temperature in a few hours. The fever persists about three days, and is likely to go up to 101, and even 103 degrees. Then the fever disappears, and in those cases that terminate happily the trouble ends right there.

"Unfortunately not all cases terminate so well. We have found cases where after two days of normal temperature the patient complains of feeling chilly again. Then there is an almost immediate rise in temperature to 103. The cough, which may not have disappeared altogether, increases. The patient complains of pains in the chest, accompanied by a tightening sensation in that region. It is at this stage that the patient develops broncho-pneumonia.

"Depression follows. The respiration may not have been disturbed but toward the end the respiration increases and the end comes quickly, usually on the seventh day. The course of the disease, if fatal, generally covers seven days. There are three days of influenza, two of normal temperature, two of pneumonia and the end on the seventh day.

"I want to impress the public on the importance of going to bed and remaining quiet. People who do that usually escape. My experience has pointed to the wisdom of following this advice. Go to bed and call a doctor. Don't be misled into going to business until two days have elapsed after the subsidence of the fever.

"The interesting thing about this pneumonia is that it is a pure streptococcic infection. A streptococcic infection, no matter where it appears, is serious and dangerous, for the streptococcus is the most virulent and active of the pus producing germs. As far as the spread of the disease in this city is concerned we are to be congratulated that the number of cases is not larger. It would not be surprising to have several hundred cases in this city with its large population."

The Department of Health was unable to tell the number of deaths due to Spanish influenza yesterday because the tables are made out weekly. However, a comparison of the deaths from pneumonia for the week ending Sept. 21, 1918 with the same period last year showed a decrease this year. There were thirty-one deaths from broncho-pneumonia last week and fifty-eight for the same period last year. In fatal cases broncho-pneumonia is developed after an attack of Spanish influenza.

Distribution of the Disease.

Of the 150 new cases of influenza reported yesterday, eighty-three came under the jurisdiction of the city anthorities and sixty-seven were Government cases. All but two of the cases under the jurisdiction of the city were civilians. These two were cases of soldiers. As divided among the boroughs the new cases were as follows: Manhattan, 43; Bronx, 7; Brooklyn, 27; Queens, 4, and Richmond 2. The two soldiers' cases occurred in Manhattan.

Twelve additional cases were reported from the Navy Yard in Brooklyn, and forty-seven additional cases in Brooklyn were confined to immigrants arriving from foreign ports. The Marine Hospital on Staten Island reported eight cases.

Thirty-nine cases of pneumonia were reported yesterday, 17 in Manhattan, 5 in the Bronx, 6 in Brooklyn, 1 in Queens, and 10 in Richmond. Health officials said that these figures were not above normal for this time of year, but we are unable to say how many were due to Spanish influenza.

Assistant District Attorney Edwin P. Kilroe, it was announced at the District Attorney's office yesterday, was confined to his home at 408 Morningside Avenue, suffering from Spanish influenza. Mr. Kilroe contracted a cold several days ago.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who is convalescing from an attack of pneumonia caused by influenza, was reported to be improving at the home of his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, 47 East Sixty-fifth Street.

4,000 WORKERS QUIT IN GARMENT SHOPS

SEEK 20% MORE PAY

More than 4,000 workers on women's garments walked out on strike yesterday afternoon, demanding a 20 per cent. increase over their present scale of wages. According to the strike leaders, the walkout yesterday represented fully 90 per cent. of the labor engaged in this particular industry. By noon today, they said, they expected to have the movement so close to a 100 per cent. strike that it would be a matter of only a few days before the employers would have to concede the demands of the workers.

Benjamin Schlessinger, President of the International Garment Workers' Union, was said to have received a dozen telephone calls late yesterday afternoon at his headquarters, 31 Union Square, from fashionable establishments on Fifth Avenue, asking for arrangements for a settlement. A settlement committee, leaders of the strikers said, would meet at 9 A. M. today to handle all such applications. Wherever the employers showed a disposition to grant the desired increase or arbitrate the matter, the strikers' leaders said, arrangements would be made to send the workers back to their labors.

Hundreds of the strikers before leaving their tasks yesterday were engaged in making high-priced gowns which are sold in the Fifth Avenue shops, so that this division of the industry is especially hard hit. There are more than 400 employers involved in the loss of labor through the strike. Thus far only a dozen have shown any willingness to concede the demands of the workers. President Schlessinger of the union said he was confident that within a week practically all the workers would be back at their needles with their wages increased to the desired figure.

Why Gillette Service appeals to Successful Men

See the Gillette Service Experts. Bring your razor with you. They will look it over—No charge

MANY of the most prominent men of this city are going to the Gillette Service Experts.

They are checking up on their Shaving Methods. The only way a man achieves Success is by learning the best way to do things —the "little knack" and the short cuts that go to make perfection.

Take a few minutes to talk to them while they are in the city.

Perhaps you are missing something the Gillette could give you.

Do you know the "knack" of holding the Gillette flat to the face—so it takes the beard off smooth and clean?

Come in and see them. Let them illustrate the little points that may make your Gillette shave even better than ever before.

Bring in your razor and let them look it over. No matter how old it is, bring it in anyhow.

REMEMBER that Twelve Million men, who are wide-awake every minute of the day, use the Gillette.

These men find it indispensable. So will you.

No Stropping—No Honing. No waiting for anybody else to shave you.

And every time you shave yourself you save fees and tips that will buy more U. S. Thrift Stamps—or go toward a payment on a Liberty Bond.

Are You Getting Maximum Results From Your Gillette

The Gillette Service Experts and all Gillette dealers want to be of service to every Gillette user in town.

They will show you that "little knack" of the Gillette shave—how to prepare the face for shaving; the correct angle-stroke; the adjustment for a light or a close shave.

Bring in your Gillette, have it looked over. It may be damaged, bent, out of alignment. If so, they will put it in first-class condition again, free of charge. They may make some valuable suggestions, anyway.

When you shave tomorrow morning try this:—

Put in a new blade and screw the handle down tight. Then, if you want a specially close shave, unscrew the handle a slight turn.

Hold the razor naturally and easily, and tilt the handle so you can just feel the blade engage the beard.

Then shave with short, slanting strokes.

Keep the edge of the blade as nearly flat against the skin as you can. Any man will catch the "little knack" of using his Gillette in one or two shaves. In fact, when the Gillette is properly used, the beard slips off without your knowing it.

The all-important thing is to lather well, and to hold the razor easily, with the handle tilted so the blade just engages the beard.
